ONE PERSON HURT

Gas-Fed Blaze Hard To Contain

A fire from a ruptured gas line in Bret Harte Heights outside San Rafael burned for five hours and 45 minutes last night before utility emergency crews were able to pinch off the line allowing firemen to quench the blaze. (See picture page 3)

One man was injured. Gas service was interrupted to 17 homes, utility officials said.

Fire officials said the blaze, off Tiburon Boulevard, started at about 5:30 p.m. when a tractor loader driven by Harold Holtzinger of Holtzinger Brothers contracting firm of San Rafael apparently scraped through mud at a construction site and severed the line.

Holtzinger was treated at Marin General Hospital for burns on his face, neck, arms and hand. He said he had just finished lifting a truck belonging to Pacific Shingles of Santa Rosa out of the mire when "the diesel blew up." The blast threw him 15 feet from the burning tractor.

Fire units from Marin County, San Rafael and Hamilton Air Force Base were called to control the blaze. Flames shot as high as 30 feet during the fire's peak.

Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said firemen fought the blaze for nearly three hours thinking it was a diesel fuel fire fed by the tractor's full 60-gallon tanks. After repeatedly trying to smother the fire with foam, however, it was decided to call in Pacific Gas and Electric Co. workers.

PG&E CALLED

At 8:23 p.m., firemen said, PG&E was called and an inspector was dispatched to the scene, arriving at 8:55 p.m. Donald L. Johnson, PG&E's Marin district manager, said the emergency crew on duty was on another job and a backup crew had to be called from home.

PG&E repairmen finally arrived at about 9:45 p.m., more than four hours after the fire started, according to sheriff's deputies on the scene.

Johnson said the crew was hampered in locating and closing the two-inch pipe because much of the area was under water. Finally, he said, a sand dam was built to divert water and allow them to dig down to the pipe.

NO ESTIMATE

He said it would be several days before it could be determined how much gas escaped from the pipe or what the utility company's dollar damage totaled.

The house under construction at the site, being built by Robert Toquinto of San Rafael, was not damaged. No homes in the area were threatened, although the long fire was a source of concern to residents.

Collegian Dies From Auto Crash

A College of Marin student died yesterday in Placer County Hospital in Auburn as a result of injuries suffered Sunday in an auto accident while en route home from a tobogganing trip to the Sierra.

He was William D. Berlew Jr., 21, of Residence 4, San Quentin, whose father is a correctional officer at the prison.

Berlew was a passenger in a car driven by Mary Bettencourt, 19, of 187 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, which crashed near Baxter. Miss Bettencourt, who suffered a pelvic fracture in the accident, was transferred yesterday from the Auburn hospital to Ross General Hospital, where her condition was described today as satisfactory.

The California Highway Patrol said their car left Highway 80 while rounding a slight curve and plunged into a deep culvert. The crash happened about 11 p.m. and officers believed Miss Bettencourt fell asleep while driving.

Berlew was a first-year student at the college, majoring in business administration. He was a 1966 graduate of San Rafael High School and an Air Force veteran.

Born in Berkeley, he was a resident of Marin 18 years.

Surviving are his parents, William D. and Helen A. Berlew, with whom he lived.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the chapel of Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Marinite Is Killed In Viet Action

Army S/Sgt. Gernot Bender of San Anselmo was killed in Vietnam last Tuesday, one month after he left his job as operations sergeant and part-time instructor at the University of San Francisco's Department of Military Science.

Bender, 34, was assigned to the Fourth Cavalry Squadron, 25th Infantry Division. He was the 26th Marinite to die in action in Vietnam.

Details of his death and the location in Vietnam were not available today.

Born in Brazil of German parentage, Sgt. Bender joined the ROTC staff at the university in February 1967. He was a part-time student, studying at night for his bachelor's degree in history at the university.

Bender enlisted in the Army in 1957 and had served six years in Germany before coming to Marin County to reside at 24 Durham Road, San Anselmo.

He is survived by his wife, Uta; a daughter, Arline, and two sons, Clyde and Kevin. He is also survived by his parents who live in Germany.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Marin Will Join Day Of Mourning

Marin County offices, including courts and city and school district offices, will be closed Monday in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Banks will remain open throughout the county, although savings and loans will close. Post offices will be closed, and only special deliveries will be made.

The San Rafael office of the state Department of Employment at 805 E Street will be closed, as will other state and federal offices. State employment officials said that claimants with appointments scheduled Monday should come to the office Tuesday.

Most businesses will be open in San Rafael, the chamber of commerce reported.

Fred F. Enemark, chief executive officer of the Marin County Savings and Loan Association, reported that all savings and loans in Marin said they will be closed.

Almost every municipality decided to close its offices on Monday. Mill Valley was the only one not definite as of this morning, but City Mgr. Bert Balmer said that community will probably follow suit if all other cities are closing.

Hamilton Air Force Base will be shut down except for flight services.

City offices in Petaluma, Cotati and Rohnert Park will also be closed on Monday. Mayor Helen Putnam of Petaluma and city Boy Scouts hoped to hold a flag-raising ceremony Monday, but plans were incomplete. The Boy Scouts in Petaluma have a flag that was flown over the White House when Ike was president.

Eisenhower's Three-Day State Funeral Begins At Cathedral

Private Family Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The knell of a mighty cathedral bell saddened the Washington springtime today. The three-day state funeral of Dwight David Eisenhower had begun.

With crisp military precision and a minimum of ceremony, the body of the 34th president of the United States was received into the stately National Cathedral.

There, in the secluded Bethlehem Chapel, the flag-shrouded coffin will rest, to be viewed by thousands of mourners, until tomorrow afternoon.

Eleven enlisted men bore the body in slow cadence from a midnight-blue hearse through a portal with the carved inscription "The Way of Peace."

COMPOSED, TEARLESS

Composed, tearless, the general's widow and companion of more than half a century, Mamie, stood erect at the arm of her son, John Eisenhower. A veil covered her face. Once, her son patted her black-gloved hand. As always, she wore pearls.

Before her stood an honor guard that included some of the famed warriors of modern military history. The late president's West Point classmate, Gen. Omar Bradley, was there with Adm. Arthur W. Radford, Gen. Lauris Norstad, other military leaders, the two surviving Eisenhower brothers, and his enlisted aide, an Army sergeant.

About 600 persons stood quietly by to await the end of the private 20-minute service. The chapel doors were opened shortly after noon, when the public—many of them tourists—was admitted in small groups.

CROWD SWELLS

An hour later, the crowd had swelled to about 2,000.

Only the family, honor guard, and pallbearers were present for the brief service in which the cathedral received the body.

Rev. Francis B. Sayre, dean of the cathedral and grandson of President Woodrow Wilson, whose body lies in a nearby crypt, said a prayer he wrote especially for General Eisenhower:

"Accept, O Lord, the love and respect in the hearts of all those who come to this place, comforting their sorrow and blessing their thanksgiving.

"Gather them anew to the fellowship of this nation, that our trust may ever be in Thee, and our strength founded upon Thy glory. Cherish, Lord, Thy people, and keep them this day and ever more."

Two other prayers were read from the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer.

LEAVES CATHEDRAL

When it was over, the family walked from the chapel and entered limousines—Mrs. Eisenhower in a car with a license plate bearing the initials DDE—for undisclosed locations.

First in line when the doors were opened to the public was an Army widow. Mrs. Ray Coleman, whose husband had been a colonel, said she was 78—"as old as Ike."

Entering the austere chamber, mourners filing behind a felt rope saw the bier, lying between rows of 10 pillars, surrounded by an honor guard representing each of the five services.

The five enlisted men in dress

Brakes Fail, Auto Into Firehouse

A San Rafael saleswoman drove her car into the San Rafael firehouse at Fifth Avenue and C Street yesterday when the brakes on her car failed, police said.

Irma Irene La Londe, 42, of 1539 Lincoln Avenue, who works for the Fuller Brush Co., told Officers David Jones and Scott Nelson she noticed her brakes were bad while driving through San Anselmo and had brake fluid added.

In front of the fire station, she tried to stop behind a line of cars but the brakes failed to hold. She veered right and drove along the sidewalk for a short distance, then fearing she might hit a pedestrian, aimed the car at the firehouse.

The auto pushed in the wall about a foot and rammed a desk in the fire prevention office. No one was in the office at the time, about 4:20 p.m., but the thundering crash brought a half dozen startled firemen dashing out of the firehouse.

Mrs. La Londe was not hurt.

King Memorial Is Slated Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Memorial services for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., slain civil rights activist will be held in the Washington Cathedral tomorrow about an hour after the body of President Dwight D. Eisenhower is taken from the Cathedral to the Capitol.

Members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which King headed when he was assassinated April 4, 1968, are sponsoring the services.

CAPITOL ROTUNDA TRIBUTE

Thousands Will Say Farewell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower will be the eighth president to lie in state beneath the dome that forms the huge circular hall called the Rotunda at the heart of the Capitol.

The first was Abraham Lincoln, less than two years after the dome was completed in 1863, and the caskets of all the honored dead since then have rested on the same simple wooden bier.

Besides presidents, past rotunda ceremonies have honored war heroes, members of Congress, a vice president and the French-born engineer who laid out the city of Washington—19 in all.

Normally a bright , bustling place echoing to the noise of the thousands of tourists who push through it each day, the Rotunda takes on the solemn air of a cathedral on the occasion of state funerals.

Its vaulted roof rises 180 feet in the air, topped by a patch of ceiling from which the glorified figure of George Washington, painted in draped robes and surrounded by allegorical figures, peers down as if from a cloud.

The walls at the base are part of the original central structure built after the British burned the Capitol in 1814. The Marquis de Lafayette, a living hero, was honored in the first Rotunda ceremony in 1824.

During the Civil War, while the great cast iron dome was being put in place, northern troops camped out in the Rotunda, as they did in all parts of the Capitol. They called it "the big tent."

The first three presidents to lie in state there were the victims of assassins—Lincoln in 1865, James A. Garfield in 1881 and William McKinley in 1901. A fourth was John F. Kennedy, in 1963.

Other presidents who lay in state there were Warren G. Harding in 1923, William Howard Taft in 1930 and Herbert Hoover in 1964.

While the fierce passions aroused by the Civil War still blazed, Congress honored two of its most ardent antislavery members with state funerals in the Rotunda, Rep. Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania in 1868 and Sen. Charles Sumner of Massachusetts in 1874.

The only other member of Congress to lie in state in the Rotunda was Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, whose funeral

Blessing of Palms, Other Rites To Open Holy Week

". . . When they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him and cried, Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord."

With these two verses from the gospel according to St. John setting the scene, churches in Marin will begin a week of services tomorrow, climaxing with Easter next Sunday.

Events of Plam Sunday tomorrow will include traditional blessing of the palms, Holy Communion and special music.

As in the past a spirit of ecumenicism will prevail throughout the week in Marin with many churches gathering for joint Maundy Thursday and Good Friday services.

Of special interest on Good Friday will be memorial service at 1 p.m. at the First Missionary Baptist Church in Marin City in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who was assassinated last April 4. Participating churches will be St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, Village Baptist Church, Church of God and the host church, all of Marin City.

In San Rafael, St. Paul's Episcopal Church will host a 12 noon to 3 p.m. ecumenical service on Good Friday. The First Presbyterian and First Methodist churches of San Rafael.

Churches in the Marinwood, Terra Linda and Lucas Valley areas will also gather on Good Friday for a 5:30 a.m. service at Terra Linda Hill behind the Aldersgate Methodist Church.

Also in the afternoon, a joint 90-minute service is planned at St. Isabella's Catholic Church in Terra Linda, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

"The Seven Last Words of Christ Spoken From the Cross, will be the theme of a six-church Good Friday service at the San Rafael Improvement Club, Fifth and H streets with the Evangelical Free Church,

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Papal Household Ex-Priest Weds

ROME (AP) — Former Msgr. Giovanni Musante, the closest prelate to the Pope to quit the priesthood, was married today in a Rome church.

Musante

Musante, 49, formerly 11th ranked in the papal household, left the priesthood after more than 25 years as a prelate. His bride was Giovanna Carlevaro, 37.

The ceremony was performed in Rome's 15th Century Santa Maria Della Pace church which was quietly reopened for the occasion. The church is usually closed to the public.

Musante's case caused a furor in the Vatican.

When the news was leaked out to the press one month ago, Vatican prelates claimed he was mentally unbalanced and accused him of "sexual delirium."

Musante, a stocky, ruddy-faced man, denied the accusations, saying he was a normal man.

Alcohol Attack

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Communist Party newspaper Pravda calling alcoholism Russia's major social evil, said nation's murders, 40 per cent of the divorces and more than half of all accidents in the past year.

Reports Brief

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet newspapers published today very brief reports of the death of former President Dwight Eisenhower without any accompanying comment.

The official Communist Party newspaper Pravda put the one-sentence report from Tass, the Soviet News agency on page five, its foreign news page.

$300,000 Tag?

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon's 12-room New York apartment, purchased in 1963 for $135,000, is up for sale. Real estate agents estimate it may fetch as much as $300,000.

A spokesman for the company that manages the cooperative apartment building at 810 Fifth Ave. confirmed the apartment was on the market.

Ecumenical Talks

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI and seven American Protestant leaders discussed ecumenical cooperation between Protestants and Roman Catholics in the United States for 45 minutes yesterday.

Hospital Strike

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Eight hundred striking doctors and nurses left the 3,000 inmates of the Bernardo Etchepare Mental Hospital without care today.

Parade Theme

PASADENA (AP) — "Holidays Around the World" will be the theme of the 81st annual Tournament of Roses preceding the Rose Bowl football game, officials announced yesterday. Flower garnished floats in the nationally televised parade Jan. 1 will illustrate the theme.

U.N. Debate On Mideast Is Stalled

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A behind-the-scenes deadlock delayed the U.N. Security Council today as it sought to finish debate on an Israeli air raid into Jordan before Big Four talks on the Middle East open this week.

Council delegates said the African and Asian members had proposed that the council condemn Israel for the raid. The United States had counterproposed that it also rap "other acts of violence" and the resulting standoff was likely to run the debate over to Tuesday.

Neither side had yet submitted a formal resolution, and consultations on the form it should take held up the resumption of the debate in its third day.

The council had been called into session urgently on Thursday, the day after Israeli jet planes killed 18 people in a raid on the Jordanian village of Ein Hazar, near the town of Salt.

Diplomatic sources said Soviet, U.S., British and French U.N. ambassadors would meet in New York Thursday to start talks on how to settle the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

But in Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Egypt has already rejected a U.S. proposal for peace submitted to the other three powers in preparation for the meeting.

The newspaper said Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad told U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring the U.S. proposal did not conform with a Security Council resolution on peace passed in 1967. Al Ahram did not elaborate.

The U.S. plan is understood to have called for the Arabs and Israel to reach a voluntary, contractual peace agreement.

The Big Four meetings are expected to continue for several months at the countries' missions in New York. Preliminary bilateral talks started Feb. 11.

The Security Council is considering a Jordanian resolution calling for condemnation of Israel for an air raid on the town of Salt in which 18 persons were killed.

Jordan charged Israeli planes hit civilian targets in a deliberate attempt to head off Big Four talks. Israel said the planes struck at bases of Al Fatah, an Arab guerrilla organization.

Before the council adjourned yesterday, U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost said it should condemn not only "the immediate acts of violence" but also "all other acts of violence" in the Middle East.

He said that would "best preserve a spirit of partiality and conciliation" conducive to the success of "efforts about to be renewed with fresh vigor to bring about at last a peaceful settlement."

Round No. 2 Brings Lighter GI Sentences

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (UPI)—An Army court-martial board yesterday sentenced four GIs to sentences ranging from nine months to six years for participating in last October's sit-down strike at the San Francisco Presidio.

The sentences were lighter than those given in four previous convictions in connection with the demonstration. Three of the first four drew sentences of from 14 to 16 years and the other received a four-year term.

Mutiny, which was described during the trial as the most serious crime in military law, carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

The trial was moved here from San Francisco after the Army agreed to defense assertions that antimilitary sentiment in the Bay Area might prejudice the verdict against the defendant. In contrast to the proceedings in San Francisco, not a single antiwar demonstrator showed up here.

Twenty-seven soldiers originally were charged with taking part in the protest. Three have escaped and are reported in Canada. One is ill and one is undergoing psychiatric tests. The remaining 14 go on trial April 7 at Fort Ord.

Pvt. Edward O. Yost, 23, Elmira, Solano County, received the lightest term yesterday. He was sentenced to nine months at hard labor and a bad conduct discharge.

In addition to dishonorable discharges and forfeiture of all pay and allowances, the men received the following sentences: William H. Hayes, 22, Healdsburg, two years at hard labor; Harold J. Swanson, 19, San Leandro, three years at hard labor, and Ricky L. Dodd, 21, Hayward, six years at hard labor.

Scholar Attacks Pentagon For Fostering Missile Gaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — An arms control specialist says the Defense Department "has created, encouraged and fostered" three missile-gap scares since 1960 in order to increase its own arsenal.

Jeremy F. Stone, a visiting scholar in economics at Stanford University, told a conference of congressional military critics yesterday the department "has become an inventor and a merchandiser of exaggerated fears. It has become an unscrupulous lobbyist for the weapons to answer those fears."

As a result, he said, Russia has been spurred to a similar weapons buildup and the arms race put on a permanent footing.

His charge was part of a barrage of criticism aimed at the Pentagon by a group of scholars and scientists assembled for the two-day meeting here. It is intended to give the sponsoring congressmen information to enable them to take a more active role in setting military policy.

The Pentagon also came under criticism from another quarter yesterday when Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said one defense official had raised "a very serious question of credibility."

During a disarmament subcommittee hearing on the proposed Safeguard antimissile system, he accused the department of conducting a superficial and self-serving review of the system designed to disarm critics.

And Fulbright accused Deputy Secretary of Defense David R. Packard of falsely leaving the impression he had consulted fully with Dr. Wolfgang K. H. Panofsky, a Stanford radar specialist, before recommending deployment of Safeguard.

Panofsky told the subcommittee their meeting was a brief chance encounter in the San Francisco Airport three weeks ago, during which he said he was not necessarily opposed to an antimissile system but thought Safeguard was the wrong approach.

Decision Soon On Dock Tieup

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A decision is expected early next week on a request for an order requiring longshoremen to handle cargo including substantial amounts of food for Hawaii.

Prepackaged cargo containers have been left on West Coast docks since March 17 in a dispute between the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Teamsters' over work jurisdiction.

The only food moving to the islands has been frozen, in refrigerated containers. Perishables and other commodites remained behind.

Enemy Rockets Hurled Into Allied Camps

SAIGON (UPI)—The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese closed out the fifth week of their nationwide offensive with 15 barrages into allied military camps today and tried to overrun a U.S. outpost in the Central Highlands.

U.S. military spokesmen said the number of shellings was the lowest in 11 days and reported no towns or cities hit. But the level of ground fighting was high, with battles from Saigon's suburbs to the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

MORTAR ROUNDS

The guerrillas opened up with 50 mortar rounds before dawn against a U.S. Central Highlands outpost and then charged into the perimeter wire before American troops and gunships drove them back. Two Americans were killed and 25 wounded but no Communist bodies were found, U.S. headquarters said.

Among the major American bases targeted for overnight rocket attacks was the air base at Bien Hoa, a Saigon suburb, from where U.S. warplanes scramble to support allied troops in battle defending the capital. Damage there was described as light.

GRAVES FOUND

Meanwhile hundreds of peasants yesterday dug up a grisly reminder of the 1968 Tet offensive — the bodies of 67 relatives executed with hands tied behind their backs.

The victims, decomposed beyond recognition, were discovered in trenches running through an uninhabited expanse of sandy flatlands 10 miles east of Hue. Province officials said hundreds more may be buried in the mass grave.

Gas Chamber For Sirhan Questioned

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The prosecution's chief psychiatrist in the Sirhan murder trial believes the young Arab premeditated the killing of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy but still has stated he feels the gas chamber is too severe a penalty.

Dr. Seymour Pollack, a professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, told the jury yesterday Sirhan B. Sirhan was mentally ill, but also said his motives were political.

The key to life or death sentence for Sirhan lies largely in whether the jury can be convinced he "meaningfully and maturely" planned Kennedy's assassination.

Pollack believes he had that ability. But the psychiatrist also wrote in a preliminary report that he is a paranoid and should not be sentenced to death.

The trial was in recess until Tuesday—Monday being a day of mourning for former President Eisenhower.

Pollack will be on the stand probably two more days. It is now considered likely the case will not go to the jury until the Monday after Easter.

82nd Inmate To Death Row

REDWOOD CITY — Zachary Lillard, 34, convicted of murdering a San Mateo police officer, was sentenced yesterday to die in the San Quentin Prison gas chamber.

In imposing the death penalty, Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn carried out the penalty verdict reached by the same jury that found Lillard guilty of killing Sgt. Gordon Joinville during a narcotics investigation.

Lillard was brought from San Quentin for the formal sentencing. He will join 81 other men on Death Row.

ONLY BRADLEY NOW LEFT IN ELITE CORPS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only Gen. Omar Bradley is left of the nine men who have worn the five stars of the nation's top military rank.

Bradley, 76, won his fifth star during the Korean War, although he was a top military commander during World War II when most of the others were accorded the rank. He now lives in Beverly Hills and said yesterday he plans to attend Eisenhower's funeral.

Besides Bradley and Dwight D. Eisenhower, the circle of stars was worn by Douglas MacArthur and George C. Marshall of the Army; Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, commander of the Army Air Corps in World War II, and Navy admirals Chester W. Nimitz, Ernest J. King, William D. Leahy and William F. (Bull) Halsey.

John J. Pershing, who led U.S. forces in World War I, was authorized six stars but wore only four.

Stabbing In Dorm Leads To Rampage

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP) — Authorities said rampaging students set three wooden buildings on fire after a football player was stabbed and killed today at Prairie View A&M College.

Sheriff Jimmie Whitworth said gang fighting broke out between athletes and non-athletes after the slaying at the Negro school 40 miles northwest of Houston. About 100 students were involved.

Texas Rangers and state highway patrolmen were summoned to reinforce sheriff's officers.

Wesley Davidson, 20, was stabbed to death in a dormitory for athletes about midnight.

An unnamed student accused of killing him was still sought hours later.

By daylight, Sheriff Whitworth reported the students were dispersed and "it looks like things are in good shape now."

The fires damaged older frame buildings on the Prairie View campus, which is seven miles east of Hempstead, the narest town. State police estimated the property loss at $40,000.

'Oakland 7' Cleared By Jury Of Charges

OAKLAND (UPI) — An eight-man, four-women jury last night found the "Oakland Seven," a group of Bay Area antiwar leaders who had become a cause celebre among the radical left, innocent of conspiracy charges.

The seven were charged with fomenting the massive demonstrations and ensuing riots that took place at the Oakland armed forces induction center during the Stop the Draft week protests of October 1967.

Following three days of deliberations, the jury returned its decision at 10:24 p.m.

The more than 40 supporters of the seven who packed the Oakland court room broke into cheers and rushed to congratulate the smiling dissidents, causing Superior Court Judge George W. Phillips Jr. to demand order.

Specifically, the defendants were charged with the felony of conspiring to have others commit acts of trespassing and obstructing police, both misdemeanors. If convicted, each would have received a maximum sentence of three years in jail and a fine of $5,000.

The jury began deliberating at 11 a.m. Wednesday after a trial that lasted nearly eight weeks and ended with closing arguments by both sides that lasted 16 hours.

Defense attorney Charles R. Garry, a colorful lawyer who dabbed at his tear-filled eyes and quoted the line from the inscription on the Statue of Liberty—"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses" — in his summation, maintained that the defendants were singled out from among thousands of demonstrators for prosecution because of their prior political activities.

Prosecutor Lowell Jensen disputed defense claims that the seven were protected from prosecution by the First Amendment and attacked Garry's stand that the defendants had a moral duty to fight the draft and the Vietnam War.

In addition to Mandel, 23, the defendants included Frank Bardacke, 26, Terence Cannon, 29, Feese Erlich, 21, Steve Hamilton, 23, Michael J. Smith, 27, formerly of Corte Madera, and Jeff Segal, 26, who already is behind bars for refusing to report for the draft.

Higher Church Insurance Asked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 50 per cent increase in fire insurance premiums on California churches was recommended yesterday by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, which sets guidelines for individual companies.

During a five-year period ending in 1967, insurors paid out $7.4 million for church fires while collecting $4.9 million in premiums, said a spokesman.

There was no statistical evidence that social unrest was a major factor in church fire losses, but there might be a relation "especially in churches used for meetings on social issues," said a spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute.

The rating bureau earlier recommended a 40 per cent rise in fire insurance rates for California schools, placing the blame on arson and campus violence.

Khan Eases Martial Law In Pakistan

KARACI (UPI)—Gen. Yahya Khan eased his tough martial law decree today for street parades marking the Moslem holiday of Muhurram, in memory of a 14th Century martyr.

Moslems in every major Pakistani city took to the streets behind traditional battle shields in mourning for Hazrat Imam, who is said to have died on the battlefield in Arabia 600 years ago defending truth and justice.

The celebration is the highlight of the first 10 days of the Moslem year.

Pakistan's new ruler, Gen. Khan, ordered permits issued for the religious parades—the first permission his tough regime has given for public gatherings under martial law.

Yesterday, Khan's military administration announced concessions of sorts to the workers and students whose strikes and riots led to the downfall of former President Mohammad Ayub Khan.

YOUR DOWNTOWN DEALER Cor. 4th & E, San Rafael

The cold facts about buying a swimming pool in March.

1. You save cold cash—up to 20 per cent on fully-equipped pools with Anthony's off-season March discounts. You can actually get an Anthony pool for as little as $2,495.* How low can you get?

2. Your payments are frozen till May and payments can be as little as $10.00 a week. And with your good credit there's no down payment.

3. To break the ice during March, Anthony gives you, with a heated pool, its exclusive Fun Spa absolutely free. The Fun Spa turns one corner of your pool into a miniature bubbling "warm springs".

4. Because of more relaxed winter schedules, March construction crews give you highest quality.

5. March pool construction insures that the area surrounding the pool can be fully improved and landscaped in time for summer swimming.

6. March air may be chilling but when your pool is heated between 80 and 90 degrees with the exclusive Anthony heater—it's a warm and wonderful pleasure.

7. Biggest March advantages apply always. Since Anthony is the world's largest pool builder, you get the advantage of vast engineering experience and, because of Anthony's volume business, lower prices. Most important—the Anthony guarantee also holds water. Phone the sales office nearest you. If you're out of area, call collect. Or fill out coupon.

*Slightly higher in some areas.  On approved credit.

FIRE THAT WOULDN'T DIE

Youths Booked In Drug Probe

Two San Rafael youths, 13 and 17, were booked into Marin Juvenile Hall yesterday on suspicion of being under the influence of drugs.

They were among six passengers in a car, driven by a 17-year-old San Rafael youth, which was stopped by San Rafael Patrolman Donald Rose on the southbound on-ramp to Highway 101 about 9:30 yesterday morning.

Rose also cited the driver for having alcoholic beverages in the car. The officer said he found beer, a half gallon of wine and substance that appeared to be marijuana in the car.

The other youths, all under 18, were released.

Two Injured In Auto Crash

Two men were treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday after their car flipped over on Lucas Valley Road about 3 p.m.

Ronald Orman Mathews, 21, 1075 Las Pavadas Avenue, San Rafael, driver of the car, was treated for a cut chin, and James W. Branch, 21, of Redding, a passenger, for scrapes on his right arm and face.

The California Highway Patrol reported Mathews told them he braked to avoid hitting a rabbit, started skidding, went over the shoulder and rolled down an embankment.

Woman Reports Attack At Pool

A 19-year-old San Francisco girl, who undressed to take a dip in a shallow pool in the Rock Springs area of Mount Tamalpais Thursday afternoon, was raped by a man who emerged from bushes and grabbed her, sheriff's deputies reported today.

The man, about 30 and five feet, 10 inches tall, then stole her cigarettes and disappeared, she told officers.

The girl said she and several friends had been camping in the area. She wandered off alone and began bathing in a shallow pool.

The attacker threatened to drown her if she resisted. The girl's companions said they saw a man leave the area in a white car with a black vinyl top.

Burglar Steals Radio, Coins

A burglar stole a transistor radio worth $100 and $105 in coins from an apartment in Sausalito, the victim reported to sheriff's deputies yesterday.

T. F. Burke, 48, Apartment 128, 1 Eden Roc, said he had been away since Monday. There were no pry marks on the door or windows to indicate how the thief had entered.

On Thursday afternoon, a San Rafael resident reported a $670 burglary at his home. Stanley W. DeGreeve of 20 Brushwood Lane said a portable television, tape recorder, and several rings were missing.

Police said the burglar probably slipped the lock on the kitchen door.

Mill Valleyan Is Hurt In Accident

Sylvia Dahl Myers, 41, of 621 Eucalyptus Way, Mill Valley, suffered facial bruises about 4 p.m. yesterday when her car crashed into another in Terra Linda.

The mishap occurred at Northgate Drive and Las Gallinas Avenue. The other driver, Ronald Joseph Sabaca, 26, of 69 Mitchell Boulevard, Terra Linda, was stopped at the intersection, headed south on Northgate Drive, when the other car rammed his vehicle from behind, police said.

The University of Northern Iowa has had only five presidents in its 92 years of existence.

Seven Perish In New Jersey Fire

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Seven persons died early today in a fire that swept through a three-story commercial and apartment building.

Plainfield fire officials said only two of the victims were immediately identified: Louis Gonzalez, a resident of the building, and his daughter Rosa, 3. Another Gonzalez child, 4-month-old Raymond, was in fair condition with burns at Muhlenberg Hospital.

A man, an infant girl and a woman were among the other victims. Officials said the remaining two victims were too badly burned to identify them by sex.

One Person Killed In Refinery Blaze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Firemen say a spark of static electricity from a truck may have touched off explosions yesterday that killed a truck driver and burned more than 50 persons in a million-dollar oil refinery fire.

ROTUNDA

service was held there in 1953.

Henry Wilson, vice president during Ulysses S. Grant's second term, died suddenly in the Capitol in 1874 and was given a state funeral.

The nation has paid final tribute to four war heroes in Rotunda ceremonies—Gen. John A. Logan in 1886; Adm. George Dewey in 1917; Gen. John J. Pershing in 1948, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur in 1964.

In addition, unknown soldiers from the two World Wars and the Korean War lay in state there.

The only other person given such an honor was Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who planned the capital city, and in his case it was belated recognition. In 1909, 84 years after his death, his body was removed from its burial place on a nearby farm and reinterred at Arlington National Cemetery after lying in state in the Rotunda.

The builders of the Capitol and the early Congresses had hoped the Rotunda would mark the final resting spot of George Washington, but Washington's family carried out the wish, written in his will, that he be buried in Mount Vernon.

Coroner Says Girl's Death Due To Drugs

The death of Willeen Harper, 16-year-old San Francisco girl who died in a Corte Madera motel March 1, was due to three drugs — methamphetamine, amphetamine and morphine — Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, Marin County coroner, said yesterday.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said his office is still investigating the circumstances of the girl's death. No new charges have been filed against the three young men who were with her at the Meadowsweet Motel.

The youths, William John Helms, 20, of San Anselmo; Curtis Lynn Ross, 18, of San Quentin, and Stephen Carl Ellsworth, 20, of San Rafael, are awaiting trial in Municipal Court on misdemeanor charges of being under the influence of narcotics. Their trial is set for April 22.

Drunken Driving Suspect Booked

A member of the Marin sheriff's marine patrol was booked today on suspicion of drunken driving after his car flattened a parking meter on Fifth Avenue and scraped the Independent-Journal building.

San Rafael Police Sgt. Phillip Green arrested James Ray Walker, 45, of 183 Mark Twain Lane, San Rafael, shortly after 6 a.m. Green said Walker drove away from the scene and was caught in the 1500 block of Second Street. The officer said paint marks on the meter pole matched the paint of Walker's car.

Walker operates a wheel alignment service on Irwin Street. He was released from County Jail on $360 bail.

Racing Tires Stolen

Two racing tires, valued at $100, and 15 quarts of motor oil were stolen from Demore's Texaco Service Station at 601 4th Street overnight Thursday, San Rafael police reported.

POLE SHEARED, TWO HURT

San Rafael Patrolman L. J. Ahern inspects damage after this white sport car left the road in front of 248 Linden Lane about 3 p.m. yesterday and snapped a utility pole. The driver, James L. Olson, 22, suffered head cuts; his passenger, Wilber E. Mitchener, 24, hand and arm bruises. Both were treated at Marin General Hospital. The pair is stationed at Two Rock Army Base near Petaluma.

ESCORTED BY SON — Mrs. Mamie Eisenhower, widow of the former president, is escorted by her son, John, into Washington National Cathedral for this morning's private family service. (AP Wirephoto)

Three-Day State Rites Begin For Eisenhower

uniform, standing guard around the closed coffin in half-hour shifts, remained at attention. Only the sound of shuffling feet could be heard.

Close by is the crypt containing the body of the hero of Manila Bay, Adm. George Dewey. Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull also is buried in the cathedral, a massive, soaring structure at the crest of a hill where Massachusetts and Wisconsin avenues intersect. The White House is about two miles away.

General Eisenhower, it was said, had chosen the Episcopal cathedral although he was a Presbyterian — because of the resemblance of its tower to that of the chapel at West Point.

The public passed through the chapel for 45 minutes at a time. For 15 minutes every hour, it was closed to all but family and friends of the five-star general.

The relatively quiet beginning to three days of funeral pageantry went off with military efficiency the general would have admired. In the language of the Military District of Washington's three-year-old funeral plan, this was "D plus 1." (D is for demise.)

Yesterday, when he died at 12:25 p.m., was termed D-Day—just like the sixth day of June 1944, when Eisenhower thrust a mighty allied force across the English Channel into the European continent, marking the beginning of the end of World War II.

As the humble said farewell in the little chapel, the mighty of the world prepared to pay their own tribute by attending the principal funeral service Monday.

That will be in the main cathedral. The body will be returned there after lying in state in the Capitol Rotunda tomorrow, following a grand procession along Constitution Avenue.

For the fourth time in five years a riderless horse in funeral trappings, boots reversed in the saddle, will follow an artillery caisson bearing a dead American to Capitol Hill.

French President Charles de Gaulle, a comrade in arms to Eisenhower during the war, heads the list of foreign dignitaries who will attend. It will be his first visit to the United States since November 1963, when he came for the funeral of President John F. Kennedy.

The procession will take place amidst the flourishes of martial music, the sonorous sound of muffled drums.

After the Monday afternoon service, the body will be placed aboard a special 12-car train at Union Station for the 30-hour journey west to the boyhood home and Eisenhower Center at Abilene, Kan.

Eisenhower will be buried Wednesday in the chapel of the library near his son, Doud, who died in childhood.

Contrary to some expectations —and at the family's wishes— the last train ride home is not planned to be a public spectacle.

Unlike the slow train that bore Abraham Lincoln to Springfield in 1865, or the one that carried Robert F. Kennedy from New York to Washington one nightmarish afternoon last June, the Eisenhower train will move at a 50-mile-an-hour clip.

The few stops will be brief and functional: 10-minute halts in Charlottesville, Va., White Sulphur Springs and Huntington, W.Va., and Washington, Ind.; an hour for washing and changing tracks in Cincinnati, and a longer stop in St. Louis to switch to Norfolk-Western lines for the final push westward.

Even these details were pieced together from railroad officials. The Army—adhering to family wishes—said it would not make the rail itinerary public.

The train is scheduled to arrive in Abilene about midnight Tuesday.

As the ceremonies began today, President Nixon remained in seclusion at Camp David, Md., preparing the eulogy he will deliver tomorrow in the Capitol Rotunda.

Soviet Airline Office Hit By Angry Czechs

VIENNA (AP) — Eyewitnesses reported angry Czechoslovaks ransacked the office of the Soviet airline Aeroflot on Wenceslas Square in Prague early this morning chanting "Russians go home."

The informants said documents and pieces of furniture were thrown out of the office and burned. Czechoslovak police at first took no action but later demanded that the demonstrators disperse. There were no reports of any arrests.

The eyewitnesses said the crowd chanted "Ivan go home" and "for August," referring to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia last August. They said persons who stormed the Aeroflot office were part of a huge crowd estimated at more than 100,000 that gathered in Prague's main square after the Czechoslovaks defeated the Soviets at the ice hockey world championships in Stockholm last night.

Notice Sent On Meeting

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting that no public notice was given for Thursday's workshop session of the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee.

The notice, however, was delivered to the press room at the Marin Civic Center on Wednesday afternoon — too late for publication in Wednesday's paper. The meeting was held Thursday morning.

The committee was warned recently about conducting unannounced meetings, in violation of the Ralph M. Brown Act.

Tactical Squadron Leader Will Speak

Lt. James Curran, commanding officer of the San Francisco Police Department's tactical unit, will speak at the San Rafael Rotary Club's luncheon at the West End Villa Monday at 12:15 p.m.

Curran, a native of San Rafael, has been with the San Francisco police for 22 years.

To Juvenile Court

The case of David A. Bushman, 18, of Novato, accused of posssessing marijuana and narcotics paraphernalia on March 5, has been referred to Juvenile Court, it was reported yesterday in Marin Municipal Court.

EDWARD ABRAHAM

Edward Frederick Abraham, 87, a retired merchant seaman, died at a Novato convalescent hospital yesterday after a long illness.

Abraham, who lived at 116 Harbor Drive, Black Point, died of natural causes, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan. An autopsy was pending at Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato.

Abraham had lived in Marin County for 22 years. He is survived by a daughter, Stella E. Harlan, of Boise, Idaho.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete today.

HILDA ROUVALI

Funeral for Hilda Toivonen Rouvali, mother of Arvo Toivonen of Mill Valley, will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Daphne Funeral Home, San Francisco.

Mrs. Rouvali died Wednesday at a local convalescent home after a long illness.

A native of Finland, she had lived in the United States since about 1920. She had lived in Marin, in a convalescent home, for about two years, coming here from San Francisco.

KATE WICHELS

Kate Campbell Wichels of Napa, a sister of Anna Hoffmann of San Anselmo, died yesterday in a Bay Area hospital following a short illness.

She was the wife of John Wichels, retired electrical foreman for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., and she and her husband had lived in Napa most of their married life, since 1924.

Besides her husband and sister, she is survived by a brother, Duncan M. Campbell of Napa.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Treadway and Wigger Funeral Chapel in Napa.

'You Folks Have It Easy' Writes Vietnam-Based Soldier

DEAR HELEN:

I know you don't often print poetry, but I think this letter from a Serviceman in Vietnam is worthy of your column. Please use it. — G.L.

JUST THINKING

You know last night while standing guard, I though I'd write a poem.
And tell it like it really is to all the folks back home.
You people read the papers and watch the TV shows,
But with all those many headlines, no one really knows. . . .
You hear about our battles, the enemies we kill,
But you've never seen a buddy fall while charging up a hill.
At home you walk down sidewalks or in a crowded mall,
But here we fight the jungle brush so thick we have to crawl.
And stateside, you have bridges built to go across the river.
But here in 'Nam we walk right in and when it's cold we shiver.
You've got air conditioners there, to cool your shop or den,
But over here it's so damn hot we think it's hell we're in.
At home you take your wife or girl, go out and dance all night.
But over here we stand our guard — often stiff with fright.
Have you ever looked around and seen the many things you've got?
Or stopped just once to think about the many things we've not?
You have cold beer and water. You have hot meals to eat.
Our rations on the front lines really aren't any treat.
And everyday you take a walk down life's easy path—
I'll bet you've never had to go a month without a bath!
To you a bath is water, hot enough to make it steam.
To us it's nothing more than jumping in a leech-infested stream!
Perhaps you have been scared enough to think the end was near.
But I'll bet you've never had to live a year in total fear.
You folks have got it easy compared to us across the sea,
But all any soldier asks of you is,
"Please remember me!"

— A LONELY SOLDIER

Men's Suits

If a man is less than an Adonis, should he reach for one of those elegantly shaped new spring suits in the stores? The answer—"Yes." The American Institute of Men's and Boy's Wear says so for this reason: although original efforts were aimed at the slim, trim, youthful figure, there now are similar looking styles for "the more mature man." These have been designed to accomodate a wider waistline—and disguise it a bit, too.

British Nurse Visits Marin

By JOAN LISETOR

"Marin County is so beautiful I cannot understand why it is not better known in Europe," says a British nurse, Doreen Joyce, who is spending a week studying conditions at Marin General Hospital.

"I was disappointed coming across the bridge from San Francisco, however," Miss Joyce says, "I had always thought the bridge was golden."

Doreen Joyce is a nursing officer, formerly called as assistant matron, of the Liverpool Royal Infirmary. Her job is comparable to that of an assistant director of nursing in U.S. hospitals. Her trip is sponsored by the Board of Governors of the United Liverpool Hospitals.

"I received the scholarship (trip) on the basis of a paper telling why I wanted to come to the U.S. and where I wanted to visit hospitals," the nurse explains. "I chose the cities of San Francisco, New York, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C."

The California portion of Miss Joyce's trip is arranged by Elizabeth Hill, the coordinator of foreign visitors programs for the California State Department of Public Health. Miss Hill selected Marin General Hospital for Miss Joyce's first week in California. Her next two weeks will be spent at Children's Hospital and the University of California Medical Center, both in San Francisco. Then she will go to Los Angeles, where she has a sister.

"I spent three weeks at three different hospitals in New York before coming here," Doreen explains. "And I must say I am impressed with the friendliness of the West over the East."

She arrived in San Francisco Sunday, a day ahead of schedule because she feared she would have the same trouble adjusting to the time change as she had between England and New York and wanted to give herself an extra day.

"I adjusted to the time change. It is only three hours, not six as between my home and the East Coast, but I was glad to have arrived early so I could spend the day sightseeing."

Her sightseeing in San Francisco included a cable car ride and a visit to Fishermen's Wharf. In Marin she toured Muir Woods before arriving at Marin General Hospital.

"I am so impressed with the personnel here (at Marin General). They are marvelously efficient and at the same time terribly compassionate. That is such an important combination when you are dealing with people," she says. "The people have been so pleasant, so welcoming."

Miss Joyce's primary nursing interest is coronary care and she feels Marin General was made a part of her itinerary because of its advanced heart care unit.

"In England we have nurses' costumes for little girls," Doreen says. "When I see little three and four-year-old girls I ask them if they have one and then I try to talk them into becoming nurses."

She says she is so happy in her profession and finds it so rewarding that she wants other people to be as happy as she is.

In addition to the warmth, efficiency and compassion of the staff at Marin General, Miss Joyce has been impressed with the concept of the volunteers. She says they have a few volunteers in some English hospitals but her hospital has not made as much use of outside help as is done here.

Following the three and one-half months of hospital observing, Doreen will take a month's holiday before returning to Liverpool. With her free time she will probably attend musical and ballet performances, do a bit of reading and meet as many people as possible.

SEW SIMPLE

Never Press On Right Side Of Fabric When Sewing

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I don't understand why some pressing is done with a steam iron and other pressing must be done with a press cloth.

MRS. B. E. R.

DEAR MRS. B. E. R.:

A steam iron can be used for basically all of your sewing when your garment is in production. Be sure to remember one very important fact, don't ever, ever press any part of your garment from the right side.

The purpose of a press cloth is for pressing the faced edges of coats and suits and it is used when pressing wool more than any other type of fabric. This is important because you need more heat and moisture to get a sharp look on the edges of a woolen garment. Dampen an area of your press cloth lightly, use a hot iron (not steam) and press with a little more pressure than normal. I usually prefer pressing any faced area twice, rather than getting it too moist the first time. Wool takes a long time to actually dry again and when it dries naturally, the sharpness of the pressed edges become rounded again. For this reason, you must pound the faced edges firmly after you remove the pressing cloth, with the lower, unpadded end of your pressing board.

MRS. HOYT A. TATUM, Nora Springs, Iowa, is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion:

"With everyone wearing pants for every occasion, I have found a simple way to get a straight crease if your slacks call for one.

"Stitch the side seams and the inside leg seam of each leg, do not stitch the center front or center back seam at this time. Fold the two seams together and press and you'll have a perfect crease which may be stitched if you desire (especially if you use a knitted fabric). I have also found that using a cloth that has been dipped in vinegar for pressing this crease, keeps it in more securely and longer.

"Lastly, stitch the crotch seam from front to back."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have discovered a very attractive pattern which is shown in a plaid that is cut on the bias. I have had such miserable luck with anything that is bias in the past. I am wondering if it actually matters if this dress is cut with the straight grain of the fabric? MRS. F. T. M.

DEAR MRS. F. T. M.:

Most patterns that are cut with the bias grain of the fabric are cut this way because of a particular "look" the designer is trying to create. These garments usually depend on the bias to bring them closer to the body instead of the usual darts.

We have had success occasionally in changing the grain line and the main clue seems to be the darts. If the pattern you are referring to has bust line darts as well as darts for fitting the waist and hips, it will probably work when you change the grain. If there are no visible signs of fitting darts. I don't think the garment will hang correctly or fit.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am about to lose my mind as well as my food budget, replacing buttons that have been lost on both my children's as well as my own double-breasted clothes.

Whether I make these clothes or buy them, it is always impossible to go back and match the original buttons, so in order to put the garment back into wearable condition, I am forced to purchase eight or ten or more buttons each time. Is there any real solution to double-breasted clothes that seem to have a jillion buttons on them?

MRS. M. M.

DEAR MRS. M. M.:

This is a question that comes up daily. Many times you will see a button missing when the garment is still in the store, before being purchased, and it is really a problem. When you make your own clothes, it would be wise to purchase an extra button, also, to check them frequently to see if they are about to come off. Are you using buttonhole twist for sewing buttons on, also, are you leaving enough give or shank to the button to prevent pulling off?

The coward's way out would be to remove one row of buttons entirely, and leave only the functional row that actually button. This would give you a very smart, off-side closing effect, which is very good today as far as fashion is concerned.

If a bound buttonhole is the answer for your creation — and you wish to know how — send for Mrs. Farmer's leaflet, "Bound Buttonholes," which is available to you free of charge. Include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request and mail to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

ON THE AGENDA

Christian Youth Exchangee To Tell Of Life In Indonesia

Marcie Thurston, daughter of Mrs. Doris Thurston of Mill Valley, will present a program at a meeting of Triple C (Community Church Club) of Mill Valley at noon on Wednesday. Marcie was the church's International Christian Youth Exchange student during 1967-68. She stayed with a Christian family including a doctor and his wife, seven of their 10 children, three grandchildren, and one other girl.

Marcie returned to the United States in June of 1968 and is a freshman at the University of California at Santa Cruz.

The International Christian Youth Exchange is administered in the United States by the National Council of Churches. Over 20 countries throughout the world are now participating. Applicants must be between the ages of 16 and 19.

Much of the money for Marcie's expenses was raised by Muir League, the Community Church high school youth group. The church also contributed funds.

The Triple C meeting will be held in the Parish Hall of the church. Members will bring sack lunches, and dessert and coffee or tea will be served by Mmes. Agnes Reed, Joel Gustafson and Grace Guest.

THE APRIL 3 meeting of the Outdoor Art Club's Literary Section, featuring an illustrated lecture on Europe by Mrs. Roger Verran, has been postponed to May 1 because of Easter week.

THE LADIES AUXILIARY to the Marin Barracks 550, Veterans of World War I is sponsoring a Purity Club party luncheon for men and women Thursday. The fund-raising event will be held at the San Rafael Recreation Center, Second and Brooks streets in San Rafael, beginning with hors d'oeuvres.

Committee members are Mmes. Alice Partridge, Gertrude Reed and Leah Jarrett.

THE MARIN COUNTY Family Development Center will sponsor encounter groups for both singles and couples for eight weeks starting April 3.

The meetings, on Tuesday or Thursday evenings at 8 p.m., will take place at 179 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael. Thomas Grimm, a marriage counselor, will lead the couples group, while Rachel Irwin, a gestalt therapist from Oakland, will supervise the singles. Registration must be made by April 1 at the Catholic Social Service of Marin County, 179 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael.

SEVENTEEN Marin County organizations are participating in the Novato Senior Citizens-sponsored "Village Fair Bazaar" to be held today until 9 p.m. at the Community House in Novato.

The Novato Senior Citizens are staffing five booths at the bazaar, which is the only fund-raising event for the senior citizens.

THE CORTE MADERA Woman's Improvement Club won the single award in law prevention given at the 13th annual convention of the Golden Gate District, CFWC, held at the Villa Hotel in San Mateo Monday and Tuesday.

The women also received awards in the categories of press and publicity, crafts, and radio and television.

Other Marin clubs in the winner's circle included the Outdoor Art Club, which competed in conservation and Indian affairs; the San Rafael Woman's Club, receiving awards for conservation and California landmarks, and the Sausalito Woman's Club, an award for conservation.

An emergency resolution was passed to have the Apollo 8 flight stamp recalled and reprinted with words "In the beginning, God," which had been omitted in the first printing. Letters will be sent to President Nixon and members of the United States Senate.

THREE MEMBERS from Marin are attending the convention of the California Home Economics Association at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles this weekend. Attending the afternooon and evening meeting will be Mrs. Rosemarie Sillery of Corte Madera, home economist with a foods corporation; Miss Virginia Shattuck of San Rafael, president-elect of California Home Economics Association Bay District, and Mrs. Theodora Faiola of Mill Valley, district supervisor with the Bureau of Homemaking Education.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN HORWATH

Linda Reusche Bride In Sunday Nuptials

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato was the setting Sunday for the marriage of Linda Reusche and John Horwath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Reusche of Novato, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Horwath of San Francisco.

Eileen Reusche was her sister's maid of honor, and another sister, Gayle Reusche; Shari Garl, a student at Concordia Teachers College in Illinois, and Cathy Johnson of Chico were bridesmaids.

Best man for his brother was Paul Horwath. Ron Fisse of Camp Pendleton, Jim Riffie of San Francisco and the bridegroom's brother, Gary Horwath, ushered.

A reception at the Lodge in Novato followed the ceremony.

Linda is a graduate of Novato High School. She attended College of Marin and is employed by Pacific Telephone Company in San Francisco. Eric Reusche is her brother, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Hattie Reusche of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. William Bigham of Santa Rosa.

The bridegroom was graduated from Abraham Lincoln High School in San Francisco and City College of San Francisco. Kathleen Horwath is his sister. John is a corporal in the Marines, stationed at Camp Pendleton.

The couple will live in Oceanside.

Mr. And Mrs. John Heath To Make Davis Their Home

John E. Heath wed Judith Lynn Wooding Sunday in a ceremony at the First Unitarian Church in San Francisco.

Marsha Gillman of Santa Rosa was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's twin cousins, Theresa and Elizabeth Shearn of Ross, were bridesmaids.

William Heath of Novato was his brother's best man. David Allen of Woodacre and Douglas MacCrea of San Rafael ushered.

A reception in the Martin Luther King Room of the church followed the ceremony.

Judith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Rae Wooding of Boca Raton, Fla. She is in her senior year at the University of California at Davis. Ronald Wooding is her brother.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Vera Heath of Kentfield. He was graduated from Redwood High School, College of Marin and U.C. at Davis and is studying for a master's degree in electrical engineering at Davis. Mrs. May Jope of Ross is his grandmother.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel the couple will live in Davis.

Family Planning Is Easier

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Speaking on "A Woman's Place Is . . . ?", Mrs. Rutherford Putnam, mayor of Petaluma, told members and guests of the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley Thursday afternoon that anything women do outside the home must be in addition to their duties there if they are to retain their role as women.

These are some of the highlights of her talk:

"It is women who have the children and are the center of the home," she said. "I think personally the family unit was never more important any place than it is now. While there are more things to pull us away from our homes, we still can't escape the fact that somebody ought to hold the line because of the importance of the family unit."

She said, however, that there must be a different look at the family unit, which is no longer typically large, in view of the need for population control. The way to plan a family has been made much easier, she said, and women often decide to work while they are young and put aside money for home and children later.

"We are not going to know for quite a while how we are being affected by all this," she maintained. "I happen to feel while the children are small — those years go by terribly fast —that, if it is possible, a woman should retain her position in the home as the mother of her children. Just being there is important. These are the years for you to have a molding influence."

The mayor went on to say that if it is not possible for a woman to be at home at this time, she should do everything possible to get the most appropriate people to take her place.

"Many women render a service during the young years in their family when they take part in any sort of activity that involves somebody else's children," she said, adding that this might include such activities as P-TA, Cub Scouts, Blue Birds or Rainbow Girls and many others.

"Don't underestimate yourself for the service you are rendering to the community, and don't say, 'I really don't do much.' Whatever you can do for your community is time well spent."

Dealing further with the subject of outside interests on a more personal basis, Mrs. Putnam emphasized that "outside interests should be your choice of what you are really interested in, not what is the going thing. It can be related to the family or be quite specifically your own. If you have a talent, I think you should put it to good use. Don't say, 'If only I could have done it when I was young.' Give some time out of your day to this interest. You might fear it is selfish, but ultimately it may play a part in a whole group of activities with others in which you meet people of all ages.

"If you go to work, you have to consider when and why. The doors are open much more to women of all ages, though some are not. Many areas are in need of women, such as teachers' aides."

The mayor especially urged her audience to consider the field of public service, such as service on city councils, boards of education and commissions.

"If an opportunity is offered by your community, unless you have a very good reason for not taking it, you should accept because the opportunities in public service are wonderful. There is nothing like it. You meet people, work for something much bigger than you are and you get to go many places.

"If you feel you can offer something, try it. The value of involvement is far greater than any of the pains."

Mrs. Putnam added a word of advice for anyone running for an elective office.

"Put on a positive campaign because after the election you still have to get along with your former competitors."

Questioned as to whether she will run for re-election, the mayor said in order to be fair to all news media at this time her answer would have to be "no comment."

High Cost Of High Fashion Going Down Soon, Says Designer

By LOUISE COOK

PARIS (AP) — The high price of high fashion may be going down soon if the head of the house of Christian Dior has his way.

Jacques Rouet, general manager of the 22-year-old couture house, says he expects to announce within the next two weeks a major "restructuring of haute couture."

"If haute couture prices could be lowered by about 20 per cent, that would change many things," Rouet said in an interview in his office on the Avenue Montaigne.

Although Rouet refused to give any clues, he said the price cut would be achieved "without changing the principle of quality."

Prices for Dior couture dresses—made to measure for each customer, with several fittings included—start at about $1,000. Ready-to-wear models sell for about a third of that.

Admitting that "in a way the prices have diminished the number of clients in haute couture," Rouet indicated that unlike some other high fashion houses, Dior does not intend to abandon custom clothes for ready-to-wear.

"Haute couture is not only the prestige of the house," said Rouet, "but also the heart of the whole enterprise. It is in that department that the biggest creative effort goes on."

The customer for haute couture, said Rouet, looks for exclusivity and a dress to transform her personality, "not something like a school uniform."

Asked if the current vogue for extreme styles made customers reluctant to purchase a custom-made dress that is likely to be out of fashion within one season, Rouet replied that although the Dior collection, designed by Marc Bohan, does include some far-out clothes, it is the classic items that sell.

Professional buyers and private clients like to look at the kooky styles, he added, and "the contrast gives value to what's conservative."

MUSIC REVIEW

Visiting Woodwind Quintet Is Dazzling

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Last night's closing concert in the Homestead Valley Community Association's ninth annual Candlelight Chamber Music series at Brown's Hall in Mill Valley was the unsurpassable ultimate in woodwind performance.

No puffery was in the billing of the Danzi Woodwind Quintet as "the finest wind group in the world," for these first chairmen in the famed Concertgebouw and Netherland Opera orchestras are not only supreme artists individually but a marvelously well-balanced ensemble. They are disciplined to perfection in the minutest details and capable of the most subtle expressive nuances as well as powerful sonority.

The musicians are Frans Vester, flutist; Koen van Slogteren, oboe; Adrian van Woudenberg, horn; Piet Hiningh, clarinet, and Brian Pollard, bassoon.

Since they are noted for avant-garde music, it was not surprising that three of the five numbers and an encore were in modern idoms.

Two works were sensational in technical brilliance—one, the Quintet in A Minor by the Czech composer Anton Reicha in the traditional style of the great romantic masters, and the other, "Serpentinata," written in 1967 by German Gunther Becker, in the most far-out style imaginable.

The Reicha work was my favorite, but the Becker piece shocked one into rapt attention and was the one that caused most reaction among the audience that packed the hall. Consisting of a cluster of half tones manipulated rhythmically, dynamically and expressively, it exploited all the resources of the instruments.

In everyday terms, the timbres were reminiscent of buzzing insects, a fog horn—an incredible sound from the usually mellow French horn—piercing whistles and chattering, all sounding at times like a free-for-all fight. The timing alone in the dialogue among the instruments was a prodigious feat.

Not nearly so wild, though containing extremes in dynamics and tempi, was "Music da Camera" by Riccardo Malipiero, and the "Summermusic" of the contemporary American Samuel Barber, though using modern harmonic and melodic techniques, was really beautiful.

Earliest in period was the Quintet in E Minor of Franz Danzi, a Von Weber German contemporary for whom the quintet was named. It was a work similar in style and dazzling virtuosity to the Reicha quintet.

"Marcia Francese" by Jean Francaix was the encore that concluded the program with a delightful touch of humor.

Equal Opportunity Is Urged For State College Trustees

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—"There has been a silencing of moderate and conservative voices" on California's campusses, according to Gov. Ronald Reagan's chief education aid.

Dr. Alex Sheriffs spent a rugged hour before the Constitutional Revision Commission yesterday, discussing and defending the Reagan administration's educational policies.

Sheriffs recommended that the state College Board of Trustees be given equal constitutional authority to the University of California's Board of Regents and he also recommended that the regents 16-year terms be shortened while the trustees eight-year terms are lengthened so that both would be set at 10 or 12 years.

Before the governor's aide spoke, the commission approved a draft of a resolution extending constitutional protection of the state colleges from political interference.

The committee seemed unhappy with attempts to fire Herbert Marcuse, the septugenarian spokesman for the New Left on what many felt were largely ideological grounds.

Commission member Sol Silverman, San Francisco attorney, expressed misgivings over what he termed the trend toward an "ideological" approach in talking about faculty hiring.

Sheriffs still felt, however, that "there has been a silencing of moderate and conservative voices and hostile response to those who differ with the ideological posture of the day.

The commission ended its three-day meeting to consider how best to rewrite the language of the state's wordy 90-year-old constitution.

The commission, in discussion of state education policies, also voiced some reservations as to whether elected officials should serve as ex-officio U.C. regents.

Inmate Knifed At San Quentin

A 35-year-old inmate of San Quentin prison was reported in satisfactory condition today at the prison hospital with a knife wound in his back.

Prison officials said Frank Knickerbocker, serving time for possession of narcotics from Los Angeles County, was cut in the back with a homemade knife last night.

The inmate who stabbed him has not been identified and the knife has not been found, prison officials said.

Small Antiwar Rally Causes Hardly A Stir

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A small antiwar rally on the San Francisco State College campus caused hardly a stir yesterday as the once embattled institution completed its first week since the end of a four and one-half month student strike.

Fewer than 100 students gathered for the meeting then quietly moved into an auditorium with administration permission after being asked to disperse from the commons area.

The peaceful feeling pervaded the office of acting President S. I. Hayakawa.

"It's a wonderful feeling, "He commented. "There's a real relief from strain."

He noted that for the first time in months, deans and professors were seeing him about education problems and added "We're acting and looking as a college campus should."

Hayakawa still has not ended the state of emergency he decreed when he took on the job at the troubled school last Nov. 26.

About 150 policemen are still maintaining watches in various buildings.

Meantime faculty boards were processing disciplinary hearings for students involved in disruptive activities during the strike.

Trials are under way before five judges in San Francisco courts for some of the 453 persons arrested in the last major demonstration which occurred Jan. 23. Nine have pleaded guilty of unlawful assembly and are to be sentenced next month.

Hayakawa said he would start a review of April 11 disciplinary penalties meted out by faculty boards. He said that so far there have been only a few suspensions and no expulsions.

The educator refused to accede to amnesty provisions of the agreement reached between dissident student groups and a Select Committee named by Hayakawa.

Black Student Union and Third World Liberation Front leaders said they will keep the terms of the settlement, but have continued to criticize Hayakawa.

Burglary Case To Probation Department

The case of Michael John Pereira, 19, of San Rafael, was referred to the probation department yesterday by Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court for possible transferral to Juvenile Court.

Pereira and Greg James Adams, 21, of Greenbrae, are accused of a burglary March 20 in Sausalito. They are to return to court April 7.

MUCH WORK AHEAD

Legislature Shuts For Easter Recess

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Legislature was in its Easter recess today, leaving a mountain of work behind.

In a final flurry of partisanship in the Assembly, both houses closed down yesterday to allow members to spend a week at home before getting down to the task ahead.

When the lawmakers return April 7 they will have the task of cutting through 1,640 measures in the Assembly and 1,007 in the Senate. In both cases, the total number of measures is slightly more than last year.

Among them is Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed $6.2 billion budget and — eventually — his tax reform program including a $100 million income tax break.

Also still to be resolved are controversies growing from campus disorder and disastrous winter floods.

Almost as a final act before the recess, the Senate gave final approval to a bill imposing a half-cent sales tax on San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa Counties to rescue the financially-troubled Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

By a 27-2 vote, the Senate approved a minor Assembly amendment to the BART bill by Sen. Lewis Sherman, R-Berkeley, and sent it to Reagan.

The tax is estimated to raise $150 million in four and a half years to allow the district to complete construction of its ambitious rapid transit system. The financial plan probably sets the pattern for future districts of the BART type.

Reagan favors the financing method. He may sign the bill when he returns from President Eisenhower's funeral and an Arizona Easter vacation.

It is possible, also, that the bill could be signed by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, thus saving Reagan from directly violating his no-new-taxes pledge.

The Assembly spent most of its final pre-Easter week session squabbling over a resolution praising Dr. H. Claude Hudson, a leader in the Los Angeles black community.

Assemblyman John V. Briggs, R-Fullerton, pulled out the red-backed 1948 report of the Senate subcommittee on un-American activities and said it showed Hudson as active in the Citizens' Committee for Better Education.

The 1948 book, page 199, says the committee's major activity was "the support of extreme leftists for election to the Los Angeles Board of Education." It said the group backed Hudson in 1947 and identified Hudson as "active in a number of Communist-front organizations."

"I don't want to suggest in any way Dr. Hudson is disloyal to America," said Briggs. "In no case do I say he is a Communist nor do I infer he is one."

Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, author of the resolution, responded that the committee was an organization which urged establishment of permanent child care centers.

She said Hudson's eldest son was killed during the Normandy invasion in World War II.

The measure barely won approval on a 41-2 vote when the most of the 40 Assembly Republicans refused to vote. Actually, the GOP was retaliating for Democrats who defeated a Briggs' resolution praising former state veterans affairs director James E. Johnson, a Negro. Johnson was picked to the Civil Service Commission by President Nixon.

Clausen Hails Ike As 'Man Of Peace'

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, today eulogized the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower as "truly a man of peace . . . who responded to the call of his country in its times of greatest need — not once nor twice, but whenever the need arose."

In a statement, Clausen added: "Dwight Eisenhower has been called a national hero, a leader in war, a crusader for peace, and it is true; he was all of these things. But, more important, he was a humble man called to greatness by those who recognized in him that rare quality of leadership that makes some men stand taller than others."

Runaway Car Smashes Into Chief's House

A runaway car carrying two boys smashed yesterday into the garage of Novato Police Chief Robert Di Grazia, he reported.

The auto smashed both garage doors and dented his 1967 model car. Di Grazia could not estimate the damage.

Mrs. Sally W. Trahan of 19 Sunnyhill Road, Novato, visiting next door to the chief's house, left her car with the motor running, and her two sons, Patrick, 5, and Timothy, 10, in the back seat.

When the auto started moving, Timothy jumped into the front seat and steered the car out of the road, running into Di Grazia's garage to stop it, the chief said.

Mrs. Trahan was cited for leaving an auto with the motor running.

The Novato police have a policy of not giving out the addresses or telephone numbers of its employees, so the chief would not give his address. He lives in the northwest section of Novato.

$160 In Coins Is Taken From Changer

The owner of the Fourth Street Launderette yesterday reported the theft of $160 in nickels, dimes and quarters from the coin changer at his business to San Rafael police.

Frank F. Buchbauer of Boyes Springs told police that the changer was not damaged and $28 was still inside.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

A home with all the glamour and prestige that you dream about. Starting with the architecture, a blending of stone facia and wood, entry hall that leads to a sunken living room, family room with a stone fireplace. A formal dining room, an all-elec. kitchen with custom cabinet work. A guest bath on the main floor. A beautiful staircase leads to 3 upper bdrms. and 2 baths. Plush carpeting and drapes complete this immaculate home. Large 2 car garage has a laundry area. Now let's go to the landscaped grounds. An artistically shaped swimming pool with a slide. Overlooking one of the most breathtaking views in the county. Could it be possible that this is all included for $38,900?

Mother-in-law quarters. This beautiful reconditioned home, on a level lot, walking distance to town and schools, has almost complete living quarters below. An extra kitchen, and a huge area that has been completely sheet rocked and rewired, plus new light fixtures. This large area is now 3 large rooms, but one room could be a huge family room or divided into 2 big bdrms. — this lower area is almost another complete home perfect for your mother-in-law or a large family. The upper portion has an all new kitchen, including stove and refrig., all new bathroom, new luxury w/w carpeting, new furnace, all new copper pipes and new wiring thruout. The bdrms. are extra large. This beautiful property sits on a 50x110 level lot with plenty of trees. The lot alongside, of equal dimensions, could also be purchased. Combining both lots would make this an R-2 lot. House and one lot only $24,500.

Local couple purchased this car new in '65 from local Ford agency and we just took in trade on a new Buick Riviera.

If you're looking for the cleanest T-Bird in Marin County — see this one. All white with Landau top and bucket seats — this T-Bird has every conceivable extra, such as power windows, air conditioning, power seats, power steering and power brakes.

Low mileage car that shows the loving care by the former owner. NKU 930.

Cable Car Hit By Truck; Four Persons Injured

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Four persons were injured yesterday when a truck backed out of an alley into a jampacked cablecar.

Some 60 passengers were riding the cablecar up the California Street hill when the truck rammed into it.

All of the injured were riding on the steps of the vehicle. Two were hospitalized. They were Rebecca Brenner, 21, with fractures of both legs, and Joseph Duffey, 43, with a severely cut leg. The truck driver, Tom Z. Deyein, 26, was cited for unsafe backing.

Bring Outdoors Inside Is Answer

A kitchen can get pretty stuffy any time, but in summer when you look through the window over your sink and see the sun streaming into the yard and hear a warm breeze float by, you can feel as if you're suffocating.

Opening that window helps a little, but if your kitchen's location permits you have another alternative: A back yard door in the kitchen can be replaced with floor-to-ceiling sliding glass doors so when you feel like you're suffocating you can literally let the outdoors in.

Going one step further, says the Tile Council of America, you can turn the yard area just outside the sliding doors into an outdoor extension of your kitchen by simply extending the floor area and surfacing it with a material such as ceramic mosaic or quarry tile.

License Granted

Four-hour Limit In Lot Is Asked

San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce directors recommended yesterday that the south end of the city's creekside parking lot at Sir Francis Drake and Center boulevards be changed from two to four-hour parking to accommodate clients of the eight beauty parlors and Studio 7 art classes.

This would involve about 25 spaces if the lot were paved and marked, secretary-manager William A. Trewhella said. The recommendation was made to the city council.

Four Fined On Drunken Driving

Four persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Jesse James Seales, Jr., 50, of Hamilton Air Force Base, was sentenced to five days in jail, fined $302 and placed on one year probation. He was arrested Feb. 22 on Highway 101.

John Ernst Berger, 43, of San Francisco, who was arrested Dec. 15 on Highway 101, was fined $100 and placed on one year probation.

Peter Calvin Traphagen, 58, of 152 Morning Sun Avenue, Mill Valley, was fined $125 and placed on six months' probation. He was arrested Sunday in Mill Valley.

Ralph Loudel Giessler, 35, of 30 Via Belardo, Greenbrae, who was arrested Jan. 17 on Highway 101, was fined $150 and placed on six months' probation.

Loan Goal Is $20,000 Short

College of Marin Foundation members were told yesterday that $10,000 has been collected in the foundation's drive for student loan and scholarship money. The goal is $30,000.

The foundation board will meet at 7 pm. April 7 at Marin County Savings and Loan Association, San Rafael, to telephone parents of College of Marin students under 21, requesting contributions.

It was also agreed, reported J. Galen Foster, campaign manager, that the board will meet with service clubs, starting with the Rotary Club presidents group, to request that scholarship activities within individual clubs permit the foundation to coordinate club scholarships.

Burns Expects To Remain Senate Boss

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Democrat Hugh M. Burns expects to remain President pro tem of the State Senate the rest of this year even though Republicans now have won a 21-19 majority in the upper house.

The veteran Fresno senator said yesterday: "I expect to remain where I am" despite GOP efforts to oust him from the key post he has held for 11 years.

But he reiterated he would step down as pro tem after this year.

"I don't desire to carry on the burden of this office any longer — after this year, that is," Burns told reporters who clustered around him at the end of Sacramento Press Club luncheon.

The featured guest at the lunch was Republican Senator-elect John Nejedly whose victory in a special election in Contra Costa County last Tuesday gave Republicans control of the upper house for the first time since 1956.

In a question-answer period, Nejedly said he was not solidly committed to voting with Republicans to oust Burns. He said he could vote for Burns, depending on circumstances.

Nejedly said he would not make up his mind on the Senate leadership issue until after he is sworn in and discussed the situation with other Republicans.

Mutilated Body Is Identified

REDONDO BEACH (UPI) — The mutilated body of a woman found in a field here March 15 has been identified as that of Patricia Pierson, 26, daughter of a New Jersey business executive.

Detective Captain Gene Cavanaugh said yesterday identification was made through medical X-rays of the young woman furnished by her father, Theodore Pierson, of Trenton, N.J.

The body's head and hands were missing when it was found under a mattress by children playing in the field. Identification was made difficult because such normal procedures as finger prints and dental work could not be used.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, March 29, the 88th day of 1969 with 277 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1812 the first wedding was performed in the White House. Mrs. Lucy Payne Washington married Supreme Court Justice Thomas Todd.

In 1847 as General Winfield Scott captured Vera Cruz, Mexican troops marched from the city to be disarmed and released on parole.

In 1945 soldiers of the First Army marched 55 miles to virtually cut off the Ruhr Basin from the rest of Germany.

A thought for the day: Silas Weir Mitchell said, "Death's but one more tomorrow."

Safecrackers Show Gratitude

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI)—Burglars showed their gratitude with a note left in an abandoned safe here after they had removed $3,250.

They hauled away the 1,000-pound safe from Frisch's Restaurant and later forced open one section of the safe where they found a card with the combination to another section.

Found on a back road in Campbell County, the safe contained a note saying, "Thank you. Love it."

HOW TO PLAY
WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Four-Heart Contract Proves A Most Unusual Moral Point

If you work hard and save your money, you may be considered a dull dog. But if you persuade other people to do your work for you, everybody will admire you as a clever fellow. It sounds immoral, but I have a bridge hand to prove it.

Opening lead — ♠ Q

SUIT SHIFT

West led the queen of spades and continued the suit. South ruffed and led out the ace and king of hearts since he could see no way to get to the dummy for a trump finesse.

As it happened, the queen of hearts did not drop. South struggled on with the ace of clubs and a club to the queen, eventually losing a spade, a trump and two clubs. Down one, but South had the consolation of feeling virtuous. He had done his own work, and luck wasn't with him.

South would have been better off if he hadn't been so virtuous. He makes the contract if he allows the opponents to help him get to the dummy.

IGNORE TRUMPS

South should ruff the second spade, clear the top diamonds out of the way and then lead the ace of clubs and a low club, leaving the trumps alone. West wins with the queen of clubs and must return a spade since no other suit is safe.

South ruffs again and leads a club to the king. Now East must help declarer get to the dummy.

If East returns a trump, dummy wins with the 10 and leads another trump for a finesse. If East returns a diamond, dummy wins, and declarer can lead the 10 of hearts and then the low heart to clear up the trump suit.

WOULDN'T HELP

Even if East could return a spade, it wouldn't help him. South would discard a club, and dummy would ruff low. The 10 of hearts would hold the next trick, after which any lead from the dummy would give South the last three trump tricks.

The "Liberator," first anti-slavery newspaper in America, was founded by William Lloyd Garrison in Boston in 1831.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one no-trump, and next player passes. You hold:

♠ Q J 10 7 6 3
♦ 9 7 6 3
♣ Q 8

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

The hand is not quite strong enough for a jump to game in spades, despite the excellent distribution. If partner can act over two spades (which is rather unlikely), you will go on to game.

Palm Sunday A Triumph For Jesus, His Followers

By WOODI ISHMAEL
(AP Newsfeatures
(Sixth in a series of seven)

"And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest. And Jesus entered Jerusalem . . ." St. Mark 11:8, 11

It was a day of triumph for Jesus and his followers that first Palm Sunday. May this Palm Sunday be a day of triumph throughout the world.

Bucks Get Lew For A Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Basketball Association has scored a big triumph over the rival American Basketball Association with the announcement that Lew Alcindor of UCLA has verbally agreed to a million-dollar contract with the Milwaukee Bucks.

Alcindor made rumors official yesterday when he told the Associated Press he would sign a contract with the last-place NBA team. He said the prestige of the older, established NBA had something to do with his choice "but it wasn't the prime consideration."

Alcindor led UCLA to a third straight national collegiate title last Saturday and it was expected that the Bucks of the NBA and the New York Nets of the ABA would stage a giant money war for the rights to Lew.

But the 7-foot-1½ center told both leagues to make one sealed bid. Lew wanted no auction.

BEST OFFER

"Milwaukee made the most solid and most reasonable offer, all things considered," said Alcindor. He was expected to sign a multiple-year contract for a figure "considerably more than $1 million" next week, a spokesman said.

After Lew chose the NBA, officials of the rival association followed Alcindor to Los Angeles, where his mother was hospitalized with a blood ailment. They asked Lew to give them one more chance to bid for his services.

At an after-midnight meeting in a hotel yesterday morning, the ABA reportedly offered Alcindor "a huge amount" more than Milwaukee's offer. But Lew had made an oral agreement with the Bucks and he said no money offer could challenge his integrity.

Lew said he had no goals established for his professional career.

TOO FAR AHEAD

"That's too far ahead," he said last night at halftime of the San Francisco-Los Angeles Western Division NBA playoff game here. "The pros play a different tempo and there's a lot of pushing and shoving going on out there."

"And it'll be a chore to measure up to those two," he said, motioning to the court where Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers was facing Nate Thurmond of the Warriors.

Alcindor never has been a very high scorer or rebounder. He was known at UCLA as a team ball player who would do anything for a victory.

John Wooden, his college coach, said, "Lewis will be a fine prefessional player because he's fine team player."

"He won't have to score points to be valuable," said Jerry West of the Lakers.

But he would have meant instant success for the ABA some feel.

FINANCIAL BLOW

With Alcindor in the league, officials expected attendance to rise to the point where all teams could be self-sustaining. The loss of the big man undoubtedly is a financial blow as well as a dent in pride.

Alcindor lives in New York and the Nets play near his home. And Lew admitted that "it would have been a lot easier playing in New York, all things being the same. But as it was, all things were not the same."

Alcindor said he knew nothing of the Bucks, who finished the regular season with a 27-55 mark, 30 games behind Baltimore.

ABA Will Sue NBA Over Pacts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A suit for an injunction and damages likely to run to millions of dollars has been filed by the American Basketball Association against the National Basketball Association.

The ABA sued yesterday in U.S. District Court in San Francisco, seeking to ban the NBA from signing any new contracts and claimed the defendant was trying to monopolize the sport.

No amount was specified in the antitrust action, but ABA lawyer Fred Furth said "millions and millions" of dollars would be sought, based on a claim of triple damages on an amount to be named later.

The suit came in the wake of UCLA center Lew Alcindor's agreement to sign with Milwaukee of the NBA, but Furth denied the fight for Alcindor had anything to do with it.

"No single event contributed to the filing of the complaint," he said. "It's the NBA's conduct since 1949." That was nine years after the NBA was formed.

The complaint accused the NBA and its 14 members of inducing players to "break contracts which they previously signed" with ABA teams. The ABA asked the court to void the so-called option contract of the type that forced San Francisco Warrior forward Rick Barry to sit out the entire 1967-68 season after he jumped to his father-in-law's Oakland Oaks of ABA.

Furth said in the 1968 draft the ABA lost 39 out of 40 top players to the NBA.

The suit accused the NBA and its members of trying to blacklist any coach or players who tried to jump leagues.

The complaint alleged violations of the Clayton Antitrust Act and asked the court to halt those practices, thus permitting the ABA "to compete for facilities, players, coaches and broadcasting contracts on the basis of free, fair and open competition."

The suit charged the existence of an "Auerbach Committee" headed by Red Auerback, Boston general manager.

"The committe was formed for the sole purpose of driving plaintiffs out of major league basketball," said the complaint.

The committee allegedly has as its aim "joint purchase of a superstar through use of defendants combined economic power."

The suit is the first such action filed in the basketball big leagues, a move San Francisco Warrior attorney Robert L. Dunn called "a fundamental attack on the league structure of professional sports.

Going To The Dogs At Phoenix Racetracks

PHOENIX — I went to the dogs the other night. The first guy who says "What else is new?" gets a belt in the choppers.

I refer to the Phoenix Greyhound Park which honored the San Francisco Giant's Boosters Club of Northern California. Unaccustomed to the doggies in the Bay Area, the 106 touring boosters loved the excitement, which is much faster than the horse races.

Frank B. Defazio, director of customer relations, took me on a tour of the beautiful, enclosed, air conditioned clubhouse, explaining this is one of the three major tracks that give Arizona doggie racing the year 'round, the others being in Apache Junction and Black Canyon, 40 miles north of here.

The Fastest Dogs In The World

Greyhounds average approximately 40 miles per hour in their run for the mechanical rabbit, making them the fastest dogs in the world, a shade speedier than my poodle. And the dogs have been good to this state as Arizona has realized more than $26 million in pari-mutuel taxes since the sport started here in 1942.

The track can seat more than 10,000 persons and the average nightly attendance for the race programs is about 6,000, according to Defazio, who noted that dog racing is one of America's 10 most watched sports. The average nightly pari-mutuel take, he said, is $160,000.

The beautiful dogs weigh about 60 pounds apiece and consume about two and one-half pounds of meat per day. Their average racing life is three years, from about two to five.

A Year-Round Dog Program

"One of the features here in Arizona," said Defazio, "is that the kennels like it because of our year-round program. They can keep their doge active."

The Arizona greyhound industry, which employs about 1,000 persons, even has an official publication called Post Time, what else? I was fascinated to learn the Greyhound Racing Board of North America goes so far as to select an all-American team of eight pooches. Now I ask you. The team "captain" is named Lurcher Boy.

The Phoenix track went all out to entertain the Northern California Boosters and named the featured race in their honor. "Miss Booster," an American Airlines stewardess named Ann Kelly, got to crown the winning dog.

After that we all went to the track's restaurant for a bite to eat. The food was great but the servings were so heaping that none of us could finish dinner. That's all right, though, because we took the rest home in a bowser bag.

Yesterday, the Boosters attended the annual old-timers baseball brunch in Scottsdale which featured, among other speakers, Clyde King, the freshman manager of the Giants.

King On Former Hurdler King

Introduced as a former major league pitcher by master of ceremonies Jack Brickhouse. King needled himself as not much of a chucker. "People ask me who was the toughest batter I faced," he said in his southern drawl, "and I tell them to look up my record. they were ALL tough. Actually, Stan Musial was the toughest. Gosh, when he found out when it was my turn to pitch he sent a cab out to my home to make sure I got to the ball park."

King is quite popular with the boosters. The man who showed a great deal of intestinal fortitude by inserting Willie Mays into the leadoff position in the batting order said he is firmly convinced the controversial move will be successful. "I can't say Willie will lead off all year," He told me, "but I plan and hope that's the way we'll open the season."

Giants Bombed By Cubs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — After five straight victories, it was bound to happen.

In one of those days when nothing goes right, the San Francisco Giants lost to the Chicako Cubs 9-4 in Scottsdale yesterday as hurler Gaylord Perry took a beating in the 86-degree heat, giving up 14 hits.

In addition, the Giants lost utility infielder Charlie Smith to the Cubs for an undisclosed sum.

The Giants, now 15-5 for the Cactus League baseball season, went to Tucson today to play the Cleveland Indians.

3-0 LEAD

The Cubs jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first on a walk to Billy Williams and singles by Don Kessinger, Ron Santo and Al Spangler.

Chicago romped for five more runs on five hits in the fifth as Bobby Bonds, who let two easy balls get by him Wednesday, lost one fly in the sun and missed a shoestring catch attempt on another.

Ferguson Jenkins, the winning pitcher, limited the Giants to a lone run on eight hits in the seven innings he worked. Reliever Joe Niekro gave the Giants three runs on four hits in the eighth.

Upsets Reign In NBA Playoffs

Warriors Take 2-0 Lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I don't play for money against Wilt Chamberlain, I play for pride," declared Nate Thurmond, a big reason the San Francisco Warriors hold a 2-0 edge over the Los Angeles Lakers in their opening National Basketball Association playoffs.

"He's acknowledged to be the greatest center in pro basketball and I want to be the greatest," said the 6-foot-11 Warrior who clearly outplayed his taller and larger foe in last night's 107-101 victory at the Forum, home of the Lakers.

The best four-of-seven semifinal playoffs in the Western Division now move north with the third game slated Monday night at the Oakiand Coliseum Arena.

"It will be very interesting to see who walks on the court for us," commented a disappointed Coach Bill van Breda Kolff of the Lakers. "I'm definitely going to make some defensive assignment changes. I wouldn't say the situation is critical exactly, but it certainly isn't rosy."

BEST GAME

Thurmond led the rebounders with 28 and scored 27 points in what he termed "my best game ever against Chamberlain."

The big Laker scored 10, hauled in 17 rebounds and spent the last five minutes sitting on the bench even though he had one personal foul left.

Rudy LaRusso paced the Warrior scorers with 29. Both Jeff Mullins, with 20, and Jimmy King, with 18, were on target from the outside in this second straight surprise. The Lakers finished first during the regular season while San Francisco was third.

For the second playoff game, Jerry West scored 36 points for the Lakers and this time Elgin Baylor chipped in with 20, but the only times Los Angeles led were in the opening period.

GIVEAWAY

"The Lakers are playing giveaway," commented Warrior Coach George Lee. "I don't think we've really played our best game yet and we're two-up. We were the underdog because the Lakers have the superstars, but we have them on the run now. This was King's

Novato, San Marin Grab Big Prep Baseball Wins

If one word describes the opening of the 1969 Marin County Athletic League baseball race, it's sudden.

Defeat and victory came quickly and shockingly yesterday, as Novato lived up to its role of leave favorite with a quick and convincing win over Redwood, 6-0, behind ace Russ Dillon.

San Marin, the youngest team in the league, pulled off a shocker, scoring three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning with two outs to upset defending champion Terra Linda, 3-2, at Novato.

Tamalpais scored all of its runs in the first inning, one on a double steal, to nick Marin Catholic, 2-1, in Kentfield.

Drake derailed San Rafael ace Rafael Gallardo to take a close 3-2 win over the Bulldogs at San Rafael.

Dillon, who hasn't given up a run this season, struck out 12 Redwood batters and gave up only two singles, but if you take out one inning they might still be playing.

The inning was the second and it doomed the Giants in a hurry as the Hornets bunched five of their eight hits to score six runs for the game.

The victim was Roger Smith, who otherwise pitched well.

A double steal by Wendell McReynolds and Ken Bolstad gave Tamalpais one run in the first and a run-scoring single by Rob Nelson produced another in the Tamalpais win.

A single by Rick Fox drove in Marin Catholic's only run in the second inning. Rick Thomas was the tough four-hit loser while Bill Secor hurled a five-hitter for the Indians.

San Marin, down 2-0 in the second inning when all-league catcher Craig Logan blasted a homer off Steve Francis and a single produced another Trojan run, pulled it out very, very late.

With two out in the seventh, the fledgeling Mustangs got going as Rick Jensen got on on an error, went to second on an overthrow, came home on a

Ailing Jensen Listed As 'Slightly Improved'

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Former major league baseball player Jackie Jensen, who suffered a heart attack Wednesday, was reported "slightly improved," yesterday, although a hospital spokesman said he still was considered in serious condition.

Jensen, 42, was moved from a monitor room, but remained in the Washoe Medical Center cardiac care area. It is expected he will be hospitalized about three weeks.

His wife, Kathy, said Jensen has gotten a lot of mail — "cards, letters and telegrams, some from people he's never heard of." She said he is able to read the mail himself.

Jensen, who quit professional baseball in 1961 because he disliked air travel, was the American League's most valuable player in 1958 when he was with the Boston Red Sox.

He started this year as head baseball coach for the University of Nevada, Reno, and was directing a team practice when stricken by the attack.

'Aging' Celtics In Rout

BOSTON (AP) — When the cat's away the mice will play, or so the saying goes. The trouble from the Philadelphia standpoint last night was that they all seemed to be playing for the same team—the Boston Celtics.

The result was a 134-103 annihilation of the 76ers in their National Basketball Association Eastern Division semifinal playoff game, sending the Celtics into tomorrow night's third game at Philadelphia with a commanding 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

High-scoring Sam Jones of Boston was thrown out of the game for arguing with the officials in the first four minutes of the opening period, and a bit later player-coach Bill Russell got into serious foul trouble. It looked like a made-to-order situation for the 76ers, but instead it was a bunch of lesser known Celtics who went wild.

DIDN'T DO IT

"We should have been able to take advantage of that situation, but we didn't do it," was all Philadelphia coach Jack Ramsay could say afterwards.

The 76ers did take advantage for a while, leading by as many as seven points early in the second period. But suddenly Boston's makeshift combination of regulars and reserves caught fire, gaining a 55-54 halftime lead and then staging a fantastic 79-point second half to bury their foes.

Larry Siegfried and Emmette Bryant rose to the occasion by completely outplaying the vaunted Philadelphia backcourt. Tom Sanders came off the bench to fill in for Russell and was immense. Bailey Howell and Don Nelson also took turns in the pivot, while John Havlicek shifted back and forth where needed in the emergency.

STAYED WITH THEM

"After Sam and I went out, Philadelphia looked like they thought they'd blow us off the court," Russell said. "When my guys stayed with them—and even built up the lead—it took some of the confidence out of them."

Russell was high in his praise of Siegfried, who scored 13 of his 20 points in the Celtics' game-busting third period explosion, and of Bryant, who finished with 15 points and a sparking floor game.

"And that's one of the best games I've ever seen Sanders play," he said of the veteran

Sports World Pays Tribute To Ike

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sports activity across the country came to a temporary standstill today as athletes and fans paused to honor the memory of one of their own, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, who played football at West Point before launching his brilliant military career, then found in golf a sanctuary from the rigors of the Presidency, died yesterday in Washington.

The sports world quickly joined in mourning the loss of the stellar soldier - statesman, and memorial services at far-flung sports events were planned through Monday when the state funeral is to be held in the nation's capitol.

The 24 major league baseball clubs were directed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to conduct ceremonies at exhibition games in Florida, Arizona and California. No games will start Monday, the official day of mourning, until at least one hour after completion of the funeral services.

J. Walter Kennedy, president of the National Basketball Association, directed each of the eight teams involved in post-season playoffs to observe appropriate ceremonies before weekend games.

The American Basketball Association called off there regular season games scheduled for Monday night. The NBA playoff game between San Francisco and Los Angeles will go on as scheduled.

A tribute also was planned before the start of the Atlanta 500-mile stock car race tomorrow.

A minute of silence was to be observed during the third round of the National Airlines Open golf tournament at Miami, Fla., today and Monday's scheduled qualifying play in the Greater Greensboro, N.C., Open was postponed until Tuesday in deference to the memory of the former President.

Arnold Palmer, the great golfer who met the President at Augusta, Ga., after winning the 1958 Masters and played with him several times thereafter, was particularly saddened by Ike's passing.

"He loved the game," Palmer recalled. "When he was on the course, he could shut out the cares of the world."

Novato In Lead After Double Win

For the moment, Novato High School and San Rafael High School are kings of Marin County Athletic League track.

Novato upped its dual meet record to 3-0, with a pair of victories over weaker foes, thumping Marin Catholic, 92½-34½, and San Marin, 102-24, at Novato yesterday.

San Rafael's frolicking runners gave the Bulldogs a 2-0 league record with a 84-46 smacking of Terra Linda at San Rafael.

Meanwhile, Tamalpais, wracked by various injuries and ailments, still nicked Drake, 68-58, at Tamalpais, with a mile relay vicotry clinching the win.

Redwood, 1-0 in league, tore apart Piner in Santa Rosa, 93-34, with some top performances.

Novato had absolutely no trouble over Marin Catholic or San Marin, both of them thin as reeds. Phil Emsweiler won a pair of events, taking the 100 in 10.2 and the low hurdles in 15.6. The Hornets swept both the discus and shot in both meets, winning all but three events against the Wildcats, and all but four against the Mustangs.

Terra Linda won the mile relay for its only running event victory against the deep Bulldogs, as San Rafael swept the 880, the 100 and the two-mile. Bob Peterson won two events, the 100 and 220 and finished second in the long jump. Hurdler Dennis Silva won both hurdles and took the long jump.

Tamalpais, with ten key men out on its three teams, including varsity shot putter Verdean Herbold, needed the mile relay to clinch its first MCAL victory.

The Indians got top performances out of Luther Brown, who won both hurdles and anchored the mile relay and Mark Miller, who won the 880 and 440.

Bob Bartel, only a 150-pounder, threw the shot 50 feet, one and one-fourth inches in the Redwood victory.

Strange Minnesota Artillery

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota unloaded some heavy lumber yesterday and . . . surprise, surprise . . . none of it belonged to Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison or Tony Oliva.

The Twins smacked four home runs—two by spray hitters Cesar Tovar and Rod Carew, another by rookie Graig Nettles and the fourth by relief pitcher Joe Grzenda—to overtake the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5.

Killebrew, Allison and Oliva —the Twins' power men—had two hits yesterday and have managed just two homers and 10 RBIs among them all spring. They left the heavy work to the others again yesterday.

Tovar, who had six homers all last year, tagged a three-run shot to start the Twins' comeback from a 5-0 deficit against the Dodgers. Then homers by Carew, who had only one last year, and Nettles, who created some late-season excitement with five homers in 22 games in 1968, tied the game. Finally, relief pitcher Grzenda won it with a ninth inning homer.

In other games, Atlanta ripped Washington 9-4, Houston edged the New York Mets 5-4, Montreal shut out Detroit 8-0, Kansas City shaded Pittsburgh 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox outslugged Boston 10-8.

Also, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 9-2, the Chicago Cubs dropped San Francisco 9-4, California took San Diego 8-1, Cleveland clobbered Oakland 12-2, Seattle edged California's "B" team 4-3 and Baltimore topped the New York Yankees 3-1.

single by Francis for 2-1. Bill Thompson, who had three hits, singled Francis home, and a bobble of the hit brought in another run.

Francis was the winner, although he gave up eight hits, while Jerry Goodrick was the victim of the upset.

Rick LaFranchi took over for wild Stan Lillienquist with the bases loaded and one out in the second inning, retired the side on two popups and went on to record the Drake victory.

Bob Sutherland's single in the fifth inning drove in the winning run in a two-run rally.

Roger Thomas got two hits for San Rafael.

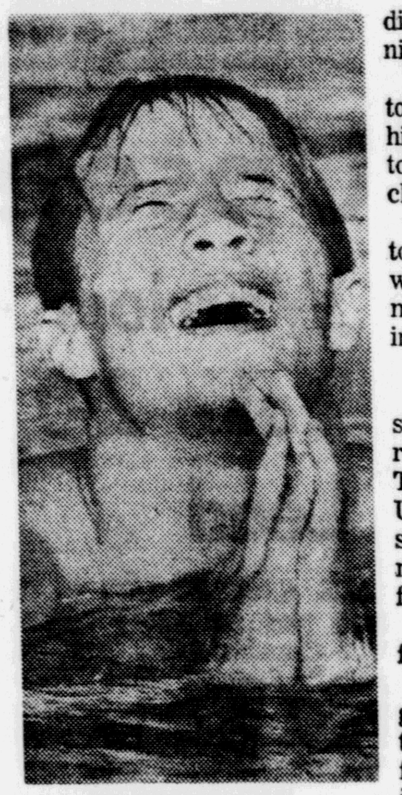
Stanford Sophs Score Upset In NCAA Swim

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Two Stanford sophomores have taken some of the fun out of Indiana's drive toward a second straight NCAA swimming championship.

Tonight they could further hamper the Hoosiers, but not enough to stop Coach Doc Counsilman's team from rolling up a record score in the 46th meet. Indiana led runnerup Southern California 274-182 going into tonight's final seven events.

In the closest finish in last night's six finals, Stanford sophomore Fred Haywood nipped Indiana Olympian Charlie Hickcox by two-hundredths of a second to win the 100-yard backstroke. Haywood was clocked in :52.44 and that was the only winning time of the night that didn't set an American record.

John Farris, the other Stanford winner, won the 200-yard butterfly in 1:49.6.



FRED HAYWOOD

DISAPPOINTED

The 19-year-old soph from Sacramento, who won a bronze medal in the 200-meter butterfly in the 1968 Olympics, said he was somewhat disappointed that the holder of the old record, Indiana's Mark Spitz, didn't race against him last night.

"But I usually watch Mark too much when I swim against him," Farris said. "I was able to swim my own race for a change."

Spitz passed up the butterfly to compete in the 200 freestyle, where he lowered his own U.S. mark by a full second, winning in 1:39.5.

FANTASTIC

"He's just fantastic," Farris said of Spitz after his latest record-breaking performance. The Indiana freshman set a U.S. mark in the 500-yard freestyle Thursday and is the meet's only double winner so far.

Spitz is also a Californian, from Santa Clara.

Farris said he considered going to Yale, "but I went there one weekend and almost froze to death. I decided to stay in California."

Tonight Spitz and Farris probably will meet in the finals of the 100-yard butterfly. Haywood and Hickcox likely will have a rematch in the 200 backstroke.

Top Rookies Vie As Seals End Season

OAKLAND — Norm Ferguson and Danny Grant — high-scoring candidates for best rookie in the Natiional Hockey League — will be opponents as the Oakland Seals play their last regular season game tonight against the Minnesota North Stars at the Coliseum Arena.

Oakland's Ferguson and Minnesota's Grant, both 23, each have 33 goals, although Grant has a big lead in total points. Minnesota also has a game remaining after tonight.

Also hunting for goals this evening will be the Seals' Gerry Ehman and Gene Ubriaco. Both have 19 and the 20th means a bonus. If they make it, that would give Oakland seven players with more than 20 goals. Only one player, Billy Hicke, reached that figure last season.

While strong on the ice, the team continues weak at the box office. Attendance has averaged about 4,900, compared with 5,700 last season. But the front office is looking for larger crowds during the upcoming Stanley Cup playoffs, saying that ticket sales to season subscribers has been good.

Stewart Wins Three In Tar Track Loss

College of Marin's outmanned track team lost its third Camino Norte Conference meet yesterday, bowing to West Valley at Campbell, 87-49.

George Stewart was a triple winner for the Tars, taking the mile, 880 and two-mile. Paul Vanderbilt won the pole vault and John Rowe took the shot.

SPORTS SHORTS

Bears Grab Pac-8 Gymnastics Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of California successfully defended its Pacific-8 gymnastics crown, winning three events and tying in a fourth to down rival Washington.

Cal scored 161.025 to Washington's 158.775.

Golden Bear team victories came in the floor exercise, side horse, and rings and Cal tied UCLA in the long horse. Southern California won the parallel bars and Washington took the horizontal bars. Individual competitions will be held this evening.

BASKETBALL

MACON, Ga. — The Kitchen Fresh Chippers, an Amateur Athletic Union basketball team from Los Angeles, were suspended for one year by the AAU basketball committee yesterday for failing to appear in the AAU national tournament here.

FOOTBALL

HOUSTON — Lionel Taylor, veteran receiver for Houston of the American Football League, announced his retirement from pro football.

GOLF

PORT MALABAR, Fla. — Kathy Whitworth fired a 68 to grab the first round lead in the $17,500 Port Malabar Invitational.

BASEBALL

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. — Utility infielder Charley Smith, 31, who has played with seven major league clubs, was purchased by the Chicago Cubs from the San Francisco Giants for an undisclosed amount of money.

FORT MYERS, Fla. — The Pittsburgh Pirates traded pitcher Tommy Sisk and catcher Chris Cannizzaro to the San Diego Padres for outfielder Ron Davis and infielder Bobby Klaus.

TENNIS

NEW YORK — Andress Gimeno of Spain upset top-seeded Tony Roche of Australia 6-4, 6-4, while Arthur Ashe of Richmond, Va., defeated veteran Australian pro Roy Emerson, 5-7, 7-5, 6-4, to gain the right to meet Gimeno in the finals of the Madison Square Garden Challenge Trophy Open.

Murphy Takes Airlines Lead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A tightly-bunched pack of par wreckers set out in pursuit of pudgy Bob Murphy and his blast hot putter today in the second round of the $200,000 National Airlines Open Golf Tournament, but Jack Nicklaus and Bob Goalby weren't among them.

Nicklaus, who will be the favorite in the Masters Tournament April 10-13, can't seem to find the range with his big war club, the driver. He shot 73-75—148 here and missed the cut.

Goalby, defending champion in the Masters, is in the throes of one of the most atrocious and frustrating slumps that have ever plagued a big time golfer. He had 74-73—147, missing by a stroke.

Both went out to try to find a solution to their woes while the game's great and near-great took dead aim at the $40,000 first prize here, one of the sport's richest.

The 26-year-old Brooklyn-born Murphy, a brash, cocky but very personable young man of great girth, forged to the front of the pack yesterday by shooting a course record-equalling 66 over the 6,927-yard, par 72 Country Club of Miami course for 135, nine under par.

EIGHT BIRDIES

He had eight birdies in the remarkable round, including four in a row. He knocked in putts with his eyes closed.

"It reminds me of last summer," said portly Robert, a part-time watermelon salesman who won more than $70,000 in the Westchester Classic and Philadelphia Open on successive weeks and became pro golf's Rookie of the Year.

SNEAD ALIVE

The 56-year-old slammin' Sammy Snead remained in contention at 139, as did Arnold Palmer and Gene Littler at 142. But Bill Casper is broken out with allergy and back at 143 while PGA champion Julius Boros, suffering a stomach ailment, is farther behind at 145. South Africa's Gary Player, his putter ice cold, is at 144.

The blond, bombardiering Nicklaus believes he can iron out his driving kinks under the eye of his old pro, Jack Grout, who now teaches here, but Goalby is another and a sadder problem.

"I can't explain this slump," said the popular, broad-shouldered Masters titleholder. "But I'm in the middle of it. It has happened to others. You can bet I'll be back."

CAN'T PUTT

Goalby refuses to blame his failure of the past year to the controversy that surrounded his victory in the Masters which came after Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina signed an erroneous scoreboard.

"I can't putt," said Goalby. "My scoring average this year has been 72, pretty bad. I haven't had a round in the 60s. In no round have I had less than 32 putts."

Although he won the Masters with a last round 66 and could not be blamed for De Vicenzo's mistake, which cost the Argentine a tie, Goalby has been booed by fans and has been the victim of crank letters.

"It's ironical," said Goalby. "Roberto made about $250,000 as a result of the Masters controversy. I didn't make a cent."

best game in two years."

The former Tulsa star, hampered with injuries the past two seasons, came on in a reserve role and hit nine of 12 shots from the field, most of them long, and also contributed some determined defense.

Thurmond also did some accurate outside shooting, especially in the first half, when he led all the scorers with 21 points.

After leading 64-53 at the half, the Warriors five times had 12-point advantages in the third stanza, but early in the fourth the Lakers cut the lead to four.

With the score 88-84, King hit a long one and Thurmond added a free throw and field goal and the Warriors pulled away to stay before the crowd of 15,119.

Scoring honors went to Howell with 29 points, while Havlicek had 24 and Nelson 21 in the balanced attack. Chet Walker led Philadelphia with 26.

With Jones long gone as a result of a shouting and bumping match with referee Jack Madden after a disputed traveling violation at 3:37 of the first period, Russell drew his third personal less than half a minute into the second session, and then picked up his fourth with almost three minutes to go in the half. Philadelphia was leading, 50-48.

Here Sanders came in for Russell, almost immediately hit five straight points, and the Celtics never trailed again. Philadelphia tied it briefly a couple of times early in the third period, but Boston pulled away.

Colonels Test Oaks In Final Oakland Game

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Oaks, fresh from an easy win over Houston, take on the Kentucky Colonels tomorrow in their final home game of the season.

The Oaks took command early in last night's contest to post a 133-118 American Basketball Association win over the Mavericks.

The win wasn't the only good news for the Oaks. Guard Larry Brown, who pulled a neck muscle in Thursday night's 122-110 win over the Indiana Pacers, started for Oakland last night and dumped in 11 points.

However, fellow guard Henry Logan didn't suit up. Logan injured his head in the Pacer game.

Warren Armstrong led the Oaks with 30 points against the Mavs. He was backed by Gary Bradds' 23. Houston's top two scorers hit for the same amount with Stew Johnson scoring 30 and Kendall Rhine tossing in 23.

Quiet Voice Accomplished Much For Conservation

IN THIS ERA OF confrontation politics it is especially saddening to lose the likes of Dr. Paul T. Wilson.

One of College of Marin's most popular professors for 31 years, said his obituary in the I-J earlier this week.

And so he was, with good reason. He was a warm, friendly man. He was interested in every living thing. His intense interest in flora and fauna detracted not one whit from his interest and concern for every human being he came in contact with.

He knew his subjects. He may well have been the best informed man who ever lived when it came to natural history of Marin.

In this day and age of high velocity living, it is unlikely that anyone ever again will stay on the job such as he did for a full generation. He was as enthusiastic a collector and observer of nature in Marin in his final, retiring year at the college as he had been when he arrived young and energetic 31 years before.

It was infectious. To be his student was to absorb some of his enthusiasm for Marin's flora and fauna.

In the campus terminology of today, his courses were relevant, he communicated with his students, the generation gap was bridged.

In this era of confrontation politics it may be difficult for many to understand how a soft-spoken, mild-mannered fellow like Dr. Wilson could be a powerful force in the never-ending conservation battle.

But a powerful force he was.

Others spoke out more forcefully and provocatively in public. But in his quiet way Dr. Wilson was equally powerful in making "converts" in high places.

IF ONE WERE TO MAKE a list of the greatest conservationists in Marin's long history, the late Congressman William Kent and the late Mrs. Norman B. Livermore would undoubtedly have to top the list.

Among the next two or three names on such a list would have to come Dr. Paul Wilson.

He opened the eyes of thousands of students to the wonders of nature in the world about us. He instilled in them an appreciation for what we now refer to as our natural environment.

The knowledge, appreciation and attitudes of these thousands constitute a living memorial to him. As these attitudes and appreciations are handed from father to son, the results of his work will outlive his name and memory.

Today's advocates of strong-arm tactics on college campuses could well ask themselves whether their methods are destined to produce constructive results which, like Dr. Wilson's, will be felt beneficially long after the passing of the practitioner.

More Teacher-Trustees

In Tuesday's editorial of the conflict of interest situation for school board members who are also teachers, we overlooked three incumbent board members who also fall into that category.

Alyce Farkas, a trustee of Reed School District, is teaching this year at Pacheco School in Novato Unified School District.

Jessie W. Reasoner, a Bolinas-Stinson School District trustee, teaches at El Sobrante in the Richmond Unified School District.

Bruce Woelfel, Sausalito School District trustee, is on the faculty of Sonoma State College.

Mrs. Farkas and Miss Reasoner are candidates for re-election on April 15. Woelfel, whose term also expires, is not seeking another term.

We erred in reporting that Ben Franklin School in Daly City, where Paris B. Simmons, a candidate for the Fairfax School District, is a teacher, is a private school. It is a public school in Jefferson Elementary School District.

The Mustard Family

The mustard family of plants is noted for its pungent aroma, hence its name, which is derived from the word "musk." Besides the mustard plant, the family contains other spring wildflowers. The most prolific of these in Marin County is the common milk maids. (Yes, that's right, the name for some reason is plural.)

Members of the mustard family have a cruciferous flower. That is, they have four petals which form a cross, thus its derivation from crucifix.

Whatever the derivations and scientific classification, all you need to know is that the milk maids are blooming now in Marin County, so look for them.

Tiny Toads

A friend of ours who lives beside the San Rafael Canal tells us that the annual invasion of tiny toads has begun. This tender-hearted fellow doesn't care for the little beasties. Not because he doesn't know their value as living insecticides, but rather he is so fond of them that when he runs over one or two everytime he mows the lawn, it troubles him a bit.

Once he flushed a bucketful of thumbnail-sized toads out of a drainpipe. Those that escaped being flushed out to sea in the egg state are now changing from polliwogs to toadlets. Soon the sounds of toad romance will once more fill the air.

Early Retirement Measure Urged

I recently attended a meeting of the Peace Officers Research Association of California and found at that meeting that there is an urgent need for interested persons to voice their opinions via letter to Sacramento.

Assembly Bill 374 is in committee now and stands a chance of staying there unless we make it known to the committee members that it must . . . go before the Assembly.

This bill is authored by Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes and provides mandatory retirement for all safety members, police and fire, at age 60, and makes it possible for retirement at age 50 at half pay after 25 years of service. This is the same program that the California Highway Patrol now has, as well as many other California cities. The main objective is to make retirement standards uniform throughout the state.

Currently in San Rafael and many other cities locally the mandatory age is 65 years. . . .

Those who are interesetd in assisting their local police and firemen in this matter please write to Wadie P. Deddeh, chairman, Assembly Public Employment and Retirement Committee, State Capitol, Sacramento 95814 and to their local assemblyman.

Chance To Clean Academic House

Fussy as it may seem, I deign to point our that state law provides that "absence without leave of an academic employee for five consecutive working days is an automatic resignation from state service." (Ed. Code 24311).

Only the State Personnel Board may reinstate, and then only if the employee files a written request within 15 days after notice, and makes a "satisfactory explanation" of his absence.

What a neat opportunity to Americanize the "faculties!" I mean those who are not already in jail. Moreover, it would seem slightly immoral to intentionally frustrate such a clear pronouncement of law.

Emergency Roles Draw Gratitude

This is a somewhat belated note to thank Officer Richard Standridge of the San Anselmo Police Department and Capt. Role Of Teacher On School Board

While my position is quite different from the candidates you mention in your editorial of March 25 regarding interest-conflict for teacher-trustees, I am a public school teacher, and Ben Franklin School in Daly City is not a private, but a public school.

My position is different in that I am not teaching in the same county, in fact two counties away, and am not professionally associated with teachers in this county, other than in belonging to the same state and national educational associations.

Frankly, in my case, and I hope in the case of the other teacher candidates there is no possibility of a conflict of interest, such as you state. In the first place each school district is budgeted on the basis of its educational needs, and thus each demand for funds, salary or otherwise must be based on what benefit it will be for the children of the particular district, not on what some other district is demanding at the time. Second, it is a decided benefit to have a teacher on the board, for they have the background necessary to determine where financial cuts can be made in budgets which will not affect the educational quality. Third, as in my case, teaching in a school that has as many children as the district of Fairfax, will enable me, if elected, to recommend to our board innovations which are both educationally sound and beneficial to the children and taxpayers of this community. Finally, being a teacher in a district which has had a great deal of educational crises, will allow me, if elected, to assist in avoiding such crises in Fairfax during the next four years.

I appreciate the intent of your editorial, and the continued policy of editorials which deserve deep consideration by all citizens of our county.

PARIS B. SIMMONS

Police Surrender Citizen's Trust

In reference to your editorial, March 26, regarding "Police Cannot Carry Society's Responsiblity," let us face some facts.

When you and I, both, can once again completely trust policemen, then, and only then, will law-enforcement return to your desired effectiveness.

Even yet, I am occasionally warned to stay out of a certain city because my wife and/or I may be subjected to an embarrassing arrest. This threat hangs over our heads only because of gutless policemen — policemen who feel they must or forced to uphold the image of law-enforcement at any cost. . . .

I believe it is important — partly as an American citizen and partly because I have earned it because I have served my country well — from Pearl Harbor to the peace surrender in Tokyo Bay — that I remain free to move as any ordinary citizen.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A young lady expressed consternation at the news that her wealthy 80-year-old grandfather had up and married his twenty-two-year-old secretary. "I can understand," she told her husband, "what December can see in May — but what, I ask you, is May going to find in December?"

Her husband ansered, "Christmas."

THE DRUMMONDS

The President Everyone Trusted —That Was General Eisenhower

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — I'd like to tell you some things about the Ike I knew — some things intimate, some significant.

Despite his 42 years in the Army, General Eisenhower didn't think in purely military terms. His was a civilian mind and there is a vivid example of how he dismayed much of the top brass when he was chief of staff.

It was in the late 1940s. Congress was about to set up the Atomic Energy Commission and, since weapons then were to be its main business, there was tremendous pressure to put the military in control. Those who wanted it that way were pleading with Ike to back them. They were sure that if he did, his view would prevail.

But Ike came down for civilian control. "Let the Pentagon," he said, "be the client, not the manager."

DURING HIS eight years in the White House Ike achieved two things which then were simply taken for granted:

He had total credibility. He was never disbelieved.

When the U.S. U-2 spy plane was shot down over Russia, many inside and outside the government urged him to pretend he didn't know about the flights. President Eisenhower refused. He knew about these flights and he didn't propose to say otherwise.

Ike had the total trust of most Americans. He had it under all circumstances.

In 1956 people were calling for his re-election on the ground he got us out of the Korean war. When the Hungarian revolution threatened war, they called for his election because he would be needed if war came. Whether the issue was peace or war, the nation trusted Ike as it trusted few presidents in history.

IKE HAD spontaneous wit.

Once he wrote a lengthy, longhand letter to his close friend, Winston Churchill. Because it went beyond amiabilities and dealt with delicate diplomatic issues, the President sent it over to the State Department for comment and criticism.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles read it. Undersecretary Walter Bedell Smith read it. Other experts read it, line by line, syllable by syllable. Then they gathered in Dulles' office to pool their views. The secretary reached for the White House phone.

"Mr. President," Dulles began, "we have all read your letter to Churchill." He paused. "We can't find anything wrong with it."

A booming laugh came over the phone.

"Can't find anything wrong?" Ike asked. "What's the matter over there? Everything falling apart?"

NOTHING FELL apart during the Eisenhower presidency. Racial turmoil had not escalated, but the cold war was still on. Ike held the line in West Berlin, used U.S. troops at Lebanon's request to keep it from being taken over by Communist force and began disarmament negotiations with the Soviets.

General Eisenhower helped his party to shed its isolationist moorings and make it embrace social and economic welfare legislation for the first time since the 1930s.

He often found the GOP a heavy cross to bear. One time when Joe McCarthy was attacking him for being soft on Communists, and other Republicans were belaboring him in the Senate and holding up his bills in the House, I wrote a column suggesting that the GOP had been out of power so long it didn't realize it had a President in the White House.

Ike sent me the column torn from the Washington Post with his scrawl across the top: "This is exactly how I feel."

Ike perhaps was not a great President — but certainly a great American.

Airports Solve Congestion Snarl— Make You Walk To Destination

WASHINGTON — I am constantly amazed how the airlines are solving their problems. Everyone is aware that one of the big stumbling blocks to future air transportation is airport facilities. No airport in the country is prepared to handle the new air buses carrying 400 passengers that will soon be put into service.

I was under the impression that no one was working on the crisis, but I was wrong. The airlines and airports together are solving the problem in one of the most unconventional ways that human engineers have ever devised.

They're making people walk to their destinations.

AS THE AIRPORTS get larger, they keep extending their terminals, and the gates to the aircraft keep getting further away.

I discovered the consequence of this the other day when I had to catch a plane in Chicago for Davenport, Iowa. I started walking toward my gate, then realizing I had only an hour to make it, I started jogging. A few miles later I discovered I still wasn't anywhere near the gate, so I started sprinting. But because I was carrying a brief case, I just didn't have the spurt I needed for the last few miles, and I missed my plane.

THE AIRLINE ticket attendant was very sympathetic and said to me, "Why don't you walk to Davenport: It's only a few more miles down the road."

"Only a few more miles down the road?"

"Yes, we don't like to talk about it, because we naturally want people to fly, but most of our airline terminals have been spreading out so far that our departure gates are located only a few miles from where people are going. If you look out the window, you can see the lights of Davenport right over there."

"That's amazing," I said. "I knew I had gone pretty far, but I didn't think I was anywhere near Davenport."

"Most people don't," the ticket attendant said. "But, you see, we have to keep extending the wings of the terminal to handle the traffic and so the cities get nearer and nearer. Someday we hope to link the Davenport and Chicago airports so passengers can walk between the two of them without getting wet. It certainly will solve the pressing, airport traffic problems."

I THOUGHT Chicago was the only airport doing this, but not long ago I was out in Los Angeles and had to make a plane for Santa Barbara. When I was given my gate number for the flight, I started for it. And you can imagine my delight and surprise when I discovered that by the time I got there I was only five miles from the Santa Barbara city limits.

Then last week, I was in Miami and had to fly to Tampa. As I walked through the terminal to my gate, I stopped off for lunch at the Palm Beach Airport snack bar, and then continued straight on to find my plane was parked at a gate number just beyond Orlando.

I found out that every major airport in the country is now working on tunnels and ramps which will eventually hook up with airports in other cities. It's the first breakthrough in airline congestion. Engineers predict that in the not too distant future all the airline terminals in the United States will be linked together, and by the time a passenger reaches his gate number on foot, he will have arrived at the place where he originally intended to fly.

Span Panel Approves Electronic Toll Plan

A one-year test of an experimental electronic system to collect tolls on the Golden Gate Bridge was approved unanimously yesterday by bridge and highway district directors.

The key to the system is a "slave unit" attached to a vechicle that automatically broadcasts a four-digit code number to a receiver as it passes through the toll gates. The receiver records the number on paper tape for automated billing by the district's computer.

While the test will be limited to district vehicles, and possibly buses, it could be used by commuters on their vehicles, and if the system is successful and approved by the directors, said district engineer Robert E. Shields.

Several toll gates would be set aside for vehicles equipped for the system, he said, adding it would be compatible with his proposal for a $3 million expansion of the toll plaza.

Shields first proposed the $20,000 test last July, but the former general manager of the district, James Adam, said its development should be left to the federal government. Adam's successor, Dale W. Luehring, endorsed the test.

The equipment, including 270 "slave units," is to be rented from the Taller-Cooper Division of Litton Industries at $986 a month. The test will start in September, Shields said.

The proposed expansion of the plaza, which would provide a new southbound roadway west of the administration building and reverse toll collection to northbound traffic, was recommended Thursday by the building and operating committee. A majority of directors favored it yesterday, and none opposed it, but approval was postponed to April 11 to give more time to review the plan.

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors also:

TOWER LIGHTS — Invited the firm of John S. Bolles and Associates of San Francisco to submit a proposal for floodlighting the towers of the bridge, at no cost to the district.

IUSPECTION — Appropriated an additional $38,000 to complete structural inspection of the bridge by Ammann and Whitney of New York. The engineering firm last year was given a $460,000 contract for the inspection, but Shields said costs had risen because of unusually poor weather and the need for additional inspection.

AWARD — Received a "life savers" plaque from Suicide Prevention Inc. of San Francisco praising district employees for saving nearly 4,000 lives since the bridge opened in 1937, or 10 lives for each successful jumper.

BUS PLAN — Set a joint finance and commuters' affairs committee meeting at 9 a.m. April 7 to consider adoption of the plan for the district to go into the commuter bus business.

RESTAURANT — Referred to committee for study a proposal by San Francisco Supervisor William C. Blake that the Round House Restaurant at the toll plaza be replaced with a "first class" restaurant.

$29 Million Settlement In 1960 Midair Plane Disaster

NEW YORK (UPI) — All claims arising from the 1960 midair crash of two airliners over Staten Island finally have been settled for a total of $29 million.

With the announcement of the final award yesterday, Brooklyn Federal Court broke the seal of secrecy on the case. The proceedings had been kept secret for three years while the awards were made.

The crash, which ranked as the world's worst air disaster until only 13 days ago, took place when a United Air Lines jetliner and a Trans World Airlines Lockheed Super Constellation groping through fog and sleet collided over a small Army airport on Staten Island Dec. 16, 1960.

All 128 persons aboard the planes and six people on the ground died in the crash. In June 1962, the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington declared the United Airline crew negligent since the DC8 jetliner was more than seven miles beyond the farthest limits assigned to it by radar controllers at Kennedy International Airport, then called Idlewild. The plane also had a defect in its navigational equipment.

United Flight 826, going to Idlewild from Chicago with 77 passengers and seven crewmen, sliced into TWA Flight 266 on its way to LaGuardia Airport from Dayton and Columbus, Ohio, with 39 passengers and a crew of five.

Big Bridge Tournament Continuing

Marin County bridge players failed to win the big ones yesterday but grabbed several impressive victories in the annual tournament of the Marin unit of the American Contract Bridge League at the National Guard Armory in Santa Venetia.

The trhee-day tournament drew about 500 persons from throughout the Bay Area to yesterday's opening round.

Donald A. Greenhalgh of Novato, president of the Marin unit, said that tonight's games would start at 8 p.m., and tomorrow's sessions at 1:15 p.m. and 7 p.m.

In the women's pairs yesterday, Elizabeth and Hazel Brodie of Greenbrae took second overall, for the best Marin showing.

In the men's pairs, the best Marin could do was a third by Robert Spicher and David Smith of San Rafael.

William C. Moor of Novato and Elaine Jaccard of San Rafael took a section first in last night's mixed pairs event.

In the side game, Owen V. Haxton and William Smith of Novato led the field with a first overall score of 207.

Ban On Shellfish Remains In Effect

An official ban on taking shellfish from Richardson Bay is still in effect, Marin County health authorities said yesterday and will remain till tests show them to be safe for consumption.

The ban, imposed Feb. 27, was ordered when state Department of Public Health tests showed "gross sewage contamination" in the bay. Health officials warned such diseases as typhoid, infectious hepatitis and salmonella can be caused by eating the contaminated shellfish.

Two Poodles Visit The Beauty Parlor For Their Primping

It's Necessary, Says An Owner, For The Dogs' Sense Of Esteem

By DON KEOWN

BONJOUR GAIETY and Beau Bouffon DeArgent, two miniature poodles belonging to Mrs. Terrie Ellerman, were decidedly overdue for a visit to the beauty salon when this photograph was taken, and, according to their owner, seemed downright ashamed of and unhappy with their shaggy appearances.

DOROTHY NEWMAN, at work with power shears, begins the transformation of a once shaggy poodle into a sleek, well contoured animal. Finishing touches will be done with hand scissors. And while she works, Mrs. Newman keeps up a patter of soothing talk to the dog.

So you think those visits paid by poodles to the canine beauty salons for primping and pampering are only affectations of the owners?

Far from it, staunchly maintains Mrs. Terrie Ellerman of San Anselmo, owner of a pair of handsome specimens of the popular breed.

"Without their trims and all the other attentions they receive at the salon, poodles are miserable," she insists.

ORDINARILY Mrs. Ellerman takes her miniature poodles, Bonjour Gaiety, a silver, and Beau Bouffon DeArgent, a champagne or near white, to the Gay Doggie Salon of Dorothy and Art Newman at 511 Fourth Street, San Rafael, once a month for clipping and grooming.

"And recently when I let them go four months between visits, it was plain they just didn't feel right," Mrs. Ellerman declares. "They didn't even like themselves."

Bonjour Gaiety and Beau Bouffon DeArgent are mother and son, and both show dogs with winning records.

A VISIT TO the salon goes something like this, according to Mrs. Ellerman:

"When the pet arrives at the shop, he is placed in an open-type kennel without doors and snapped by his own collar to which he is accustomed. He is first brushed and combed thoroughly to loosen any dirt in the hair, to remove matting and tangle, and to fluff his coat." Then the "clip" to be given later is "patterned" into the hair.

There follow two separate baths with rinses.

THE FIRST bath is primarily a flea and tick killer with a weak blueing solution to restore true color to the hair and to bring out contrasts. There is also a deodorant in the water to kill doggie odors.

The second bath contains a protein-balanced solution of skin and coat conditioners to alleviate dry skin, to separate the hair, and to cause it to soften and to fluff for better clipping.

No soap or detergent is permitted in the bath water to prevent the loss of natural oil from the hair.

DURING THE bath the teeth of the dog are inspected and the owner informed if there is loosening or decay requiring the attention of the veterinarian.

Eyes are swabbed to remove irritation. Ears are cleansed, treated with a solution to dispell excess moisture and an antibiotic, and cleared of hair. Nails are trimmed as short as possible along with the dew claws.

Next the dog is dried thoroughly with a warm air blower while being constantly brushed and combed.

THEN THE pattern for the clip is "scissor-shaped" to a smooth, even format to fit the contours of the poodle.

The master or mistress specifies the kind of clip and the degree of closeness. Bonjour wears a Dutch clip while Beau Bouffon sports a continental cut.

The clipping completed with hand scissors, the finishing touches are applied — pastel-colored ribbons chosen from a rack five feet long, polish for the nails (some 30 colors are available), perfume and cologne.

The grooming over, the poodle has been restored to self-esteem for another month.

THROUGHOUT the treatment, Mrs. Ellerman says, Dot Newman has kept up a continuous stream of soothing talk to the dog she is grooming. And it responds with patience and obedience.

"All the girls employed in the salon also seem to take a personal interest in each dog and treat them as individuals," she reports.

And despite all the special attention accorded them, Mrs. Ellerman denies that poodles are spoiled canines. "They take it all in stride," she says.

POODLES, SHE maintains, are dogs of exceptional personality, intensely loyal, obedient, fine retrievers, "and they never fight."

Mrs. Ellerman does have one bit of advice for poodle owners: "Don't remain at the salon while your dog is being groomed. If he knows you are there, he will put on an awful show of pretended abuse. While I stayed, mine were the worst behaved dogs in the place."

And while poodles are often regarded as dogs that appeal primarily to women, Mrs. Ellerman says it is surprising the number of owners who left or called for their pets, now

"Why Did My Husband's Trousers Split On The Crease?"

The construction of the fabric from which the trousers are made is the reason for the fabric split. The fabric is made of highly twisted yarns. When they are creased, there is an extra strain on them. After repeated pressings on the same crease line, the tendency to break is multiplied. The agitation necessary to cleaning the trousers causes the weakened fabric to break and the damage becomes noticeable.

The fault lies in the highly twisted yarns used in the manufacture of the trousers.

sleek, lavender-scented and beribboned, who were men.

THE GAY Doggie Salon caters to German shepherds, cocker spaniels, beagles, other longhair and terrier breeds and just plain mutts as well as poodles. But poodles are the principal patrons.

In 15 years of working with dogs, Dorothy Newman says she has been bitten but once — then by a young poodle receiving his first trim. She stresses that the offending dog had been brought up in a kennel without human companionship.

Generally, she says, the dogs are cooperative, and most even seem to enjoy the attention. Tranquilizers are not used.

THERE IS none of the "alligator wrestling" technique associated with home bathing and grooming of the family pet to be seen at the Gay Doggie Salon.

But the scene is a busy one, and the sound, with four women regularly employed by the Newmans, is generally one of feminine chatter and laughter, plus the snip of shears and the noise of other equipment in operation.

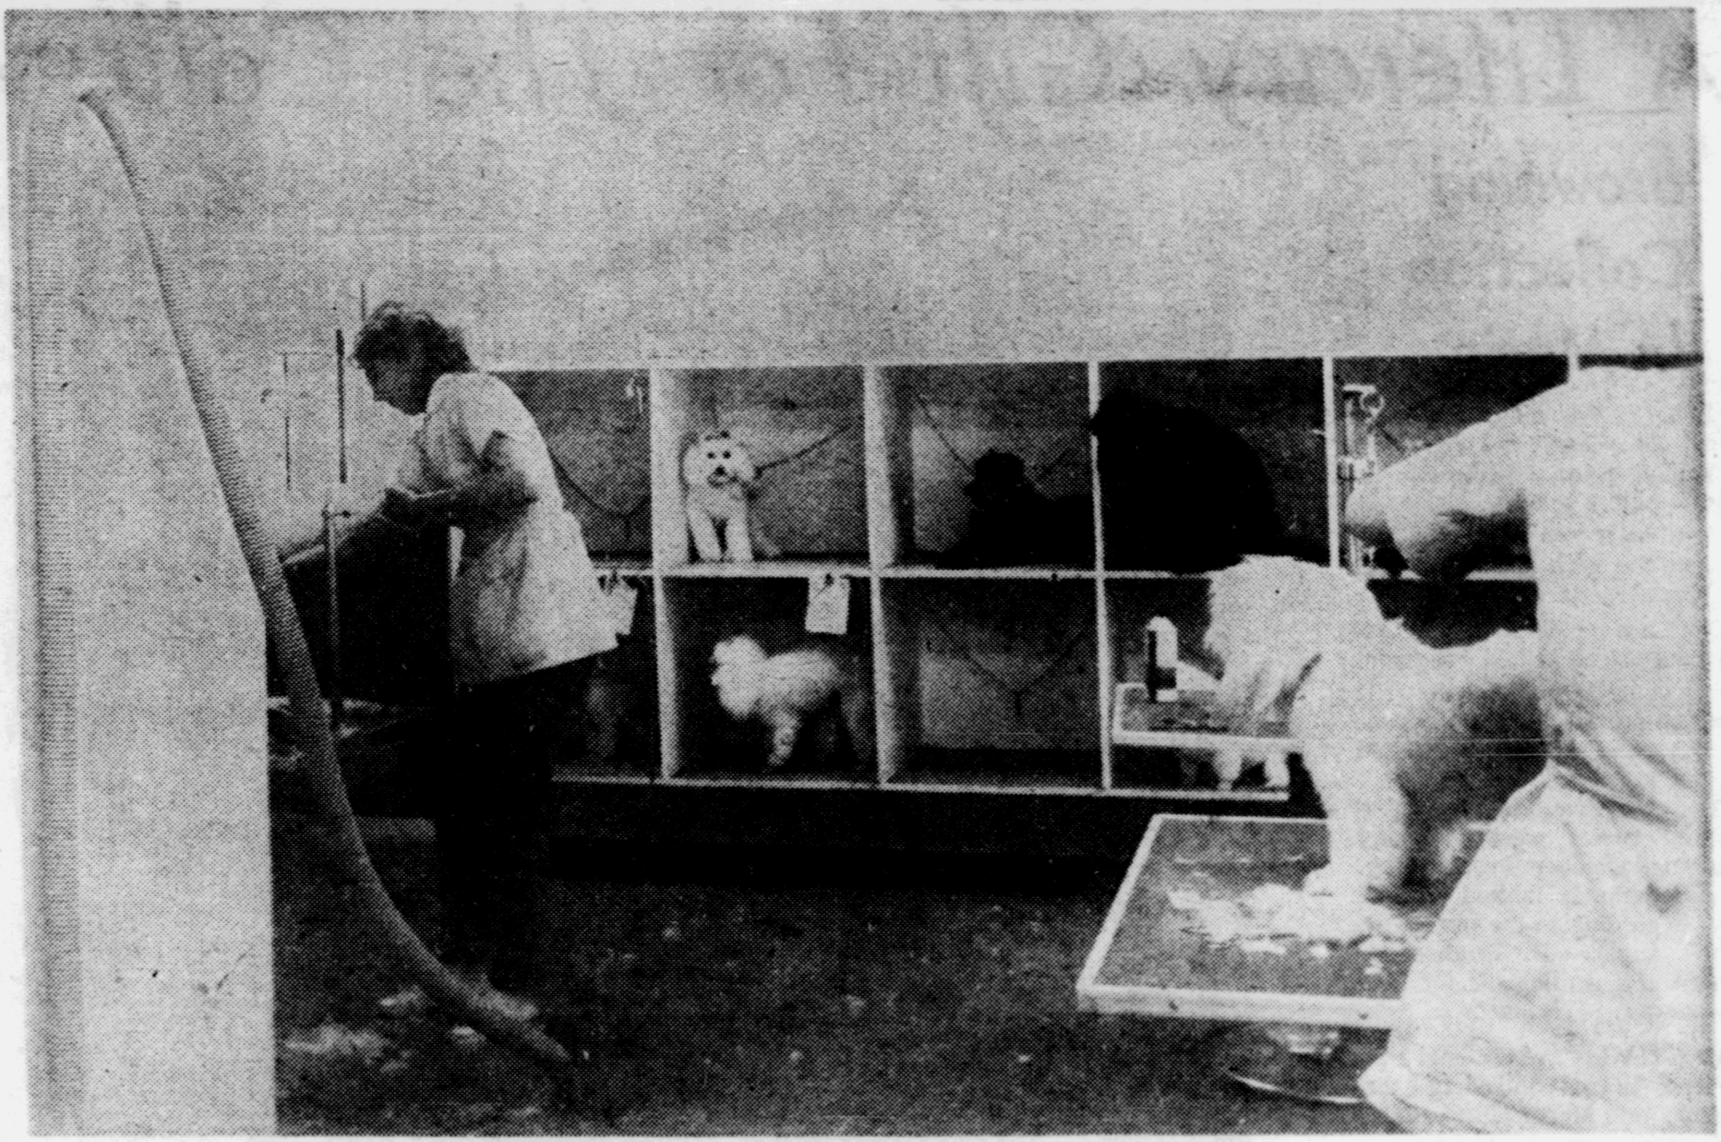
"It reminds me of the sounds at a secretarial school," Mrs. Ellerman says.

THE NEWMANS have operated their salon for 13 years. They belong to the United Dog Groomers, the American Dog Grooming Association and the American Pet Shop Association.

Their establishment is deceptive in size, since it extends back some 175 feet.

What does all this primping of their pedigreed dogs cost the owners?

For Bonjour and Beau Bouffon, Mrs. Ellerman says, the tab for the full treatment runs about $20 a dog. But the transformation from a somewhat woolly pet indistinguishable from many another dog of less exalted ancestry to a proud pedigreed poodle of poise and personality is well worth that cost, she adds.



THIS IS THE scene in the Gay Doggie Salon in San Rafael as some dogs are clipped and groomed by handlers, while others, their trims completed or yet to be administered, await in private cubicles with varying degrees of patience.

THEIR PRIMPING and clipping completed, Bonjour Gaiety and Beau Bouffon DeArgent, all fluffy and beribboned, look like two very different poodles from the dogs that had entered the Gay Doggie Salon only a short time before. (Photos by the Tiny Tots Studio)

A Literary Gift For The College Library

Browning Collection In Marin

Robert Browning has been dead 80 years, and his wife, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, for more than a century.

Yet those two poets are still among the most honored figures in English letters.

Nor are their admirers restricted to the United Kingdom.

Browning societies continue to flourish in the United States, one of the most active being based in San Francisco.

The San Francisco Browning Society meets weekly Friday mornings October through May. Membership is limited to 100, and, according to the president, Mrs. August B. Rothschild, "there is a waiting list for new members."

MEETINGS ARE held at various places including the Century and Metropolitan clubs, and once a month there is a principal speaker.

An active member of the Browning enthusiasts during her lifetime was the late Sarah Wingate Taylor, poet and professor of English at San Rafael's Dominican College for 20 years.

As a result of that relationship, Dominican's Archbishop Alemany Library, opened six years ago this April, has received a windfall.

IN MEMORY of Miss Taylor, the Browning Society presented to the Dominican library a 150-volume collection of works pertaining to the Brownings.

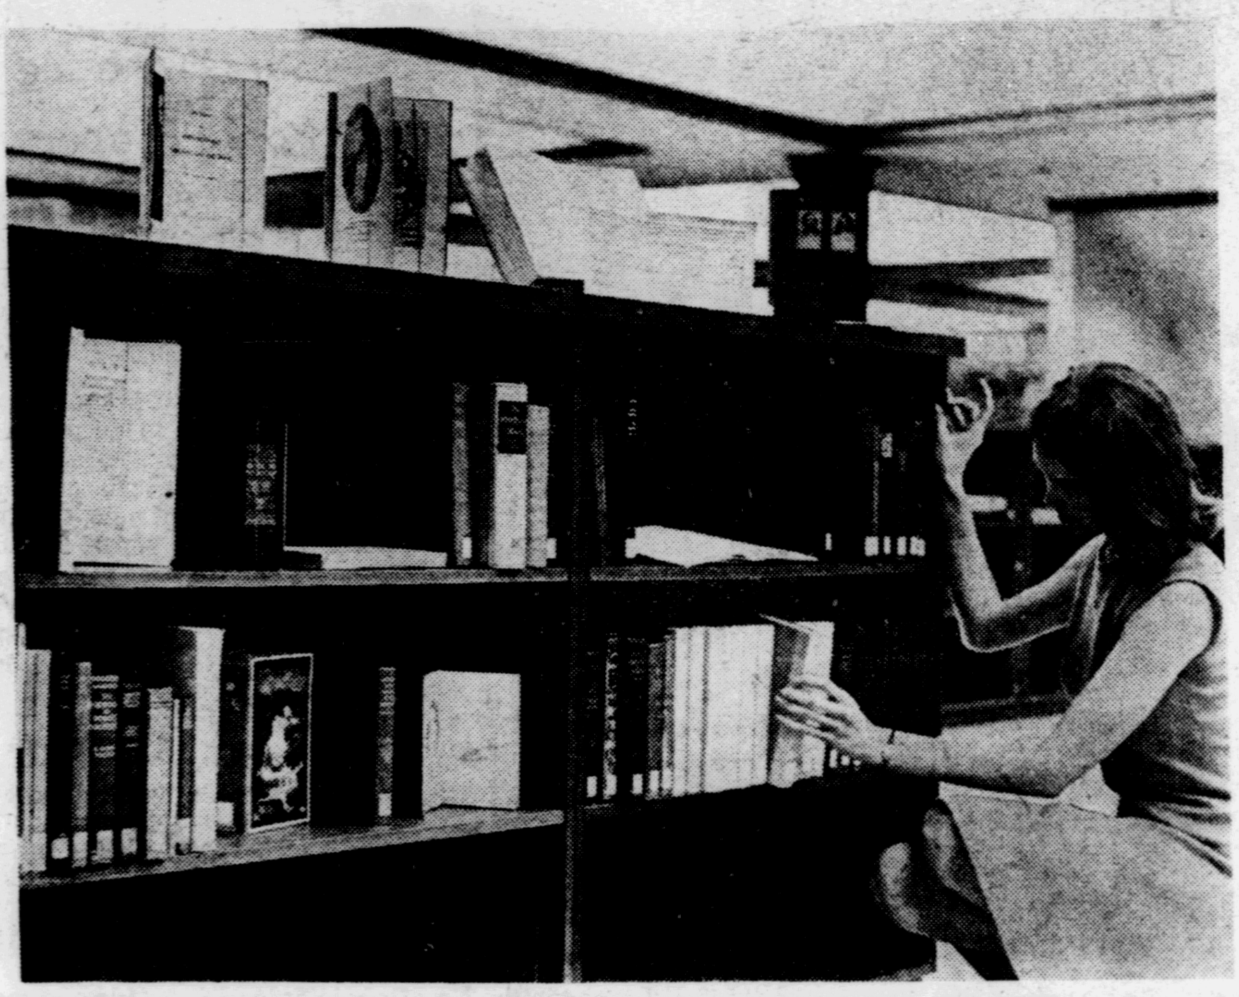
The gift was made last fall, but the processing of the volumes has just been finished at the library.

Included are the complete works of Robert and Elizabeth Browning, plus volumes of biography, criticism and memorabilia.

ALSO INCLUDED are the "papers" of the Browning Society of London which were published in 13 parts from 1881 to 1891, the papers of the Browning Society of Boston published from 1886 to 1897, and a few monographs under the title "Mornings With the San Francisco Browning Society" that date back to the founding of that society in March of 1902.

Outstanding in the collection, according to Sister M. Marguerite, O.P., librarian, is the material pertaining to Browning's famous poem "The Ring and the Book."

These include a complete photographic reproduction of the group of 18 pamphlets, dated 1698, that Browning called "the old yellow book" and upon which he based his poem to Guido and Francesca Franchesini. The original pamphlets are now at Balliol College, Oxford University. The collection also includes photographs of Florentine art, "Florence in the Poetry of the Brownings," and Helen Clarke's "Browning's Italy," a study of life and art in Browning.



SUSAN BURNS, a Dominican College junior from San Rafael, examines some of the first editions and rare facsimiles of Robert Browning's works, letters and critical studies dating back to the 19th Century that have been presented to the Archbishop Alemany Library by the Browning Society of San Francisco in memory of the late poet, Sarah Wingate Taylor.

HANDWRITTEN monographs entitled "Mornings With the San Francisco Browning Society" that date back to 1902 are examined at Dominican College's Archbishop Alemany Library by Laurie Lynch of Santa Ana, who will be doing graduate work at the school this May for honors in her major subject, English. The monographs are part of the Browning collection of books and papers, now housed in the San Rafael college's library.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Browning Society has apparently been primarily concerned with Robert Browning though the collection has some critical studies on the work of his wife, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, published in 1899 and 1907, as well as a 1929 volume titled "Elizabeth Barrett Browning: Letters to her Sister, 1846-1859."

A collection of volumes published at Baylor University during the tenure of A. J. Armstrong are also included, along with some of that Browning authority's letters to San Francisco society members.

The third Dominican College library is a million dollar structure designed by Henry Schubart of Schubart and Friedman of San Francisco that won an award of merit from the American Institute of Architects and the American Library Association in 1964.

OVER 46,000 books were moved from Guzman Hall to the new building in 1963 and the collection has since grown to 61,000 including 3,500 volumes processed last year. The open stacks will house an eventual 100,000 books, a goal that could be reached in 10 years at the present rate of growth.

The library serves both the four-year liberal arts program of the college and the graduate school which means, according to Sister Marguerite, that it must be an academic library kept current with the curriculum needs as well as a research library to meet the requirements of the faculty and graduate students.

"We have a large collection of art books because of our emphasis on the humanities and art history" Sister Marguerite stated, "and have increased our buying in the field of black culture because of the new minor in black studies."

BUT DOMINICAN has not tried to initiate collections, though it has also a collection of books, photos, documents and personal letters of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, presented by the Nimitz family and the United States Department of the Navy.

And now, a quite respectable research library on the Brownings.

The special curriculum library of about 2,000 books serves the education department with all state texts and supplementary texts for secondary and elementary studies plus pictures, pamphlets, units of work and courses of study used in California public schools.

THE GENERAL library collection has been enriched by matching federal grants and private gifts. The library also keeps current with 375 periodicals covering the curriculum with additional titles of recreational and cultural interest.

Though the library's primary service is to Dominican College faculty and students, it is also available to the adult community for reference work.

College of Marin students are referred by their own librarians who keep a record of the books most in demand.

Dominican College alumnae pay a small fee for library privileges each semester and may borrow books.

A COMPLETE "listening room" is now being furnished as the result of a fund raising project by the Associated Students of Dominican College. The students also presented a large tapestry woven in Egypt entitled "Tree of Life" that hangs in the fireplace corner of the main floor.

The library is open daily throughout the school year, with the exception of major holidays.

NANCY KRIEG, a senior from San Rafael, and Devi San Lazaro, a graduate student from Bangalore, India, peruse some art books in the fireplace corner of the Dominican College library which is enhanced by the colorful tapestry, "Tree of Life," handwoven from natural fibers by the children of Harrania, Egypt. The Dominican College student body presented the tapestry for the college to Sister M. Samuel, O.P., last month in commemoration of her first year as president.

Marin families enjoy the highest average incomes of any county in all 13 Western States.

The Bitter Mr. Bierce

A Fellow Commuter Remembers When The Writer Was A Marinite

(Editor's Note: From 1908 to 1912 Marin County pioneer William T. Ortman, now an Oakland resident, was a fellow commuter with the writer Ambrose Bierce on the trains and ferryboats between San Rafael and San Francisco. In this article, he sets down for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine his recollections of Bierce.)

By WILLIAM T. ORTMAN

In the period when I knew him as a fellow commuter, Ambrose Bierce was a tall, somewhat slender man, in his late 60s.

For a man that age, he had a splendid head of curly hair, although the hairline on his forehead was beginning to recede and thin a bit, giving his face a more rounded appearance.

The nose was small, but finely sculptured. His complexion was a soft white with a slight ruddy tint that would have been becoming in any girl. The eyebrows were not heavy, but somewhat roughly defined.

BIERCE WORE a small mustache waxed at the ends and turned up modestly like that of Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm.

The mouth was small and tender looking, giving the face a look of shyness that was in contrast to the rapier-like intellect of the brilliant mind.

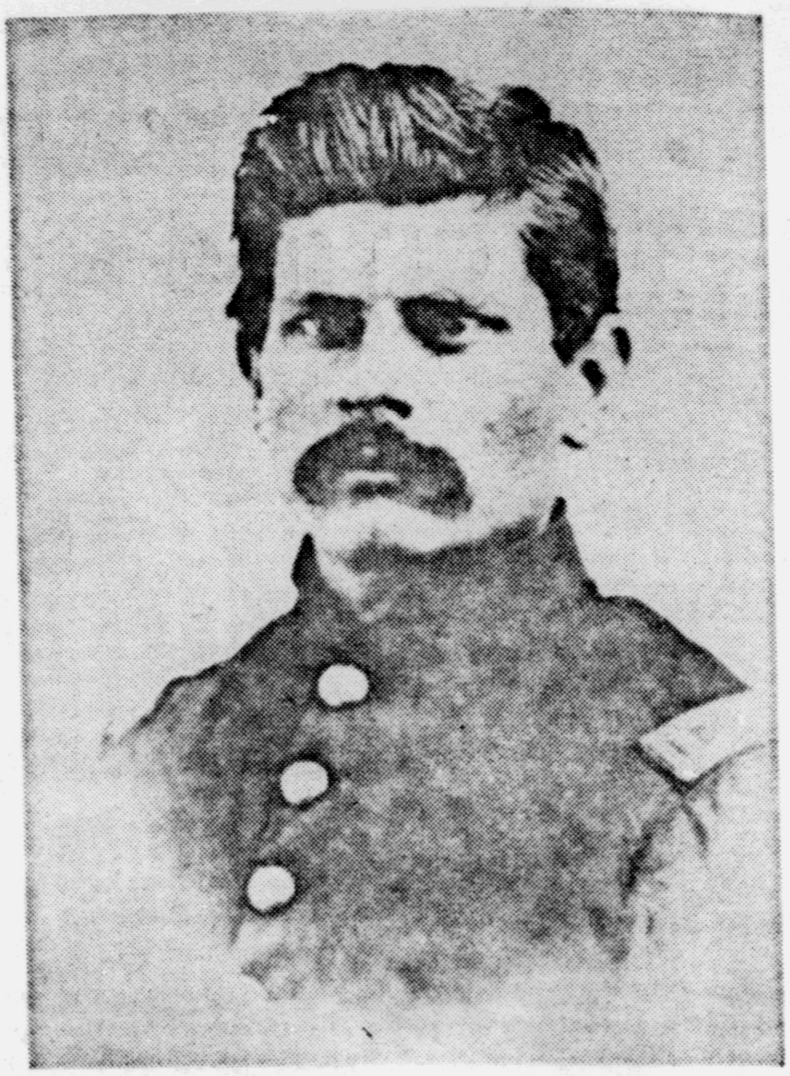
It was the daily occurence, except for Sunday, for the milkman to see the handsome Bierce at 6:15 o'clock in the morning, striding along San Rafael's Second Street enroute from his rented quarters on E to the depot where he would board the electric train for San Francisco.

BIERCE LIKED fine clothes and he knew how to wear them. He would be attired in a fashionable suit, rosebud in the lapel of the coat, derby hat and kid gloves, sporting a light cane, the very picture of sartorial elegance.

At the depot he purchased an Examiner from a newsboy and immediately boarded his train. So punctual was Bierce that he and the train invariably arrived at the station at the exact same time.

The San Francisco Examiner was then the pride of the William Randolph Hearst newspaper empire, and Bierce was its star columnist.

AT THE TIME San Rafael enjoyed two competing railroad lines, and the commuter movement was considerable, especially after the new electric trains went into operation.



AS A YOUNG soldier in the Union Army during the Civil War, Ambrose Bierce developed a hatred for war and warmakers that was to remain with him long after he came West, established his home in San Francisco and San Rafael, and became a leading newspaper columnist and literary figure.

Bankers, developers, stockbrokers, etc., were able to live in grandiose fashion in Marin on spacious estates, and ride to the city and work in style and comfort.

This created an elite set of commuters composed largely of Montgomery Street tycoons with mutual interests and prestige. Perhaps the kingpin of this group of magnates might have been Capt. Robert Dollar, distinguished in appearance, immaculate in attire. But he was often abroad and missing from the commuter train for months at a time.

HARRISON DIBBLE, mining engineer and realtor was the leading candidate for that leadership in Dollar's absence.

Another contender, and oldest of the trio, was Ambrose Bierce, bon vivant as well known in London and New York as he was in San Francisco.

Yet for all his elegance, Ambrose Bierce was a quiet man and something of a brooder. He was known for his solitary strolls on Sunday afternoons about San Rafael. He was a man who preferred being alone to company, meditation to conversation.

THE TOWN was well aware that he was something of a celebrity, and an especially gifted person. Bierce knew this, too. He saw to it that he was well paid for his talents, both for the newspaper and for periodicals and books.

When Ambrose Bierce Rode Marin To San Francisco Trains

He had been born in Ohio of poor but religious parents, the 10th child in a family of 14. What education he received came from his mother, a woman he worshiped throughout his life. Still a teen-ager, he had enlisted in the Union Army in 1861.

Four years spent in the Civil War furnished material for his successful short stories, but also left him melancholy and with a hatred of war. To him, the soldier's life was wretched, and his death was worse. The forces that brought war about were regarded with cynicism and detestation, and were the targets of some of his strongest venom.

IN LATER years he had mellowed somewhat, and the supernatural had become a prime interest, resulting in Edgar Allan Poe-like tales.

Although on the commuter train, Bierce rubbed shoulders with and was considered the equal of any of the men who made up the clique of the wealthy and the powerful, it was upon the ranks of the ruling that he aimed his fiercest barbs. The ruling class of San Francisco's business and social world did not escape his attentions. Stung again and again by his acid pen, they called him "Bitter Bierce."

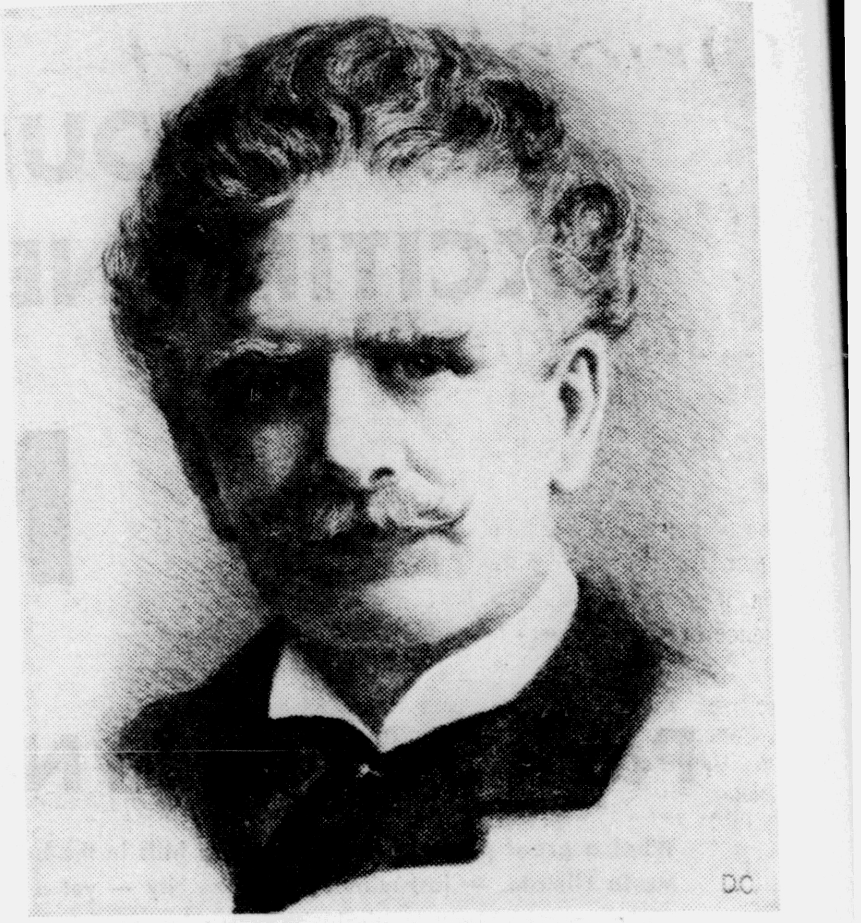
Frequently he was attacked physically and forced to defend himself. And he kept his office door locked, a dueling pistol on his desk.

BUT HIS fellow writers, and many others, respected his wit, honesty, courage and his dislike of pretense and sham. So did many others, who enjoyed his thrusts at pomposity and admired his literary talents.

His ride to San Francisco was spent largely in perusing the Examiner and his own column, not out of admiration for what he had written but in search of changes that might have been inflicted by space-minded editors or errors that might have been committed by typographers.

His regular seat was on the second coach back, west side, so that the morning sun did not glare upon the newspaper page. He avoided the smoking car favored by many of the commuters because he was asthmatic.

AND EVEN though his position as a member of the commuter elite was recognized, he generally rode in silence. His mind was too busy planning the next assault upon a strutting buffoon or unprincipled miscreant for idle conversation.



AMBROSE BIERCE was a handsome man, fair in complexion, with a heavy head of curly hair, and with a mustache carefully waxed at the ends. This portrait by Douglas Crane captures the handsome Bierce much as fellow commuter William T. Ortman remembers him, although it was dated some years prior to those contacts.

Suddenly, in the fall of 1912, he resigned his position with the Examiner and disappeared from San Rafael and San Francisco.

A fellow journalist saw him in El Paso, Tex., in the early winter of 1913, describing him as seeming very tired. According to this acquaintance, Bierce announced his intention of going into Mexico to observe the revolutionary fighting there.

ATTEMPTS TO dissuade him failed.

There is no record of Bierce ever being seen again after he shook hands with that journalist friend and walked away down that El Paso street.

In 1915, Fremont Older, editor and owner of the San Francisco Bulletin, sent James H. Wilkins, a native of San Rafael and a very competent reporter, to Mexico to search for Bierce or to learn the details of his demise.

WILKINS WROTE that, contrary to those writers who had alleged that Bierce had gone to Mexico to join with Pancho Villa's guerrillas, the American had actually served on the staff of a government army. Other investigators have written similarly. And Wilkins also wrote that Bierce ultimately had been captured by the Villa forces and executed.

Reporting an alleged interview with a man who claimed to have witnessed Bierce's death before the firing squad, Wilkins said the one-time dandy and literary light of the San Francisco Bay Area died before the firing squad calmly, arms folded, unafraid, courageous to the end.

And there was no grave, wrote Wilkins. For the Mexican rebels did not bother to bury the dead, but instead left the bodies to the buzzards.

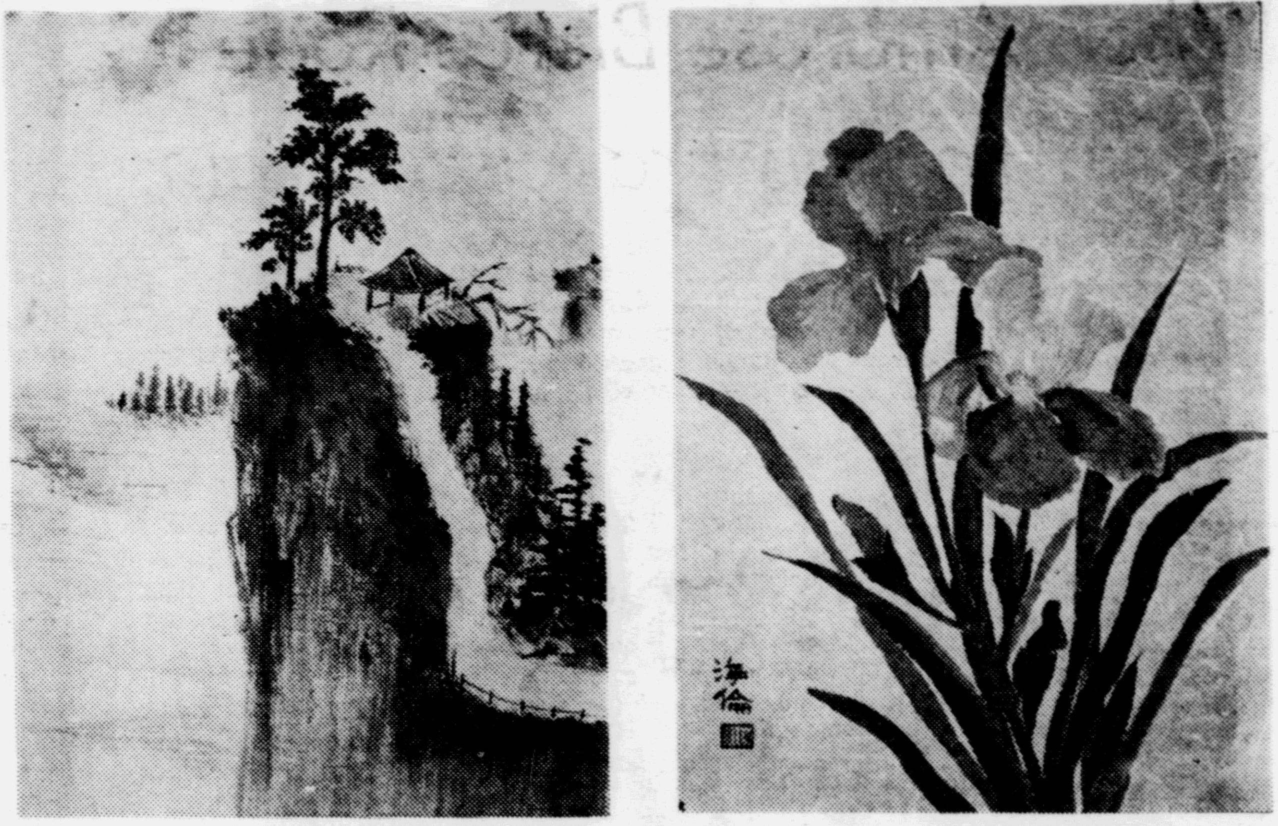
Oriental Art In The West

Caucasians Borrow From Style Of Chinese Masters

By GIL PEARSON



TWO PAINTINGS by Helen Loudon of Mill Valley demonstrate the delicacy of line and silhouette and the air of serenity that mark artwork done in the centuries-old manner of the Chinese masters.

However great the influence of Western arts on contemporary China, it can hardly surpass the influence of her own arts on the West.

For one thing, there is the vast Caucasian student drive to grasp the simplicity of expression which characterizes Chinese portrayal.

Marin student Helen Loudon says:

"The natural effects of light and shade are almost wholly absent in this art, which relies rather on its incomparable mastery of line and silhouette. Joyfully, Oriental paintings depict life's moments of serenity and quiet. It is this quality which enticed me into adopting the hobby of rendering simple statements via Oriental techniques with ink and brush."

MY INTERVIEW with Miss Loudon progressed over munchings of skewered lamb kebabs at the Tiburon Lodge which exhibits her Far East art.

Her opening observation was that while Chinese paintings are simple in form, it actually takes years of production to master the technique.

"I am only a student and have lots of work ahead before I can hope for recognition," she confided, obviously surprised over any interest of the press in her efforts.

As a full-time secretary, her story does have dramatic substance for Marin men and women who work every day and "hobby" in between times. Her drive is appealing because she has the fortitude to exhibit competitively early attempts alongside showings of more experienced artists. It all adds up to good old Yankee initiative of the down-to-earth, up-an'-at-'em variety.

And where Helen Loudon can actually ring up sales, her probe for the fuller life becomes meaningful and inspiring to those who yet hesitate to round out their 8-to-5 routines with some challenging hobby.

THE ORIGINS of Chinese paintings are lost. Centuries of development preceded the earliest specimens found.

While Chinese painting never consistantly followed the rigid

laws of Western perspective, a highly organized system of representing objects in space was evolved.

Landscapes reached their peak during the Sung dynasty. Masterpieces were done in ink, sometimes with white and color added and sometimes in monotone on scrolls of absorbent silk or paper — the vertical hanging scroll (the chih), and the horizontal panoramic scroll (the heng).

Early outstanding artists in this phase included Ma Yuan, Ma Lin, Hsia Kuei, Li Ti and Kuo Hsi.

"JUST WHAT is the basic difference between Eastern and Western painting technique?" we asked the demure Miss Loudon.

"The handling of the brush," she replied with considerable conviction. "Initially it is difficult to hold it properly. One easy way is to grip it horizontally between your thumb, index and middle fingers. Then move your ring finger up to support the brush holder and in turn move your little finger up to rest against the ring finger.

(On the chance you are still with us, dear reader, we'll carry on):

"Then turn the brush to the vertical position. Rest your wrist lightly on the table and lift your elbow about three inches. When manipulating the brush do not only move the fingers but move your whole arm. This method allows a wider range of movement and gives a more accurate motion of the brush."

"IN CHINESE painting," she continued, "gradation of shades is achieved in one single stroke as a result of a special technique of soaking colors with the brush.

"The goldfish, for example, is painted with only a few strokes. To lay on a stroke, in this case, the brush is first soaked with diluted yellow, then with vermilion, and lastly the tip of the brush is dipped into red.

"A slanting stroke will thus include three colors intermingling harmoniously throughout."

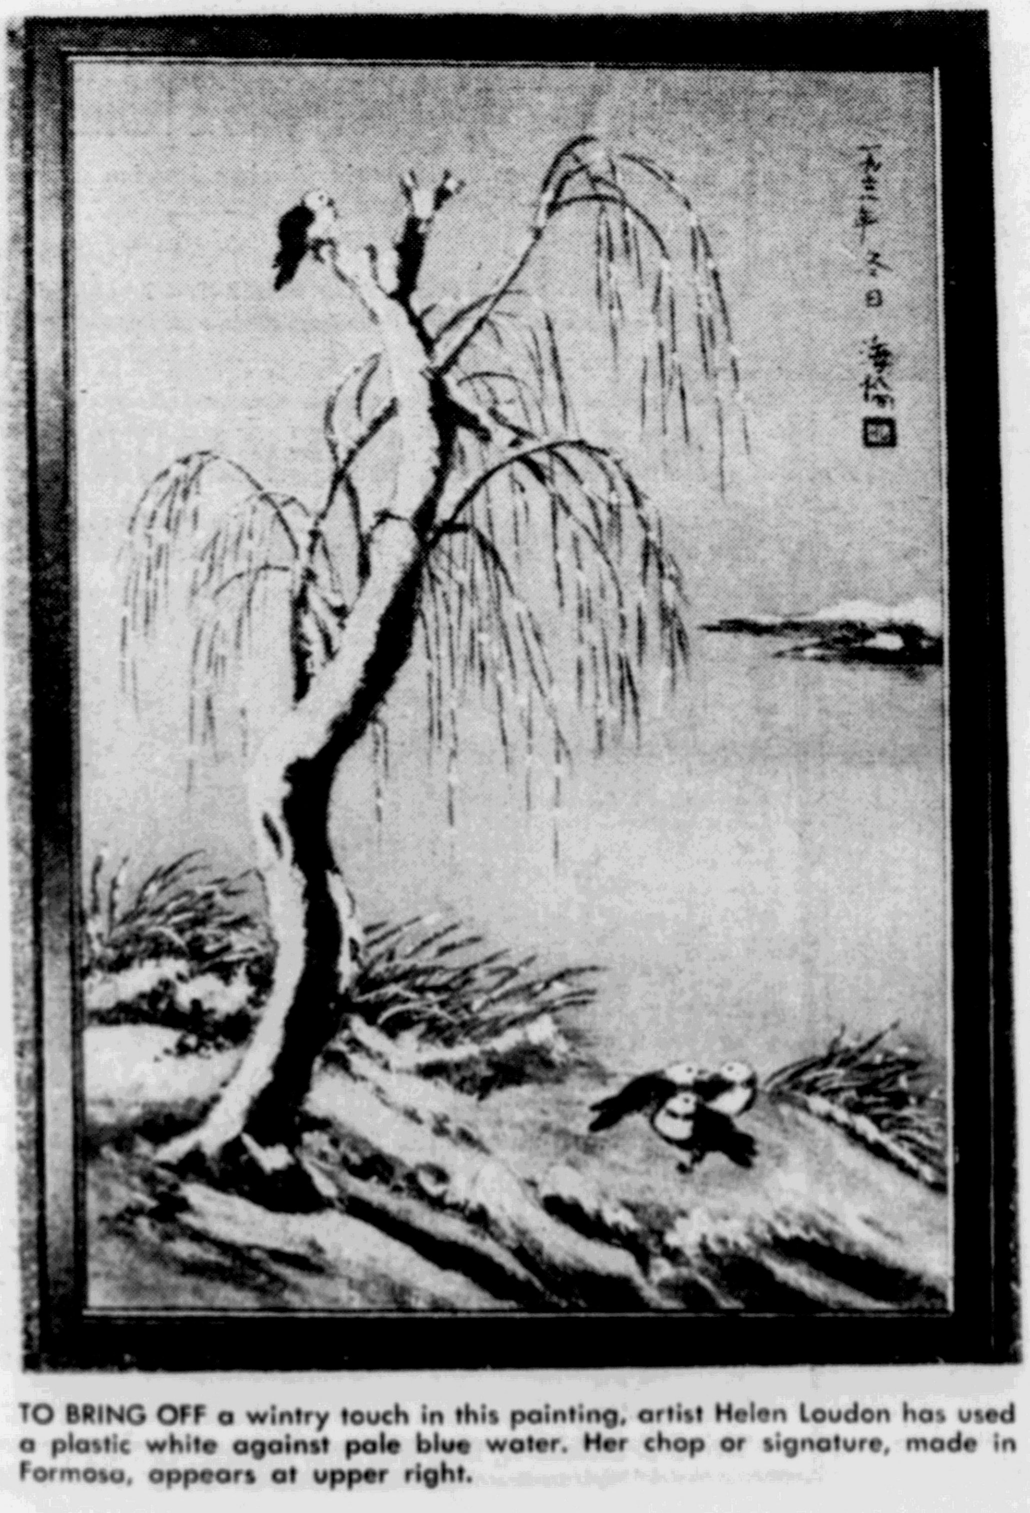
According to our featured student, bamboo — in the Chinese concept — signifies a perfect gentleman who is upright and humble and will not submit to force. It is straight and hollow within.

When painting a picture of bamboo, every stroke is done by using the vertical brush method just the same as doing calligraphy, requiring entirely arm movement which must be decisive and strong. That is why many Chinese scholars are expert in bamboo painting.

HELEN LOUDON studies Chinese watercolor painting under the tutelage of Peiping-born Madeleine Fu at her Town and Country Village studio in Strawberry. Miss Loudon was born in San Rafael and now lives in Mill Valley on a precipitous slope deep in the woods.

Well traveled, she is familiar with Europe and the Far East.

Her "chop" (Chinese equivalent of a rubber stamp) was made overnight for her in Formosa. Made of ivory and about two inches long, it spells out her first name in Chinese lettering. She uses it to sign her paintings.



TO BRING OFF a wintry touch in this painting, artist Helen Loudon has used a plastic white against pale blue water. Her chop or signature, made in Formosa, appears at upper right.

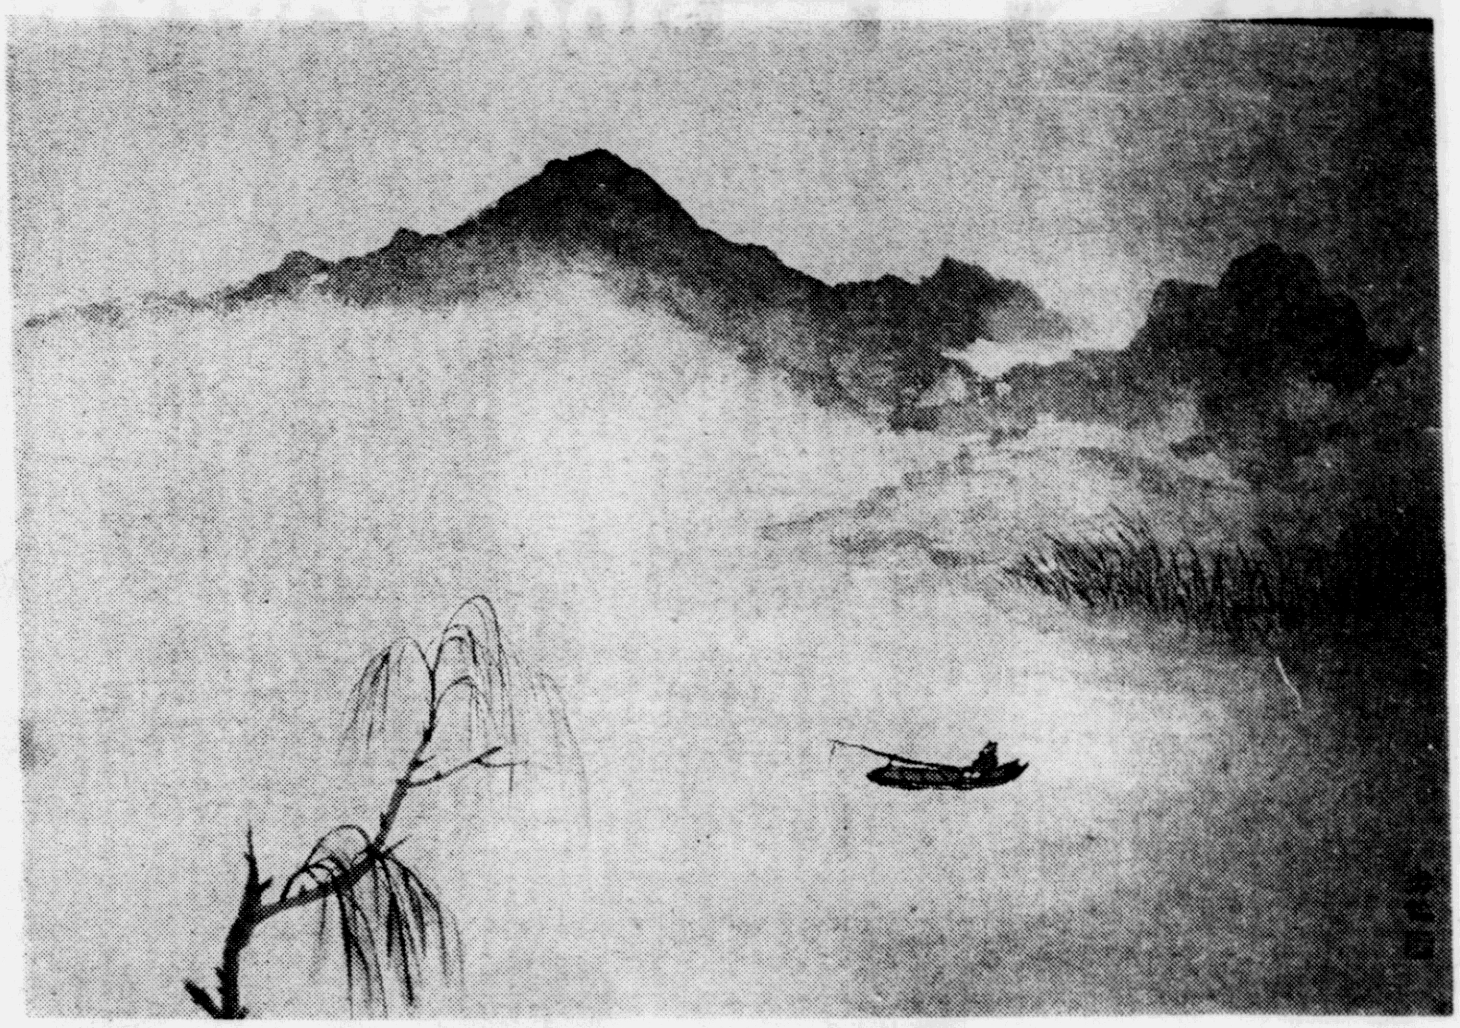
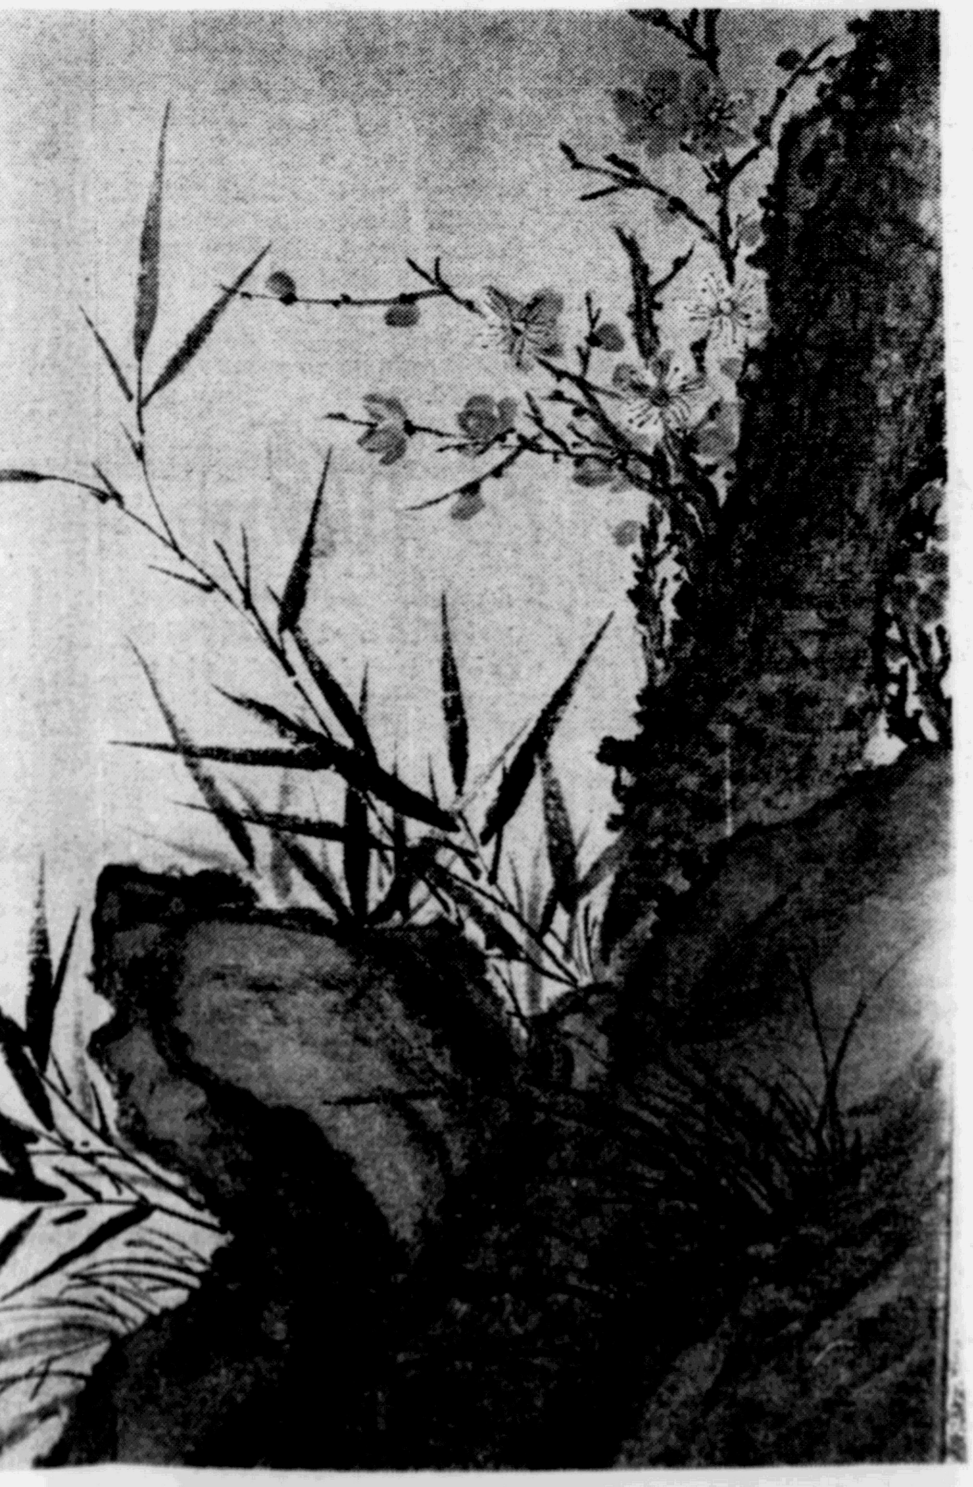
ENTS OF Chinese art learn to paint birds by using the brush for beak, eyes, legs and feathers, and No. 3 for other parts. Here Miss Loudon has worked on gold r.

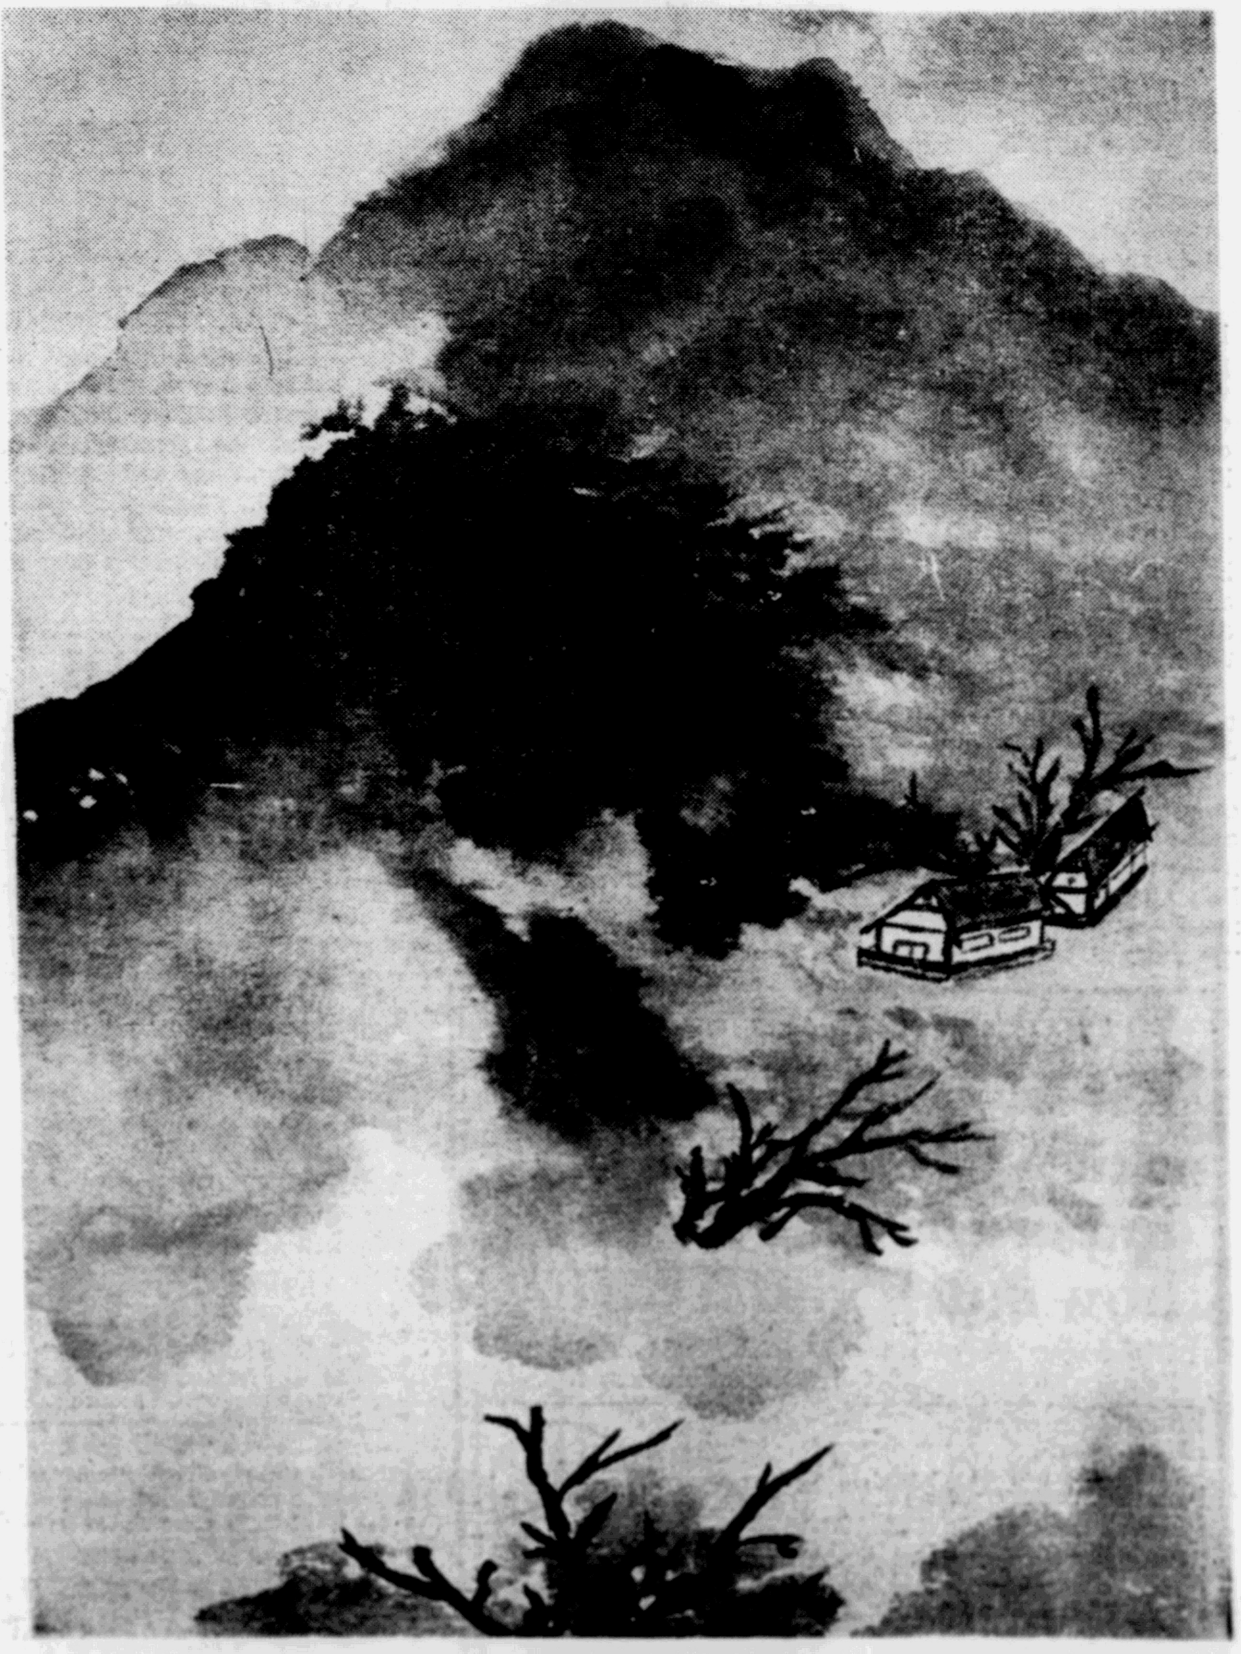


USING WATERCOLOR paper, Helen Loudon has created for this painting a drifting fog effect as a dividend resulting from laying on a blue mountain with "graduated soggy" brush strokes. (Photos by Gil Pearson)

Chinese Technique



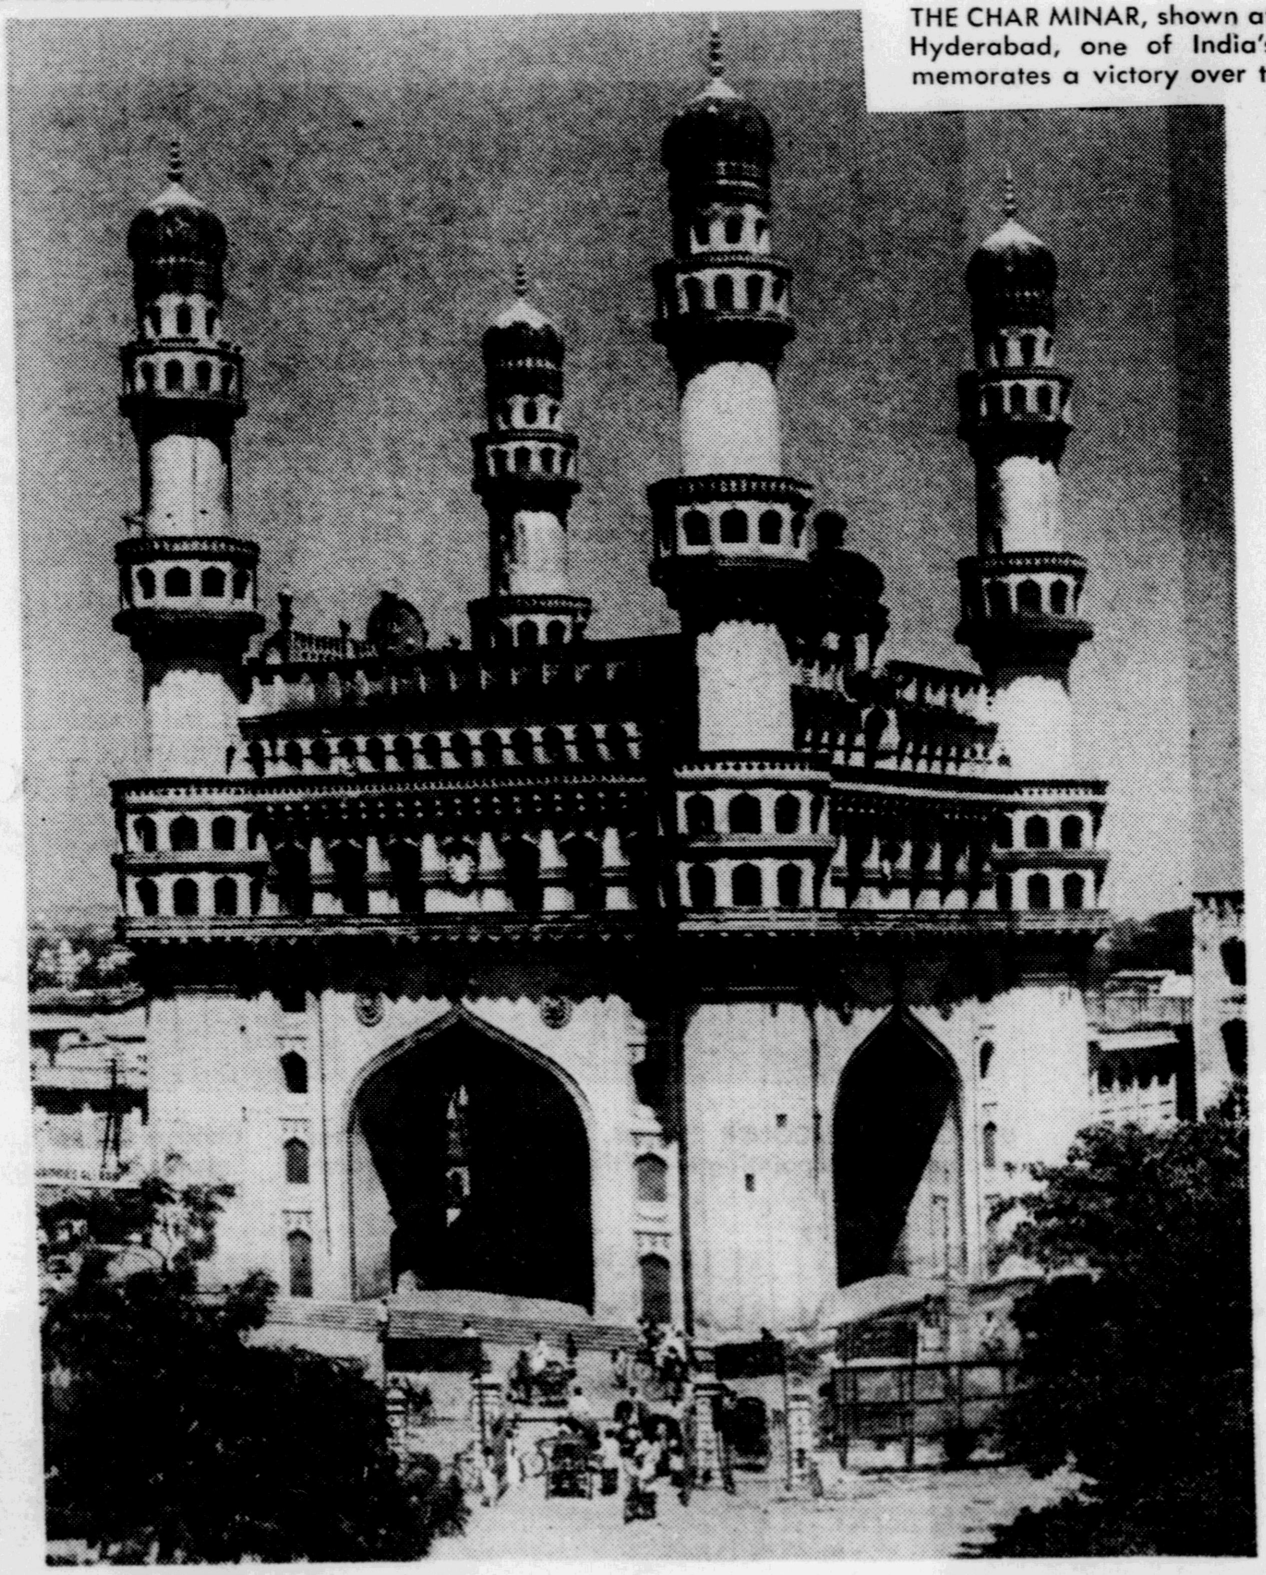
OSSOMS develop from writing S with a No. 3 brush soaked rmilion color to which is added red, white or yellow. A diluted yellow then washes from the flowers' center for blending.



THE EFFECT OF a wild storm has been achieved here with slanted strokes for black and gray mountains that dominate a "Grandma Moses" dwelling and tree produced in appealing simplicity with vertical brush.

India's Exotic Hyderabad

It Belongs On Itinerary To The East



THE CHAR MINAR, shown at left, is among the landmarks of Hyderabad, one of India's most exotic cities, and commemorates a victory over the plague in 1591.

All of the romance of the East, plus a breezy, bracing climate makes Hyderabad, fifth largest of India's cities, one of the first to put on your itinerary.

Exotic Hyderabad, about two and one half hours from Delhi by plane, has Persian overtones in its architecture and a princely past, and it stands on a plateau 1,500 feet high to make it comfortable almost year-around.

THE TOWN'S dominant structure is the Char Minar, an Eastern "Arch of Triumph" which is 180 feet high, crowned by four minarets, and commemorates a battle won against the plague in 1591.

For about $1 you can buy a dozen delicate bright glass bangles; slightly higher in price are the metal bangles with semi-precious stones, those in lacquer-ware and hundreds of other styles.

IN THE OTHER lanes of the bazaar are stalls where heady perfume oils are sold in tiny vials. Saris of every conceivable color and pattern are displayed on shelves or string up overhead like lustrous, graceful banners.

Local craftsmen also make unusual bidriware. This combines metals embedded into an alloy and fashioned into boxes, ashtrays, buttons, brooches and the like.

One of the top sightseeing attractions in town is the Salar Jung Museum, named for the former prime minister whose collection it houses. And did he collect! There are furnishings from France, paintings from Italy, toys from America, and more.

BEST OF ALL, in this museum are the outstanding jades, daggers, swords and swagger sticks, that used to belong to some of India's mightiest rulers, the priceless Oriental rugs, and jewel-like miniature paintings from various places in India.

Separated from Hyderabad only by the vast Hussainsager Lake is Secunderabad, a former military garrison. About five miles west of the city is the imposing and almost impenetrable Golconda Fort, which was taken only once, after a decade of fighting, by Aurangzeb in the 17th Century. From the neighboring diamond mines came such multi-carat sparklers as the Kohinoor and Orloff and also the gem which was to become the unlucky Hope Diamond.

The tombs of 16th and 17th Century rulers are near the fort in neat symmetrical gardens. Some of these have their own mosques and minarets.

After a day's sightseeing in Hyderabad and surrounding areas you can relax in a hotel, appropriately enough, with a princely past — the Ritz. A former palace of the second son of the Nizam, this hotel stands on a hill overlooking the city: the rates are not royal, however. For about $8.60 per day you can stay here with all your meals included.

Maybe A Mattress Is To Blame

Are you one of those people who never have a good night's sleep when you're staying at a hotel or motel?

If so, you have millions of fellow sufferers, according to Sally Ames, director of the Spring Air Sleep Institute, Chicago, who noted that the inability to sleep in unfamiliar surroundings is one of the most common sleep complaints.

"But if you're bothered by insomnia away from home, don't conclude that the ailment is all in your head; it could be in the bed," Miss Ames said.

REFERRING TO a recent survey, she reported that the average age of a motel mattress is 14 years, while hotel mattresses average 15 years old. In extreme cases, some 25-year-old mattresses were found.

"These average figures go far beyond the recommended nine years for mattresses in commercial use and may account for the sleeping problems suffered by guests," she said.

Of course, not all hotels or motels keep mattresses until they're ready to fall apart. Some replace mattresses regularly every seven or eight years, but these seem to be in the minority.

"TRAVELERS HAVE taken their lumps long enough, and now they're fully awake to the fact that sleeping accommodations on the road leave a lot to be desired," Miss Ames said.

But a change is in the making. Realizing the traveler's desire for better sleeping conditions, hotel and motel managers are gradually upgrading their bedding to larger sizes and better quality.

Supersize bedding, for instance, now accounts for two-thirds of all bedding sales to new hotels and motels. Larger mattresses are also specified by one-third of the older establishments when they replace old bedding.

"IN PLACE OF two standard twin-size beds in a double room," Miss Ames explained, "the hotel or motel will most likely install two extra-long double beds, giving each person a maximum of sleeping comfort." King-size and queen-size beds are also increasing in use.

When they replace mattresses, the managers will almost always buy a better quality product than they had originally. They also specify firm mattresses rather than "extra firm" or "soft."

The Spring Air authority noted that while a premium mattress made for household use can be guaranteed for 20 years, a hotel-motel mattress takes much more abuse and thus won't last as long.

"While keeping a hotel or motel mattress for 14 years may save money, it certainly won't make many satisfied customers," she said.

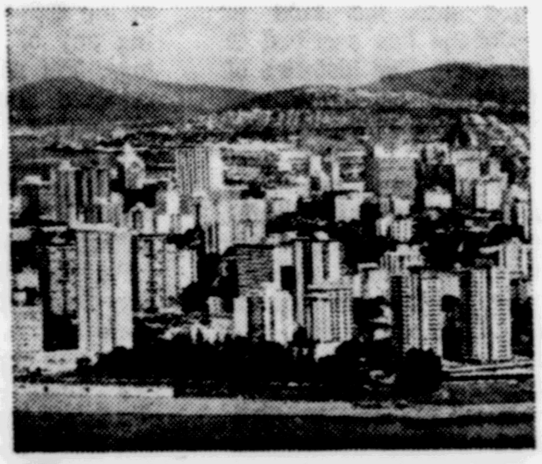
5 days in Vancouver

and its surrounding vacationland

1 Discover why Vancouver is called "one of the world's most beautiful cities." Spend the morning strolling 1000-acre Stanley Park with its cool forest trails, magnificent gardens, zoos, beaches and totem poles. At Brockton Point, savor the full sweep of Vancouver Harbour: soaring city skyline on one hand, towering mountains on the other . . . freighters, tugs and pleasure craft jouncing and gleaming in the breeze. You can lunch with a view of the ocean at a teahouse in the park — or choose one of the new downtown restaurants. Then glimpse more scenic beauty in Queen Elizabeth Park, or take the seaside drive around Point Grey, past stately mansions, luxuriant gardens and the University of British Columbia campus. After dark, ride a gondola car up Grouse Mountain — or head for a rooftop restaurant — for a dazzling view of city and harbour.

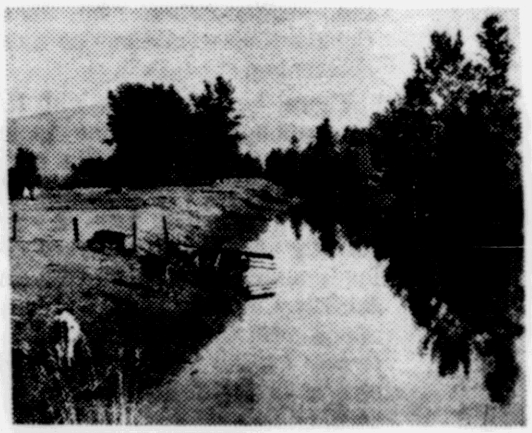


2 Drive north of the city across Lions Gate Bridge and travel the Upper Levels Highway to Horseshoe Bay. Here, board a modern car-ferry for a 50-minute cruise across spectacular, mountain-rimmed Howe Sound to Langdale on the Sunshine Coast. Sheltered coves and fishing villages adjoin the highway as you wend north to holiday centres like Sechelt and Pender Harbour. Great salmon fishing in these waters . . . dozens of uncrowded spots to picnic, swim and relax. If you can tear yourself away from this charming peninsula, you'll be rewarded by a return cruise of Howe Sound by twilight . . . dazzling shimmer on the open sea, framing wooded islands and catching seagulls as they soar.

3 Enjoy Vancouver's special points of interest. Take a trip to the Maritime Museum and see the historic St. Roche, first ship to travel the Northwest Passage both ways. Nearby, you can browse amid the relics in the new Centennial Museum, and take in one of several daily shows at the H. R. MacMillan Planetarium. After lunch, take time for sunning and swimming — Vancouver has roughly eleven miles of sandy beach, within easy reach of any part of the city. Other activities include golf on some of the world's most scenic courses, and salmon fishing virtually within sight of your hotel. For dinner, the only question is "What's your preference?" Vancouver's restaurants offer every type of dining — from the delights of Chinatown to British, German and Italian cuisine.

4 Travel east of the city for the pastoral beauty and historic sites of the Fraser Valley, an alluvial plain adjoining the Fraser River for nearly 100 miles. A 4-lane freeway leads through the Valley centre — watch for signs indicating Fort Langley and Cultus Lake Provincial Park. At Hope, the rugged Fraser Canyon begins. Drive north to Boston Bar and you can take an aerial tramway across the turbulent waters to North Bend. Returning, cross the Agassiz-Rosedale Bridge west of Hope, and visit famed Harrison Hot Springs. Following Highway 7 west, you'll pass Hatzic Lake and see the bell tower of Westminster Seminary above the city of Mission. Before returning to Vancouver, see the Japanese Friendship Garden in the "Royal City" of New Westminster.

The Valley's southwest corner includes the sandy beaches of Boundary Bay, White Rock and Crescent Beach. This area is best reached by Highway 499, and could easily occupy a day in itself.



5 Slow down and discover the pleasures of downtown Vancouver. You'll find fascinating shops brimming with British imports, antiques and curios, Eskimo carvings and other objects of Canadiana. Enjoy lunch in a charming continental restaurant on Robson Street. Visit the public Art Gallery and a few of the many private galleries. Then plan an evening of sparkling entertainment. Vancouver's night clubs feature top shows from across the continent . . . the Queen Elizabeth Theatre houses major musical and theatrical events, and the adjoining Playhouse has a resident company offering polished professional theatre throughout the year.

Vancouver has glitter and glamor to match its spectacular scenic beauty — for a free, full-color preview, mail the coupon.

The Preacher Fails As A Practitioner

THE DUKE OF PALERMO AND OTHER PLAYS by Edmund Wilson; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 250 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jerry Megahan.

When it comes to destroying literary reputations, nothing succeeds quite like a writer who has lost all sense of critical proportions.

And when the victim of his own logorrhea is Edmund Wilson, the great gray panjandrum of American literary criticism, the only decent feeling is one of I-wish-it-had-never-happened.

Wilson, unfortunately, like most great literary critics, has always been a much more gifted preacher than he ever was a practitioner. I suppose it is the difference between the ability to analyze and the genius to intuit.

Wilson's critical pieces probably will be studied as long as there is an English language; his own prose is almost unread within his own lifetime. The situation is not unjust.

"The Duke of Palermo" can best be described as a bastard cross between "The Male Animal," Elizabethan pastiche and very, very bad George Bernard Shaw. I personally doubt that any of the parents would care to recognize the offspring.

The second play, "Dr. McGrath," is embarassing esthetically, theologically and dramatically. However, if presented as a send-up of Arthur Miller it has certain possibilities.

"Osbert's Career," or "The Poet's Progress," was started in 1926 and finished in 1968. If anything in the book deserves the sanctity of hardcovers, this is it.

Osbert has the makings of a good second act but the fourth and final act is so much belaboring of a point which has been made earlier and more often by far better writers.

Wilson's weakness is to write lengthy speeches for characters who have very little to say. He tends to oversimplify his ideas for what he conceives of as a mass audience. It doesn't work and his major spokesmen sound like Hubert Humphrey on a prolonged bender.

The book concludes with an open letter to Mike Nichols which could only have been published by Wilson's worst enemy.

Farrar, Straus and Giroux are obviously bent on publishing everything up to and including Wilson's laundry lists. At $6.95, this is easily the most forgettable book of the season.

The Unhappy Plight Of Splendid People

THE INDESTRUCTIBLE IRISH by John Philip Cohane; Meredith Press, 250 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Short-time visitors to Ireland come away with pleasant memories of lush countryside, friendly people and a quiet serenity that can be found few other places on earth.

American writer John Philip Cohane who went to Ireland expecting to stay 10 days and remained 10 years says such impressions are superficial and misleading.

Underneath its charming exterior, he claims in his book, "The Indestructible Irish," Ireland is a sick land. Only the stubborn resilience of the mass of Irish people has enabled them to survive.

The malady gripping the island, he charges, is the result of partition, ugly religious rifts, shamefully neglectful government and one of the last remaining vistages of British imperialism.

He claims that in Northern Ireland, bereft of freedom and independence, an overlapping coalition of the Union Party and the Orange Order has conspired to also deprive the Catholic minority of its civil rights, largely through gerrymandering. With 36 per cent of the population, he notes, the Catholics hold less than 4 per cent of the state offices and jobs.

In the Republic of Ireland to the south, where he lives, Cohane finds conditions no more heartening.

There, he says, even with the separation, a Protestant Anglo-Irish "ascendancy" more committed to Great Britain than to Ireland remains top dogs socially and economically, working in a strange alliance with the Roman Catholic hierarchy and upper crust that has a vested interest in the status quo and utilizes its political influence accordingly.

The results, he adds, include a third-rate educational system, an abysmal standard of living, an absence of industry and shortage of employment, and a general air of depression and dispirit. Plus a continuation of the migratory movement that drains Ireland of its most promising young people.

The accomplishments of these Irish who have left their native sod for opportunities abroad are reviewed by Cohane as proof of what they might have contributed to their own country.

"The Irish," he asserts, "should be doing far, far better than they are . . . Much of what is going on in Ireland today constitutes nothing more nor less than a national disgrace."

So brainwashed are the Irish, Cohane claims, that for the most part they are not even aware of the glorious past of their own people. Cohane reviews the golden age of Ireland when the Celts were the most active and influential of all western people, highly cultured, fiercely free, zealously Christian. He reviews, too, the subsequent heroic struggles of the later Irish to throw off foreign yokes, making the point that the principal leaders of those rebellions were more often Protestants than Catholics and contrasting the beliefs and actions of both groups today with what they were then.

Cohane, while distressed by present conditions, is confident that the indestructible Irish will not continue to countenance domination by either London or Rome indefinitely. He advises his readers against surprise if they read in their newspaper headlines some day that "all hell has broken out again in Ireland" as the long-suffering common folk resort to force to end partition and injustice.

"Unhappy is the man or nation whose destiny depends on the will of another," said the great patriot, Theobald Wolfe Tone, a Protestant, incidentally.

Cohane writes with genuine sympathy for the common people of Ireland and with real anger for their oppressors. In the clutch of such emotions, he sometimes overstates, oversimplifies and overlooks.

For instance, without excusing their tactics, it would seem that the Protestant majority in Ulster might be entitled to some misgivings about being incorporated into the kind of system Cohane has ascribed to the Free State. The histories of such countries as Spain and Portugal might well cause them some worry as to their own future as a minority in a Catholic dominated united country. Despite the prestige of the Protestant ascendancy, Cohane makes it clear that the Roman Catholic hierarchy is unquestionably the most influential body politically in Dublin.

The hatred for the English that colors so much Irish thinking also prevents Cohane from giving full credence to London's changes in thinking that have occurred since World War II, Anguilla notwithstanding.

Cohane is confident that the Irish can enjoy the full benefits of the 20th Century without losing any of their present blessings. Yet no other country has retained that enviable air of tranquility and peace after plunging into the hurry-up scramble for the dollar or the pound that comes with modernization.

Perhaps, however, Cohane may be right, and the Irish will work out a system by which they can enjoy the best of the two kinds of world. He is absolutely right in his contention that these fine and splendid people are deserving of no less.

SCENES SUCH as this never fail to charm the visitor to Ireland, but, says John Philip Cohane, author of "The Indestructible Irish," they also betray the backwardness of the country and the low standard of living of its people.

Tim Jeal's 2nd Novel

SOMEWHERE BEYOND REPROACH by Tim Jeal; McGraw-Hill, 155 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

Jeal's second novel is a very precise, curiously hot and cold book, with all the corners tucked neatly away.

The theme, a man's obsessive love for a former sweetheart who has married his best friend, is handled dispassionately until the very end, and it is this quality of chilling detail along with the neatness in style that fails to put the spark of excitement in the book.

Not until the end, when Harry, the main character, realizes that his obsessive love is so far removed from what Dinah, the girl, may be or could be, does the novel catch fire, and by then, I think, it is far too late, even though this is a short book.

Young Jeal is an excellent craftsman who pays attention to detail and mood, but much of the book is doggedly introspective and slow. It takes an effort to stick with him, and the end result is not quite worth the effort.

A Time Capsule

HUMOR, WIT AND SATIRE OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY, Dover Press, 454 pages, $2.75. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

This is another in a series of handsome, off-the-beaten-track permanent paperbacks from Dover Press, and a delightful product it is.

This one originally was published in England in 1883. The collector was John Ashton. It's a marvelous thick array of broadside ballads, jests, light verse, riddles, epigrams, and libels covering a time span of about 60 years.

Like many collections, the book serves a time capsule duty, presenting a vivid picture of period mores and customs.

An appendix is provided along with melodies to some of the ballads and illustrations by the authors.

Long John Writes About His Supernatural Guests

THE PSYCHIC WORLD AROUND US by Long John Nebel with Sanford M. Teller; Hawthorn, 221 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The supernatural has always held a fascination for radio personality John Nebel and such subjects have become something of a specialty on his all-night talk show.

In this book, with the help of Sanford Teller, public relations man and frequent panelist on his program, he recounts what he regards as the most interesting and most baffling of those cases.

The stories he retells are generally familiar ones, already well-publicized — the forecasts of oracle Jeane Dixon, the conversation of Bishop James Pike with his dead son, the alleged contact of Betty and Barney Hill by interplanetary visitors, Peter Hurkos, even the much rehashed Bridey Murphy. Less known mystics and assorted weirdos are also in the cast.

Nebel professes to be a skeptic, but his appraisals, especially his summarization of the Jeane Dixon record and his review of the Bridey Murphy case, would seem to indicate that skepticism is hardly a quality with which he is overly, or even sufficiently endowed.

His stories make light, amusing reading, if generally a little shopworn by now. But his is not a book to be taken seriously.

Even to the halls of Congress, often one of the last places to cern the great social truths, s come belated recognition at America's future will be termined not by anti-missile stems or lunar explorations, t by how effectively we cont our critical urban probms.

John Gunther, one of the tstanding journalists of the th Century, has gone abroad in est of answers, studying some the great cities of other lands r clues as to how they have oided or fallen into difulties.

"Twelve Cities" is in the patm of his immensely successful Inside" books, but this time he examining cities, not nations, d he hops about three conents rather than conntrating on one.

Subject cities are London, aris, Brussels, Rome, Hamrg, Vienna, Warsaw, Moscow, erusalem, Beirut, Amman and okyo. Each study is a mingling f amusing curiosity facts, at hich Gunther is so adept, with ore serious analysis of their dministrative systems, their ciology and their economies.

In the end, Gunther gives ese foreign cities generally etter marks than he accords e metropolitan cities of his wn land:

"Moscow, with its spotless treets, is far cleaner than New York: it is a great industrial ity, but has no smog. Warsaw s a more harmonious communty from several points of view han Los Angeles or Dallas. Tel Aviv, Berne and Bruges are beter administered than most American cities in an analogous category, and Vienna has more amenities than Baltimore or St. Louis. The gross physical squalor, dilapidation, noise, and filth in the outskirts of several important American cities would not be tolerated in Stockholm, Ankara or even Madrid. . . Even Beirut could show Detroit or Philadelphia a thing or two, and Jerusalem, even if it is an Oriental city, is better run and less offensive to the eye and ear than Pittsburgh or Atlanta."

Yet Gunther's own survey, necessarily somewhat superficial because of the space restriction, makes it clear that the practices and theories of European, African and Asian cities have only limited application to our own. The troubles of U.S. cities, beyond the spiraling birth and growth rates, are usually peculiarly American — our racial discrimination and the resulting eruptions, our addiction to the automobile, our tolerance of the most abject poverty alongside extravagant affluence, our careless waste and pollution of resources, our political corruption on the local level, our propensity for violence, our strangulation of our urban centers with hodgepodge suburban nooses, our worship of all things bigger and taller and faster without regard to whether they are better, our placement of the commercial above the aesthetic.

London's "green belt" encircling its metropolitan environs to provide residents with a "fresh air" breathing band is, for instance, a splendid idea, but beyond the bounds of practicality now for almost every American city.

If Gunther succeeds in making a major point, it is his declaration that "good civic health obviously does not lie merely in such realms as the birth rate or the merciless impact of whirling rubber on asphalt and concrete. Public spirit, urban morals, count as well — perhaps more. Here, too, the Europeans are far ahead of us. . . Citizens are law-abiding to a degree, and they have pride in their civic environment. . . We, too, must learn to care for our cities, if only so that they will take better care of us."

Generally, however, Gunther has written a book that is more successful as entertainment (although somewhat less so than his earlier work) than as a sociological document.

One appreciates his observation that "London is like a person who has performed the extreme miracle of getting over old age" and agrees that "this stupendous capital is, in my mind, the greatest metropolis in the world." One differs when he regards with seeming approval Paris' decision to permit a limited construction of semi-skyscrapers, a development that cannot help but do injury to its marvelous civic beauty.

One enjoys the typical Gunther tidbits — Israeli melons are the most succulent in the world, at Amman's new Intercontinental Hotel you can have jasmine in your coffee, Tokyo is a city where dinner in a classic restaurant can easily cost more than $50 a person and where some nightclubs have a $27 cover charge and is the city where the use of expense accounts has reached its apogee, Moscow is a place of an almost eerie silence and where pets are newly popular, in Viennese cafes you are served two glasses of water, Wagner is never played in the magnificent new Warsaw opera house, etc.

But in the end the reader must acknowledge that while Gunther has written his usual amusing book, it is more a prod for action than a direction-giver when it comes to a clean-up of our own urban mess. Ours are American problems demanding American solutions. To date we have moved only sporadically and none too effectively in devising and implementing same. A more comprehensive and sustained approach must be initiated.

CHARLES H. Gardner is a product of a broken and poverty-ridden New York slum home, a black man with only a limited formal education, and a chronic victim of the drink craving that has brought him into frequent confrontation with the law. He is also a man who says "I want to create" and who believes he has found his medium for expression.

As a drifter, Gardner tried his hands at painting, but found he lacked the needed training. His next attempt, at writing, was set back when St. Paul, Minn., police confiscated the manuscript of an unfinished novel. In anger, Gardner wrote two short poems of protest of that action. That work was praised by a prominent man who some time later befriended Gardner. He was thus inspired to take up poetry in earnest, and has been writing poems, in and out of jail, ever since.

Since 1964, he has made Sausalito his home base.

The first book publication of his work is "The Roving Wino," from Majestic Press of Woodland, Calif. Paul Mapes, whose photo of Gardner taken in the county jail in Woodland appears on the book's cover, has also written a foreword, describing the poet as "the hungriest man I ever knew. . . Charles H. Gardner is impossible. He is a heart attack happening before your eyes so you yell 'get this man to a hospital, can't you see he is bleeding. . . ' But that is not really what you mean. Charley knows this. And that is why he is a poet. It is the only way to fly."

The 178 poems in "The Roving Wino" (there is also one short story) are brief, pithy, often biographical, deeply emotional, sometimes crude, rather simplistic, frequently sad but not devoid of humor, and always honest. Readers will either like them totally or disdain them equally strongly. A compromise reaction is most unlikely.

Writes Gardner in "The Fruit Lover" after paying tribute to cherry, apple and orange trees: ". . . And grapes, you mean the most to me/ My only true survival/ With fifty cents I wait each day/ For your liquor store arrival."

But the grapes have a rival for Charley Gardner's affections in his poetry, and he says he has two other completed books scheduled for future publication.

SEBASTIAN KNEIPP was the originator of a system of cold water cures that aroused widespread interest in Europe earlier in this century, and which continues to claim its practitioners and proponents.

Jeanne Keller, a German-born American housewife, business woman and writer, is one such.

She has used Kneipp treatments and variations extensively in her own family, and her experiences have been recorded in a book, "Healing With Water," published by Parker Publishing Co. of West Nyack, N. Y.

The book describes the various baths, sprays, compresses, teas, etc., that Mrs. Keller has used among her own family members and friends with specific maladies, and claims startlingly successful results.

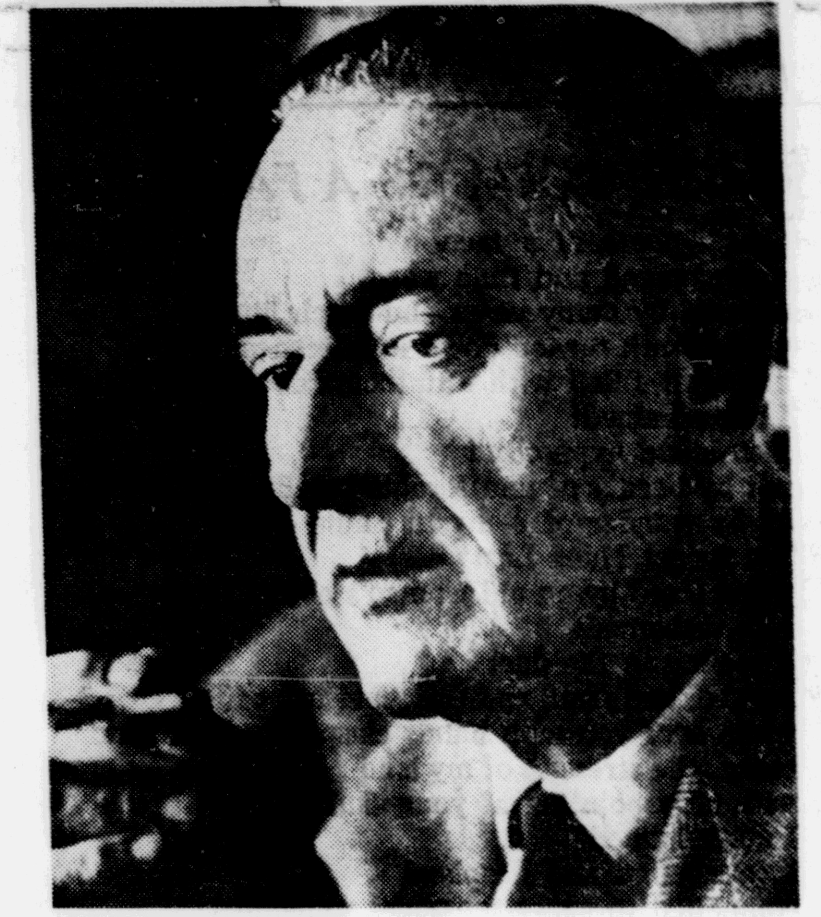
It is the kind of thing the medical profession for the most part regards with skepticism and even dismay — except for the "natural cure" element outside the ranks of the professional establishment and more numerous and more influential in Europe than in this country. One such, Dr. Sabine Koch, has contributed a foreword endorsing the Keller book, which sells for $6.95.

WHILE Charles Angoff, novelist, critic and teacher, has had some 500 poems published, "Memoranda for Tomorrow" represents the first collection of his work to appear in book form.

Angoff, whose verse had won the applause of fellow poets including George Abbe and Arthur Lerner, writes of love and hate, of people, of numbers, of metaphysics, of flowers, and of human attributes and aspirations. His economy of words is a distinctive quality as he rarely wastes a phrase.

Once associated with the old American Mercury during H. L. Mencken's editorship, he is now professor of English at Fairleigh Dickinson University and editor of the Literary Review. He is also vice president of the Poetry Society of America.

Thomas Yoseloff of New York and London is his publisher, and the book sells for $6.



"WHAT I HAVE tried to do," writes John Gunther of "Twelve Cities," his newest book, "is to describe with some scope and detail what these cities are like — to give a picture, an estimate of their mood, color, texture, tempo, distinctions, problems, perturbations, implausibilities, as well as to deal with the structure of their politics and government."

Sleuths & Suspense

TALES OF UNEASE edited by John Burke; Doubleday, 229 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Shirley Graves.

A Crime Club Selection in the "something different" category, this is a chilling collection of short stories chosen, according to the editor, to make the reader uneasy — not terrified or stricken with horror, just uneasy.

The stories are the right length for the person who likes to read a short time before turning out the light at night. But then you may decide to leave the light on.

Or try one at a daytime coffee-break. You will enjoy each one more if you read only one or two at a sitting.

All kinds of stories are included among the 21 tales; some even have happy endings. The unease comes not from obvious danger but because something normal assumes a frightening new role and you are led to see the evil in an everyday object or situation.

My choice for the most unsettling is "Red Rubber Gloves" by Christine Brooke-Rose: a man confined to a wheelchair tells of watching, for over a year, the actions of a pair of red rubber gloves. Their movement is all he can see as he looks down into the kitchen window of the house opposite.

SCARED POEM OF A FACE

Scared-poem of a face
war ravaged and time worn
creased by many years and much hunger
with mouth turned down in bitterness and eyes filled with unfathomable suffering,
I am ashamed!
Men stand hypnotized
not by beauty of unutterable loneliness
or by wonder of a mystic smile —
We forget Mona Lisa
when fixed by an old woman's abject terror —,
I am ashamed!
Kneeling in the dust
ragged, and frail, and thin, and full of fear while over you with hands clasped in your hair stands the strength of my land
with rifle pointing at your skull,
I am ashamed!
Interrogated and despised compelled to carry messages or bombs
Strong young men on either side
and you, grandmother, in the dust,
I am ashamed!
On the front page for all to see
I am confused as to the reason why
I am confused that war is fought this way
and I tremble lest I myself have caused that terror-ridden scared-poem of a face.
I am ashamed!

LOST

Silence inside me running,
Lost among black weeds,
My senses no longer yearning,
My soul no longer free.

Colors, colors, more colors thickening,
Slashing across my mind,
Leaving me lifeless and senseless —
No eyesight for the blind.

Downward, slowly catching
Brief moments of lost pleasure
When life was good and love was gold
And happiness I could not measure.

Plants For Giving At Easter Time

Lily Leads The Parade But There Are Others

Marin's nurseries and florist shops are well stocked now with Easter plants, most of them greenhouse grown especially for the Lenten season.

The white Easter lily, of course, is the traditional symbol of the joy of one of Christiandom's most significant occasions.

Happily, the Easter lily thrives in Marin's growing conditions. Marinites can plant it with assurance, or present it in a container to their loved ones and friends as a remembrance of the season.

THERE ARE, however, other beautiful plants that make a Lenten greeting in keeping with the Easter spirit, especially when given "gussied-up" with decorative foil and bright bows.

Azaleas, for instance, are in the peak of their bloom right now and make wonderful gifts. They'll continue their spectacular flowering for some time after Easter Sunday.

Make certain that the recipient of your gift plant, be it a lily, an azalea, or what have you, understands that your present may be planted in the garden after Easter.

AZALEAS WILL continue to bloom indoors for some time, if kept moist (but not standing in water). Outdoors, they prefer shade.

Easter lilies, on the other hand, like a sunnier location.

Chrysanthemums can be seen in bloom at the nurseries 12 months of the year. While they are generally regarded as an autumnal plant, they will also provide warmth and color in the spring. Cut back after the blooms fade to about six inches in height and planted in part or full sun, they'll bloom again in the fall. Ample water, fertilizer as the plants show new growth and disbudding in the summertime are recommended steps.

THE AFRICAN violet is an old-fashioned Easter season favorite.

These come as everything from stately singles to frilly doubles, and in many lovely color hues. They make an especially thoughtful Easter gift for a shut-in friend. Placed in an east or north window, they will bloom on and on. But don't place them near a heater or an air cooler, and water only to maintain moisture.

The hydrangea is still another Easter season gift plant that, placed outdoors after the holiday, will provide beauty for years to come.

SOME OTHER possibilities: The orchids, and both the Cattleyas and the Cymbidiums can be found in spectacular bloom now; the dwarf citrus trees; the camellias, ideal for the shade garden; the Martha Washington pelargoniums, and the several handsome foliage plants that will fill-in a patio corner or enhance the indoor decor.

There is something particularly appropriate about the gift of a living plant in a season when we are celebrating re-newed life and when nature is stirring with reawakened vigor.

Resist Temptation To Cut Back Tops

When those bulbs you planted in the fall begin blooming, resist the temptation to cut the tops back as soon as they fade.

If you will just let the tops ripen off, the bulbs will bloom beautifully again next year. The secret is that the bulbs draw food from the tops as they fade.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

- Plant perennials such as delphinium, chrysanthemum, carnation, penstemon, gerbera and English daisy now.
- Gladiolus benefit from a light feeding when their tops are about eight or 10 inches high.
- Plant fuchsias now. And try some of the hanging basket types in overhead containers. The color effect is sensational.
- Late March and early April is one of the most prolific blooming periods for the azalea. So shop now while you can select the exact colors you wish.
- Feed established roses once a month, starting now and continuing into September. Newly planted roses, however, should not be fed until they start to grow.

BULBS THAT planted now will provide a spectacular garden show of color in the summer are in bountiful supply at the nurseries. One is the Picotee-type tuberous begonia, whose bloom is pictured at left. It is ideal for the shade area. Some other possibilities include the gladiolus, the cannas and the dahlias. Buy only top quality bulbs. Take note of the new varieties that have been introduced in recent years. And consult your nurseryman on depth of planting and other cultural problems. Two Easily-Grown Vegetables

No amount of money can buy vegetables that taste quite as good as those homegrown and fresh-picked.

And, of the many vegetables which can be grown easily, few reward you so abundantly for your efforts as tomatoes and peppers.

Now is a good time to set out transplants of these flavorful vegetables.

GIVE BOTH a warm sunny location. Waterwise, peppers want an occasional heavy irrigation, while tomatoes should receive at least one heavy watering a month for best results. Most home gardeners, in their enthusiasm, tend ot overwater. Summer temperatures and the soil's capacity to retain moisture will dictate the watering frequency.

In planting peppers, set them out in raised beds (double row) at about 10 to 12 inch intervals. Tomatoes are spaced according to variety, and whether they are allowed to run on the ground or are trained on stakes.

Nurserymen have the varieties suited for our climate and can provide planting and spacing recommendations.

WHERE GARDEN space is limited, training tomatoes on trellises is a space-saver. It is astonishing the quantity of fruit that can be produced in a relatively small area.

By setting-out vegetable transplants now, you can start harvesting and enjoying that home-grown taste at least a month sooner than if you started from seed. What greater enticement is there — other than how easy the plants are to grow?

Rescreening To Keep The Beasties Out

Handyman's Page

Although screens with aluminum frames are widely used nowadays, the wooden screen continues to stand between many of us and the billions of wee beasties that infest the night.

The screen is a fairly vulnerable article, constantly exposed to the weather and subject to many kinds of damage by children, dogs and pointed objects.

When a screen has developed a small hole, you can repair it with one of the screen patches available at a hardware store or lumber yard. But if you don't like the idea of a patch or if the screening is too far gone, you may want to do a rescreening job.

SCREEN CLOTH — or mesh, screening, whatever you like to call it — comes in many types, including galvanized iron, copper, aluminum, bronze, fiberglas and various kinds of plastic. Choose the same cloth for the repair as you have on the rest of your screens. If necessary, take a piece of the old screening to the store to obtain the proper match.

To remove the old mesh, use a putty knife or other flat tool to pry up the narrow molding that runs along the inside of the frame. If the molding is in good shape, it can be reused. When the molding is off, you will note that the mesh is held down by tacks or staples or by what appears to be twine laid in a narrow channel.

When you buy the screening, be sure it's wider than the inside of the frame, since you'll need a workable margin on all four sides. If cutting has to be done, use tin snips or an old pair of shears, the larger the better. The hardest part is to get the mesh on tight and flat.

HERE'S AN old-fashioned method that works:

Lay the frame on a flat an sturdy surface like a workbenc or table. Place two boards abou one inch thick under the ends c the frame. Use a pair of clamp to bend each side of the fram downward until it reaches th top of the flat surface. Attac the mesh. When the clamps ar removed, the screening wi automatically becomes taut a the frame springs back in place.

However, there are son mesh materials of the new types, such as fiberglas plastics, that should not stretched tightly. Consult yo dealer about this.

ONCE THE new mesh is place, trim away ragged edg so that nothing will show outsi

molding needs a new fini

ARTHUR BROWN — SHEET MUSIC, LIGHTLY GRILLED

The Stereo Scene With Sunier

By JOHN SUNIER

Some recent rock records, leading off with a wild and weird one:

"THE CRAZY WORLD OF ARTHUR BROWN" — Track S 8198:

Arthur Brown is a new English performer with an exceptional blues voice and delivery — swooping, screeching and fluttering through such fast numbers as "I Put a Spell on You," and James Brown's "Money," as well as his own originals. But his big claim to fame is his unbelievable appearance and the whole scene connected with his performances.

He dresses in wild capes, grotesque wigs, and in his big hit "Fire," a metal helmet which bursts into flames as the grand climax.

His biography furnished by the record company is no help in discovering the real Arthur Brown; it features such facts as: His father is a 243-year-old Druid, he has eyes "beyond human description," his favorite drink is blood, and when asked of his tastes in music — "I don't chew records, but I like sheet music lightly grilled."

The whole thing is wacky, absurd, and somewhat sinister, too. But the music is exciting and quite worth repeated listening.

THE DOORS — "WAITING FOR THE SUN" — Elektra EKS-74024:

One of the top rock groups in the world today, the Doors have developed a refined and unique music since their beginnings in Venice, Calif. Their latest is a beauty; some of the tracks such as "The Unknown Soldier" are already hits.

The lyrics of Jim Morrison are now on a level with Bob Dylan, and inside this album are printed the lyrics to "Celebration of the Lizard," a theater composition by the Doors which is not heard on the disc.

It is a gripping and successful poetic flight.

THE PENTANGLE — Reprise 6351; "SWEET CHILD" — The Pentangle — Reprise 6334:

These two albums (actually three discs, for the second release is a two-disc set) have made a place in contemporary music for yet another English group.

When it is learned that the Pentangle uses no electronic amplification whatever, it seems unusual that the new group has been so well received. Part of the reason is the innovative spirit of the quintet. They incorporate folk, blues, jazz, classical into a musical whole.

Each of the five individuals (including a fine gal vocalist, Jacqui McShee) has his own talents and occasionally show them off in solos.

The best track on the first album is "Pentangling," which swings strongly into the jazz groove. On the second album three Renaissance dances are presented on guitar and glockenspiel, some fine folk and popular ballads are sung by Jacqui, and two pieces by the great Charlie Mingus are featured. Some tasty blues are sung duet fashion, and the absence of the heavy electronic guitar undergirding is hardly missed.

These would be just what the doctor ordered for decibel-battered musical ears.

"COUNTRY JOE & THE FISH TOGETHER" — Vanguard VSD-79277:

This Berkeley-born group continues to concentrate on protest messages laced liberally with humor and to hold back on the revolutionary development of their music, which is fine with me. The Fish still swing, bounce and even ricky-tick once in a while. There are also some nice instrumental things, such as Bruce Barthol's "Cetacean."

"Rock and Soul Music" recreates a live appearance of a soul music singer with amazing excitement.

TRAFFIC — United Artists UAS 6676:

Following their big hit on "Mr. Fantasy," this English group should have many eager to hear more of their efforts herein. All their material is original and a nice balance and variety is achieved in mood and instrumental backing of the vocals. Chris Wood especially shines on many instruments, including flute, soprano sax, drums and sleigh bells. My pick track was "40,000 Headmen."

"RELEASE OF AN OATH" — The Electric Prunes — Reprise RS 6316:

Not long ago this Southern California group recorded a rock-pop setting of the mass composed and arranged by David Azelrod. Now here is the same idea, using this time the Kol Nidre ancient Hebrew prayer. Definitely not irreverent, this is a deeply-felt experiment in music and comes off well, though not as well as the previous attempt.

"ELEKTRIC LADYLAND" — The Jimi Hendrix Experience — Reprise 2RS 6307:

The latest Hendrix album, a two-discer, is a classic from start to finish.

First to make the blues psychedelic, Jimi Hendrix had to go to England in order to become a success in America. Local FM station KMPX helped launch his success in this country with their early airings of his English recordings. Now the wild guitarist is listed in serious music journal discographies of electronic music right alongside Stockhausen, Ussachevsky and Cage.

The title tune is good, "Voodoo Chile" a thriller, and Bob Dylan's "All Along the Watchtower" is a Top-40 hit already. Fantastic stereophonics — try it with headsets!

"LORD SITAR" — Capitol ST 2916:

This pop-rock album was produced in England and neither the sitarist nor the orchestra are credited anywhere on the LP. The plan is to mix the haunting sound of the ancient Indian stringed instrument popularized by Ravi Shankar and others with the sound of a swinging pop orchestra playing such hits as "Eleanor Rigby" and several originals.

The first side is in generally poor taste, stooping even to a Hollywoodish plastic version of the theme from Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" on one track. However, the six tunes on the second side are very well done and fun listening. "Blue Jay Way" is most striking and exotic.

ONE PERSON HURT

Gas-Fed Blaze Hard To Contain

A fire from a ruptured gas line in Bret Harte Heights outside San Rafael burned for five hours and 45 minutes last night before utility emergency crews were able to pinch off the line allowing firemen to quench the blaze. (See picture page 3)

One man was injured. Gas service was interrupted to 17 homes, utility officials said.

Fire officials said the blaze, off Tiburon Boulevard, started at about 5:30 p.m. when a tractor loader driven by Harold Holtzinger of Holtzinger Brothers contracting firm of San Rafael apparently scraped through mud at a construction site and severed the line.

Holtzinger was treated at Marin General Hospital for burns on his face, neck, arms and hand. He said he had just finished lifting a truck belonging to Pacific Shingles of Santa Rosa out of the mire when "the diesel blew up." The blast threw him 15 feet from the burning tractor.

Fire units from Marin County, San Rafael and Hamilton Air Force Base were called to control the blaze. Flames shot as high as 30 feet during the fire's peak.

Marin County Fire Chief Louis J. Bloom said firemen fought the blaze for nearly three hours thinking it was a diesel fuel fire fed by the tractor's full 60-gallon tanks. After repeatedly trying to smother the fire with foam, however, it was decided to call in Pacific Gas and Electric Co. workers.

PG&E CALLED

At 8:23 p.m., firemen said, PG&E was called and an inspector was dispatched to the scene, arriving at 8:55 p.m. Donald L. Johnson, PG&E's Marin district manager, said the emergency crew on duty was on another job and a backup crew had to be called from home.

PG&E repairmen finally arrived at about 9:45 p.m., more than four hours after the fire started, according to sheriff's deputies on the scene.

Johnson said the crew was hampered in locating and closing the two-inch pipe because much of the area was under water. Finally, he said, a sand dam was built to divert water and allow them to dig down to the pipe.

NO ESTIMATE

He said it would be several days before it could be determined how much gas escaped from the pipe or what the utility company's dollar damage totaied.

The house under construction at the site, being built by Robert Toquinto of San Rafael, was not damaged. No homes in the area were threatened, although the long fire was a source of concern to residents.

Collegian Dies From Auto Crash

A College of Marin student died yesterday in Placer County Hospital in Auburn as a result of injuries suffered Sunday in an auto accident while en route home from a tobogganing trip to the Sierra.

He was William D. Berlew Jr., 21, of Residence 4, San Quentin, whose father is a correctional officer at the prison.

Berlew was a passenger in a car driven by Mary Bettencourt, 19, of 187 Butterfield Road, San Anselmo, which crashed near Baxter. Miss Bettencourt, who suffered a pelvic fracture in the accident, was transferred yesterday from the Auburn hospital to Ross General Hospital, where her condition was described today as satisfactory.

The California Highway Patrol said their car left Highway 80 while rounding a slight curve and plunged into a deep culvert. The crash happened about 11 p.m. and officers believed Miss Bettencourt fell asleep while driving.

Berlew was a first-year student at the college, majoring in business administration. He was a 1966 graduate of San Rafael High School and an Air Force veteran.

Born in Berkeley, he was a resident of Marin 18 years.

Surviving are his parents, William D. and Helen A. Berlew, with whom he lived.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael's Church in San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. The Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the chapel of Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

Marinite Is Killed In Viet Action

Army S/Sgt. Gernot Bender of San Anselmo was killed in Vietnam last Tuesday, one month after he left his job as operations sergeant and part-time instructor at the University of San Francisco's Department of Military Science.

Bender, 34, was assigned to the Fourth Cavalry Squadron, 25th Infantry Division. He was the 26th Marinite to die in action in Vietnam.

Details of his death and the location in Vietnam were not available today.

Born in Brazil of German parentage, Sgt. Bender joined the ROTC staff at the university in February 1967. He was a part-time student, studying at night for his bachelor's degree in history at the university.

Bender enlisted in the Army in 1957 and had served six years in Germany before coming to Marin County to reside at 24 Durham Road, San Anselmo.

He is survived by his wife, Uta; a daughter, Arline, and two sons, Clyde and Kevin. He is also survived by his parents who live in Germany.

Funeral arrangements are pending.

Marin Will Join Day Of Mourning

Marin County offices, including courts and city and school district offices, will be closed Monday in observance of the national day of mourning for former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Banks will remain open throughout the county, although savings and loans will close. Post offices will be closed, and only special deliveries will be made.

The San Rafael office of the state Department of Employment at 805 E Street will be closed, as will other state and federal offices. State employment officials said that claimants with appointments scheduled Monday should come to the office Tuesday.

Most businesses will be open in San Rafael, the chamber of commerce reported.

Fred F. Enemark, chief executive officer of the Marin County Savings and Loan Association, reported that all savings and loans in Marin said they will be closed.

Almost every municipality decided to close its offices on Monday. Mill Valley was the only one not definite as of this morning, but City Mgr. Bert Balmer said that community will probably follow suit if all other cities are closing.

Hamilton Air Force Base will be shut down except for flight services.

City offices in Petaluma, Cotati and Rohnert Park will also be closed on Monday. Mayor Helen Putnam of Petaluma and city Boy Scouts hoped to hold a flag-raising ceremony Monday, but plans were incomplete. The Boy Scouts in Petaluma have a flag that was flown over the White House when Ike was president.

Eisenhower's Three-Day State Funeral Begins At Cathedral

Private Family Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The knell of a mighty cathedral bell saddened the Washington springtime today. The three-day state funeral of Dwight David Eisenhower had begun.

With crisp military precision and a minimum of ceremony, the body of the 34th president of the United States was received into the stately National Cathedral.

There, in the secluded Bethlehem Chapel, the flag-shrouded coffin will rest, to be viewed by thousands of mourners, until tomorrow afternoon.

Eleven enlisted men bore the body in slow cadence from a midnight-blue hearse through a portal with the carved inscription "The Way of Peace."

COMPOSED, TEARLESS

Composed, tearless, the general's widow and companion of more than half a century, Mamie, stood erect at the arm of her son, John Eisenhower. A veil covered her face. Once, her son patted her black-gloved hand. As always, she wore pearls.

Before her stood an honor guard that included some of the famed warriors of modern military history. The late president's West Point classmate, Gen. Omar Bradley, was there with Adm. Arthur W. Radford, Gen. Lauris Norstad, other military leaders, the two surviving Eisenhower brothers, and his enlisted aide, an Army sergeant.

About 600 persons stood quietly by to await the end of the private 20-minute service. The chapel doors were opened shortly after noon, when the public—many of them tourists—was admitted in small groups.

CROWD SWELLS

An hour later, the crowd had swelled to about 2,000.

Only the family, honor guard, and pallbearers were present for the brief service in which the cathedral received the body.

Rev. Francis B. Sayre, dean of the cathedral and grandson of President Woodrow Wilson, whose body lies in a nearby crypt, said a prayer he wrote especially for General Eisenhower:

"Accept, O Lord, the love and respect in the hearts of all those who come to this place, comforting their sorrow and blessing their thanksgiving.

"Gather them anew to the fellowship of this nation, that our trust may ever be in Thee, and our strength founded upon Thy glory. Cherish, Lord, Thy people, and keep them this day and ever more."

Two other prayers were read from the Episcopal Book of Common Prayer.

LEAVES CATHEDRAL

When it was over, the family walked from the chapel and entered limousines—Mrs. Eisenhower in a car with a license plate bearing the initials DDE—for undisclosed locations.

First in line when the doors were opened to the public was an Army widow. Mrs. Ray Coleman, whose husband had been a colonel, said she was 78—"as old as Ike."

Entering the austere chamber, mourners filing behind a felt rope saw the bier, lying between rows of 10 pillars, surrounded by an honor guard representing each of the five services.

The five enlisted men in dress

Brakes Fail, Auto Into Firehouse

A San Rafael saleswoman drove her car into the San Rafael firehouse at Fifth Avenue and C Street yesterday when the brakes on her car failed, police said.

Irma Irene La Londe, 42, of 1539 Lincoln Avenue, who works for the Fuller Brush Co., told Officers David Jones and Scott Nelson she noticed her brakes were bad while driving through San Anselmo and had brake fluid added.

In front of the fire station, she tried to stop behind a line of cars but the brakes failed to hold. She veered right and drove along the sidewalk for a short distance, then fearing she might hit a pedestrian, aimed the car at the firehouse.

The auto pushed in the wall about a foot and rammed a desk in the fire prevention office. No one was in the office at the time, about 4:20 p.m., but the thundering crash brought a half dozen startled firemen dashing out of the firehouse.

Mrs. La Londe was not hurt.

King Memorial Is Slated Tomorrow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Memorial services for Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., slain civil rights activist will be held in the Washington Cathedral tomorrow about an hour after the body of President Dwight D. Eisenhower is taken from the Cathedral to the Capitol.

Members of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference which King headed when he was assassinated April 4, 1968, are sponsoring the services.

CAPITOL ROTUNDA TRIBUTE

Thousands Will Say Farewell

WASHINGTON (AP) — Dwight D. Eisenhower will be the eighth president to lie in state beneath the dome that forms the huge circular hall called the Rotunda at the heart of the Capitol.

The first was Abraham Lincoln, less than two years after the dome was completed in 1863, and the caskets of all the honored dead since then have rested on the same simple wooden bier.

Besides presidents, past rotunda ceremonies have honored war heroes, members of Congress, a vice president and the French-born engineer who laid out the city of Washington—19 in all.

Normally a bright , bustling place echoing to the noise of the thousands of tourists who push through it each day, the Rotunda takes on the solemn air of a cathedral on the occasion of state funerals.

Its vaulted roof rises 180 feet in the air, topped by a patch of ceiling from which the glorified figure of George Washington, painted in draped robes and surrounded by allegorical figures, peers down as if from a cloud.

The walls at the base are part of the original central structure built after the British burned the Capitol in 1814. The Marquis de Lafayette, a living hero, was honored in the first Rotunda ceremony in 1824.

During the Civil War, while the great cast iron dome was being put in place, northern troops camped out in the Rotunda, as they did in all parts of the Capitol. They called it "the big tent."

The first three presidents to lie in state there were the victims of assassins—Lincoln in 1865, James A. Garfield in 1881 and William McKinley in 1901. A fourth was John F. Kennedy, in 1963.

Other presidents who lay in state there were Warren G. Harding in 1923, William Howard Taft in 1930 and Herbert Hoover in 1964.

While the fierce passions aroused by the Civil War still blazed, Congress honored two of its most ardent antislavery members with state funerals in the Rotunda, Rep. Thaddeus Stevens of Pennsylvania in 1868 and Sen. Charles Sumner of Massachusetts in 1874.

The only other member of Congress to lie in state in the Rotunda was Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio, whose funeral

Blessing of Palms, Other Rites To Open Holy Week

". . . When they heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, took branches of palm trees, and went forth to meet him and cried, Hosanna: Blessed is the King of Israel that cometh in the name of the Lord."

With these two verses from the gospel according to St. John setting the scene, churches in Marin will begin a week of services tomorrow, climaxing with Easter next Sunday.

Events of Plam Sunday tomorrow will include traditional blessing of the palms, Holy Communion and special music.

As in the past a spirit of ecumenicism will prevail throughout the week in Marin with many churches gathering for joint Maundy Thursday and Good Friday services.

Of special interest on Good Friday will be memorial service at 1 p.m. at the First Missionary Baptist Church in Marin City in honor of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. who was assassinated last April 4. Participating churches will be St. Andrew United Presbyterian Church, Village Baptist Church, Church of God and the host church, all of Marin City.

In San Rafael, St. Paul's Episcopal Church will host a 12 noon to 3 p.m. ecumenical service on Good Friday. The First Presbyterian and First Methodist churches of San Rafael.

Churches in the Marinwood, Terra Linda and Lucas Valley areas will also gather on Good Friday for a 5:30 a.m. service at Terra Linda Hill behind the Aldersgate Methodist Church.

Also in the afternoon, a joint 90-minute service is planned at St. Isabella's Catholic Church in Terra Linda, beginning at 12:30 p.m.

"The Seven Last Words of Christ Spoken From the Cross, will be the theme of a six-church Good Friday service at the San Rafael Improvement Club, Fifth and H streets with the Evangelical Free Church,

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

Papal Household Ex-Priest Weds

ROME (AP) — Former Msgr. Giovanni Musante, the closest prelate to the Pope to quit the priesthood, was married today in a Rome church.

Musante

Musante, 49, formerly 11th ranked in the papal household, left the priesthood after more than 25 years as a prelate. His bride was Giovanna Carlevaro, 37.

The ceremony was performed in Rome's 15th Century Santa Maria Della Pace church which was quietly reopened for the occasion. The church is usually closed to the public.

Musante's case caused a furor in the Vatican.

When the news was leaked out to the press one month ago, Vatican prelates claimed he was mentally unbalanced and accused him of "sexual delirium."

Musante, a stocky, ruddy-faced man, denied the accusations, saying he was a normal man.

Alcohol Attack

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Communist Party newspaper Pravda calling alcoholism Russia's major social evil, said nation's murders, 40 per cent of the divorces and more than half of all accidents in the past year.

Reports Brief

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet newspapers published today very brief reports of the death of former President Dwight Eisenhower without any accompanying comment.

The official Communist Party newspaper Pravda put the one-sentence report from Tass, the Soviet News agency on page five, its foreign news page.

$300,000 Tag?

NEW YORK (UPI) — President Richard M. Nixon's 12-room New York apartment, purchased in 1963 for $135,000, is up for sale. Real estate agents estimate it may fetch as much as $300,000.

A spokesman for the company that manages the cooperative apartment building at 810 Fifth Ave. confirmed the apartment was on the market.

Ecumenical Talks

ROME (AP) — Pope Paul VI and seven American Protestant leaders discussed ecumenical cooperation between Protestants and Roman Catholics in the United States for 45 minutes yesterday.

Hospital Strike

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Eight hundred striking doctors and nurses left the 3,000 inmates of the Bernardo Etchepare Mental Hospital without care today.

Parade Theme

PASADENA (AP) — "Holidays Around the World" will be the theme of the 81st annual Tournament of Roses preceding the Rose Bowl football game, officials announced yesterday. Flower garnished floats in the nationally televised parade Jan. 1 will illustrate the theme.

Rejects Debate

U.N. Debate On Mideast Is Stalled

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — A behind-the-scenes deadlock delayed the U.N. Security Council today as it sought to finish debate on an Israeli air raid into Jordan before Big Four talks on the Middle East open this week.

Council delegates said the African and Asian members had proposed that the council condemn Israel for the raid. The United States had counterproposed that it also rap "other acts of violence" and the resulting standoff was likely to run the debate over to Tuesday.

Neither side had yet submitted a formal resolution, and consultations on the form it should take held up the resumption of the debate in its third day.

The council had been called into session urgently on Thursday, the day after Israeli jet planes killed 18 people in a raid on the Jordanian village of Ein Hazar, near the town of Salt.

Diplomatic sources said Soviet, U.S., British and French U.N. ambassadors would meet in New York Thursday to start talks on how to settle the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

But in Cairo, the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram said Egypt has already rejected a U.S. proposal for peace submitted to the other three powers in preparation for the meeting.

The newspaper said Egyptian Foreign Minister Mahmoud Riad told U.N. peace envoy Gunnar V. Jarring the U.S. proposal did not conform with a Security Council resolution on peace passed in 1967. Al Ahram did not elaborate.

The U.S. plan is understood to have called for the Arabs and Israel to reach a voluntary, contractual peace agreement.

The Big Four meetings are expected to continue for several months at the countries' missions in New York. Preliminary bilateral talks started Feb. 11.

The Security Council is considering a Jordanian resolution calling for condemnation of Israel for an air raid on the town of Salt in which 18 persons were killed.

Jordan charged Israeli planes hit civilian targets in a deliberate attempt to head off Big Four talks. Israel said the planes struck at bases of Al Fatah, an Arab guerrilla organization.

Before the council adjourned yesterday, U.S. Ambassador Charles W. Yost said it should condemn not only "the immediate acts of violence" but also "all other acts of violence" in the Middle East.

He said that would "best preserve a spirit of partiality and conciliation" conducive to the success of "efforts about to be renewed with fresh vigor to bring about at last a peaceful settlement."

Round No. 2 Brings Lighter GI Sentences

FORT LEWIS, Wash. (UPI)—An Army court-martial board yesterday sentenced four GIs to sentences ranging from nine months to six years for participating in last October's sit-down strike at the San Francisco Presidio.

The sentences were lighter than those given in four previous convictions in connection with the demonstration. Three of the first four drew sentences of from 14 to 16 years and the other received a four-year term.

Mutiny, which was described during the trial as the most serious crime in military law, carries a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

The trial was moved here from San Francisco after the Army agreed to defense assertions that antimilitary sentiment in the Bay Area might prejudice the verdict against the defendant. In contrast to the proceedings in San Francisco, not a single antiwar demonstrator showed up here.

Twenty-seven soldiers originally were charged with taking part in the protest. Three have escaped and are reported in Canada. One is ill and one is undergoing psychiatric tests. The remaining 14 go on trial April 7 at Fort Ord.

Pvt. Edward O. Yost, 23, Elmira, Solano County, received the lightest term yesterday. He was sentenced to nine months at hard labor and a bad conduct discharge.

In addition to dishonorable discharges and forfeiture of all pay and allowances, the men received the following sentences: William H. Hayes, 22, Healdsburg, two years at hard labor; Harold J. Swanson, 19, San Leandro, three years at hard labor, and Ricky L. Dodd, 21, Hayward, six years at hard labor.

Scholar Attacks Pentagon For Fostering Missile Gaps

WASHINGTON (AP) — An arms control specialist says the Defense Department "has created, encouraged and fostered" three missile-gap scares since 1960 in order to increase its own arsenal.

Jeremy F. Stone, a visiting scholar in economics at Stanford University, told a conference of congressional military critics yesterday the department "has become an inventor and a merchandiser of exaggerated fears. It has become an unscrupulous lobbyist for the weapons to answer those fears."

As a result, he said, Russia has been spurred to a similar weapons buildup and the arms race put on a permanent footing.

His charge was part of a barrage of criticism aimed at the Pentagon by a group of scholars and scientists assembled for the two-day meeting here. It is intended to give the sponsoring congressmen information to enable them to take a more active role in setting military policy.

The Pentagon also came under criticism from another quarter yesterday when Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, said one defense official had raised "a very serious question of credibility."

During a disarmament subcommittee hearing on the proposed Safeguard antimissile system, he accused the department of conducting a superficial and self-serving review of the system designed to disarm critics.

And Fulbright accused Deputy Secretary of Defense David R. Packard of falsely leaving the impression he had consulted fully with Dr. Wolfgang K. H. Panofsky, a Stanford radar specialist, before recommending deployment of Safeguard.

Panofsky told the subcommittee their meeting was a brief chance encounter in the San Francisco Airport three weeks ago, during which he said he was not necessarily opposed to an antimissile system but thought Safeguard was the wrong approach.

Decision Soon On Dock Tieup

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A decision is expected early next week on a request for an order requiring longshoremen to handle cargo including substantial amounts of food for Hawaii.

Prepackaged cargo containers have been left on West Coast docks since March 17 in a dispute between the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union and the Teamsters' over work jurisdiction.

The only food moving to the islands has been frozen, in refrigerated containers. Perishables and other commodites remained behind.

Enemy Rockets Hurled Into Allied Camps

SAIGON (UPI)—The Viet Cong and North Vietnamese closed out the fifth week of their nationwide offensive with 15 barrages into allied military camps today and tried to overrun a U.S. outpost in the Central Highlands.

U.S. military spokesmen said the number of shellings was the lowest in 11 days and reported no towns or cities hit. But the level of ground fighting was high, with battles from Saigon's suburbs to the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ).

MORTAR ROUNDS

The guerrillas opened up with 50 mortar rounds before dawn against a U.S. Central Highlands outpost and then charged into the perimeter wire before American troops and gunships drove them back. Two Americans were killed and 25 wounded but no Communist bodies were found, U.S. headquarters said.

Among the major American bases targeted for overnight rocket attacks was the air base at Bien Hoa, a Saigon suburb, from where U.S. warplanes scramble to support allied troops in battle defending the capital. Damage there was described as light.

GRAVES FOUND

Meanwhile hundreds of peasants yesterday dug up a grisly reminder of the 1968 Tet offensive — the bodies of 67 relatives executed with hands tied behind their backs.

The victims, decomposed beyond recognition, were discovered in trenches running through an uninhabited expanse of sandy flatlands 10 miles east of Hue. Province officials said hundreds more may be buried in the mass grave.

Gas Chamber For Sirhan Questioned

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The prosecution's chief psychiatrist in the Sirhan murder trial believes the young Arab premeditated the killing of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy but still has stated he feels the gas chamber is too severe a penalty.

Dr. Seymour Pollack, a professor of psychiatry at the University of Southern California, told the jury yesterday Sirhan B. Sirhan was mentally ill, but also said his motives were political.

The key to life or death sentence for Sirhan lies largely in whether the jury can be convinced he "meaningfully and maturely" planned Kennedy's assassination.

Pollack believes he had that ability. But the psychiatrist also wrote in a preliminary report that he is a paranoid and should not be sentenced to death.

The trial was in recess until Tuesday—Monday being a day of mourning for former President Eisenhower.

Pollack will be on the stand probably two more days. It is now considered likely the case will not go to the jury until the Monday after Easter.

82nd Inmate To Death Row

REDWOOD CITY — Zachary Lillard, 34, convicted of murdering a San Mateo police officer, was sentenced yesterday to die in the San Quentin Prison gas chamber.

In imposing the death penalty, Superior Court Judge Melvin E. Cohn carried out the penalty verdict reached by the same jury that found Lillard guilty of killing Sgt. Gordon Joinville during a narcotics investigation.

Lillard was brought from San Quentin for the formal sentencing. He will join 81 other men on Death Row.

ONLY BRADLEY NOW LEFT IN ELITE CORPS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Only Gen. Omar Bradley is left of the nine men who have worn the five stars of the nation's top military rank.

Bradley, 76, won his fifth star during the Korean War, although he was a top military commander during World War II when most of the others were accorded the rank. He now lives in Beverly Hills and said yesterday he plans to attend Eisenhower's funeral.

Besides Bradley and Dwight D. Eisenhower, the circle of stars was worn by Douglas MacArthur and George C. Marshall of the Army; Henry H. (Hap) Arnold, commander of the Army Air Corps in World War II, and Navy admirals Chester W. Nimitz, Ernest J. King, William D. Leahy and William F. (Bull) Halsey.

John J. Pershing, who led U.S. forces in World War I, was authorized six stars but wore only four.

Stabbing In Dorm Leads To Rampage

PRAIRIE VIEW, Tex. (AP) — Authorities said rampaging students set three wooden buildings on fire after a football player was stabbed and killed today at Prairie View A&M College.

Sheriff Jimmie Whitworth said gang fighting broke out between athletes and non-athletes after the slaying at the Negro school 40 miles northwest of Houston. About 100 students were involved.

Texas Rangers and state highway patrolmen were summoned to reinforce sheriff's officers.

Wesley Davidson, 20, was stabbed to death in a dormitory for athletes about midnight.

An unnamed student accused of killing him was still sought hours later.

By daylight, Sheriff Whitworth reported the students were dispersed and "it looks like things are in good shape now."

The fires damaged older frame buildings on the Prairie View campus, which is seven miles east of Hempstead, the narest town. State police estimated the property loss at $40,000.

'Oakland 7' Cleared By Jury Of Charges

OAKLAND (UPI) — An eight-man, four-women jury last night found the "Oakland Seven," a group of Bay Area antiwar leaders who had become a cause celebre among the radical left, innocent of conspiracy charges.

The seven were charged with fomenting the massive demonstrations and ensuing riots that took place at the Oakland armed forces induction center during the Stop the Draft week protests of October 1967.

Following three days of deliberations, the jury returned its decision at 10:24 p.m.

The more than 40 supporters of the seven who packed the Oakland court room broke into cheers and rushed to congratulate the smiling dissidents, causing Superior Court Judge George W. Phillips Jr. to demand order.

Specifically, the defendants were charged with the felony of conspiring to have others commit acts of trespassing and obstructing police, both misdemeanors. If convicted, each would have received a maximum sentence of three years in jail and a fine of $5,000.

The jury began deliberating at 11 a.m. Wednesday after a trial that lasted nearly eight weeks and ended with closing arguments by both sides that lasted 16 hours.

Defense attorney Charles R. Garry, a colorful lawyer who dabbed at his tear-filled eyes and quoted the line from the inscription on the Statue of Liberty—"Give me your tired, your poor, your huddled masses" — in his summation, maintained that the defendants were singled out from among thousands of demonstrators for prosecution because of their prior political activities.

Prosecutor Lowell Jensen disputed defense claims that the seven were protected from prosecution by the First Amendment and attacked Garry's stand that the defendants had a moral duty to fight the draft and the Vietnam War.

In addition to Mandel, 23, the defendants included Frank Bardacke, 26, Terence Cannon, 29, Feese Erlich, 21, Steve Hamilton, 23, Michael J. Smith, 27, formerly of Corte Madera, and Jeff Segal, 26, who already is behind bars for refusing to report for the draft.

Higher Church Insurance Asked

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A 50 per cent increase in fire insurance premiums on California churches was recommended yesterday by the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, which sets guidelines for individual companies.

During a five-year period ending in 1967, insurors paid out $7.4 million for church fires while collecting $4.9 million in premiums, said a spokesman.

There was no statistical evidence that social unrest was a major factor in church fire losses, but there might be a relation "especially in churches used for meetings on social issues," said a spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute.

The rating bureau earlier recommended a 40 per cent rise in fire insurance rates for California schools, placing the blame on arson and campus violence.

Khan Eases Martial Law In Pakistan

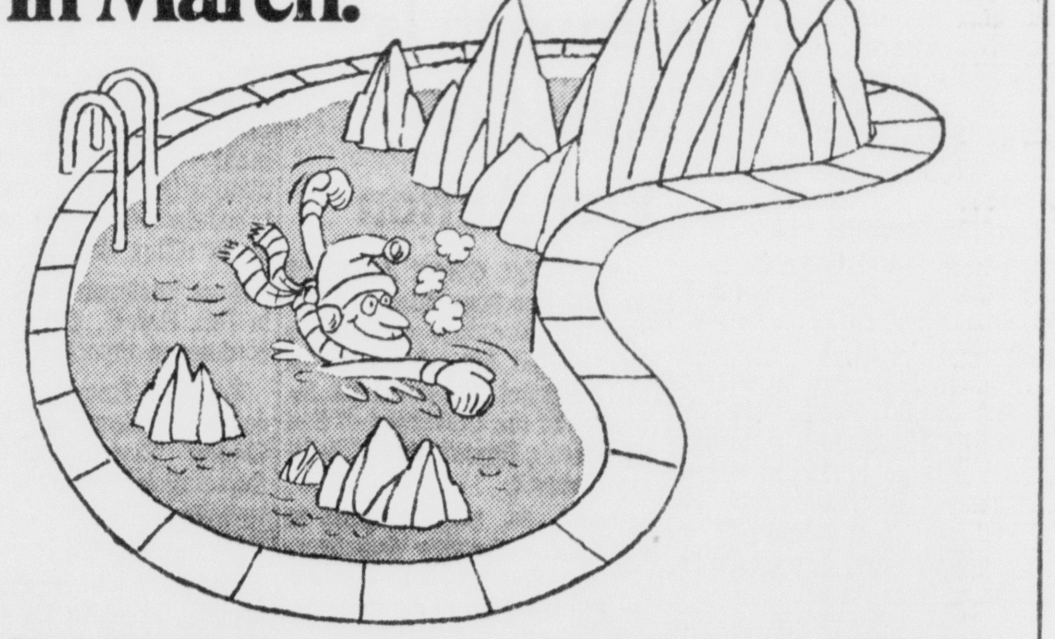
KARACI (UPI)—Gen. Yahya Khan eased his tough martial law decree today for street parades marking the Moslem holiday of Muhurram, in memory of a 14th Century martyr.

Moslems in every major Pakistani city took to the streets behind traditional battle shields in mourning for Hazrat Imam, who is said to have died on the battlefield in Arabia 600 years ago defending truth and justice.

The celebration is the highlight of the first 10 days of the Moslem year.

Pakistan's new ruler, Gen. Khan, ordered permits issued for the religious parades—the first permission his tough regime has given for public gatherings under martial law.

Yesterday, Khan's military administration announced concessions of sorts to the workers and students whose strikes and riots led to the downfall of former President Mohammad Ayub Khan.



The cold facts about buying a swimming pool in March.

1. You save cold cash—up to 20 per cent on fully-equipped pools with Anthony's off-season March discounts. You can actually get an Anthony pool for as little as $2,495.* How low can you get?
2. Your payments are frozen till May and payments can be as little as $10.00 a week. And with your good credit there's no down payment.
3. To break the ice during March, Anthony gives you, with a heated pool, its exclusive Fun Spa absolutely free. The Fun Spa turns one corner of your pool into a miniature bubbling "warm springs".
4. Because of more relaxed winter schedules, March construction crews give you highest quality.
5. March pool construction insures that the area surrounding the pool can be fully improved and landscaped in time for summer swimming.
6. March air may be chilling but when your pool is heated between 80 and 90 degrees with the exclusive Anthony heater—it's a warm and wonderful pleasure.
7. Biggest March advantages apply always. Since Anthony is the world's largest pool builder, you get the advantage of vast engineering experience and, because of Anthony's volume business, lower prices. Most important—the Anthony guarantee also holds water. Phone the sales office nearest you. If you're out of area, call collect. Or fill out coupon.

FIRE THAT WOULDN'T DIE

Youths Booked In Drug Probe

Two San Rafael youths, 13 and 17, were booked into Marin Juvenile Hall yesterday on suspicion of being under the influence of drugs.

They were among six passengers in a car, driven by a 17-year-old San Rafael youth, which was stopped by San Rafael Patrolman Donald Rose on the southbound on-ramp to Highway 101 about 9:30 yesterday morning.

Rose also cited the driver for having alcoholic beverages in the car. The officer said he found beer, a half gallon of wine and substance that appeared to be marijuana in the car.

The other youths, all under 18, were released.

Two Injured In Auto Crash

Two men were treated at Marin General Hospital yesterday after their car flipped over on Lucas Valley Road about 3 p.m.

Ronald Orman Mathews, 21, 1075 Las Pavadas Avenue, San Rafael, driver of the car, was treated for a cut chin, and James W. Branch, 21, of Redding, a passenger, for scrapes on his right arm and face.

The California Highway Patrol reported Mathews told them he braked to avoid hitting a rabbit, started skidding, went over the shoulder and rolled down an embankment.

Woman Reports Attack At Pool

A 19-year-old San Francisco girl, who undressed to take a dip in a shallow pool in the Rock Springs area of Mount Tamalpais Thursday afternoon, was raped by a man who emerged from bushes and grabbed her, sheriff's deputies reported today.

The man, about 30 and five feet, 10 inches tall, then stole her cigarettes and disappeared, she told officers.

The girl said she and several friends had been camping in the area. She wandered off alone and began bathing in a shallow pool.

The attacker threatened to drown her if she resisted. The girl's companions said they saw a man leave the area in a white car with a black vinyl top.

Burglar Steals Radio, Coins

A burglar stole a transistor radio worth $100 and $105 in coins from an apartment in Sausalito, the victim reported to sheriff's deputies yesterday.

T. F. Burke, 48, Apartment 128, 1 Eden Roc, said he had been away since Monday. There were no pry marks on the door or windows to indicate how the thief had entered.

On Thursday afternoon, a San Rafael resident reported a $670 burglary at his home. Stanley W. DeGreeve of 20 Brushwood Lane said a portable television, tape recorder, and several rings were missing.

Police said the burglar probably slipped the lock on the kitchen door.

Mill Valleyan Is Hurt In Accident

Sylvia Dahl Myers, 41, of 621 Eucalyptus Way, Mill Valley, suffered facial bruises about 4 p.m. yesterday when her car crashed into another in Terra Linda.

The mishap occurred at Northgate Drive and Las Gallinas Avenue. The other driver, Ronald Joseph Sabaca, 26, of 69 Mitchell Boulevard, Terra Linda, was stopped at the intersection, headed south on Northgate Drive, when the other car rammed his vehicle from behind, police said.

The University of Northern Iowa has had only five presidents in its 92 years of existence.

Seven Perish In New Jersey Fire

PLAINFIELD, N.J. (AP) — Seven persons died early today in a fire that swept through a three-story commercial and apartment building.

Plainfield fire officials said only two of the victims were immediately identified: Louis Gonzalez, a resident of the building, and his daughter Rosa, 3. Another Gonzalez child, 4-month-old Raymond, was in fair condition with burns at Muhlenberg Hospital.

A man, an infant girl and a woman were among the other victims. Officials said the remaining two victims were too badly burned to identify them by sex.

One Person Killed In Refinery Blaze

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Firemen say a spark of static electricity from a truck may have touched off explosions yesterday that killed a truck driver and burned more than 50 persons in a million-dollar oil refinery fire.

Investigators continued today probing the charred, twisted tanks of the Fletcher Oil Co. in suburban Carson.

service was held there in 1953.

Henry Wilson, vice president during Ulysses S. Grant's second term, died suddenly in the Capitol in 1874 and was given a state funeral.

The nation has paid final tribute to four war heroes in Rotunda ceremonies—Gen. John A. Logan in 1886; Adm. George Dewey in 1917; Gen. John J. Pershing in 1948, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur in 1964.

In addition, unknown soldiers from the two World Wars and the Korean War lay in state there.

The only other person given such an honor was Maj. Pierre Charles L'Enfant, who planned the capital city, and in his case it was belated recognition. In 1909, 84 years after his death, his body was removed from its burial place on a nearby farm and reinterred at Arlington National Cemetery after lying in state in the Rotunda.

The builders of the Capitol and the early Congresses had hoped the Rotunda would mark the final resting spot of George Washington, but Washington's family carried out the wish, written in his will, that he be buried in Mount Vernon.

Coroner Says Girl's Death Due To Drugs

The death of Willeen Harper, 16-year-old San Francisco girl who died in a Corte Madera motel March 1, was due to three drugs — methamphetamine, amphetamine and morphine — Dr. Donovan O. Cooke, Marin County coroner, said yesterday.

Dist. Atty. Bruce B. Bales said his office is still investigating the circumstances of the girl's death. No new charges have been filed against the three young men who were with her at the Meadowsweet Motel.

The youths, William John Helms, 20, of San Anselmo; Curtis Lynn Ross, 18, of San Quentin, and Stephen Carl Ellsworth, 20, of San Rafael, are awaiting trial in Municipal Court on misdemeanor charges of being under the influence of narcotics. Their trial is set for April 22.

Drunken Driving Suspect Booked

A member of the Marin sheriff's marine patrol was booked today on suspicion of drunken driving after his car flattened a parking meter on Fifth Avenue and scraped the Independent-Journal building.

San Rafael Police Sgt. Phillip Green arrested James Ray Walker, 45, of 183 Mark Twain Lane, San Rafael, shortly after 6 a.m. Green said Walker drove away from the scene and was caught in the 1500 block of Second Street. The officer said paint marks on the meter pole matched the paint of Walker's car.

Walker operates a wheel alignment service on Irwin Street. He was released from County Jail on $360 bail.

Racing Tires Stolen

Two racing tires, valued at $100, and 15 quarts of motor oil were stolen from Demore's Texaco Service Station at 601 4th Street overnight Thursday, San Rafael police reported.

Three-Day State Rites Begin For Eisenhower

uniform, standing guard around the closed coffin in half-hour shifts, remained at attention. Only the sound of shuffling feet could be heard.

Close by is the crypt containing the body of the hero of Manila Bay, Adm. George Dewey. Former Secretary of State Cordell Hull also is buried in the cathedral, a massive, soaring structure at the crest of a hill where Massachusetts and Wisconsin avenues intersect. The White House is about two miles away.

General Eisenhower, it was said, had chosen the Episcopal cathedral although he was a Presbyterian — because of the resemblance of its tower to that of the chapel at West Point.

The public passed through the chapel for 45 minutes at a time. For 15 minutes every hour, it was closed to all but family and friends of the five-star general.

The relatively quiet beginning to three days of funeral pageantry went off with military efficiency the general would have admired. In the language of the Military District of Washington's three-year-old funeral plan, this was "D plus 1." (D is for demise.)

Yesterday, when he died at 12:25 p.m., was termed D-Day—just like the sixth day of June 1944, when Eisenhower thrust a mighty allied force across the English Channel into the European continent, marking the beginning of the end of World War II.

As the humble said farewell in the little chapel, the mighty of the world prepared to pay their own tribute by attending the principal funeral service Monday.

That will be in the main cathedral. The body will be returned there after lying in state in the Capitol Rotunda tomorrow, following a grand procession along Constitution Avenue.

For the fourth time in five years a riderless horse in funeral trappings, boots reversed in the saddle, will follow an artillery caisson bearing a dead American to Capitol Hill.

French President Charles de Gaulle, a comrade in arms to Eisenhower during the war, heads the list of foreign dignitaries who will attend. It will be his first visit to the United States since November 1963, when he came for the funeral of President John F. Kennedy.

The procession will take place amidst the flourishes of martial music, the sonorous sound of muffled drums.

After the Monday afternoon service, the body will be placed aboard a special 12-car train at Union Station for the 30-hour journey west to the boyhood home and Eisenhower Center at Abilene, Kan.

Eisenhower will be buried Wednesday in the chapel of the library near his son, Doud, who died in childhood.

Contrary to some expectations —and at the family's wishes— the last train ride home is not planned to be a public spectacle.

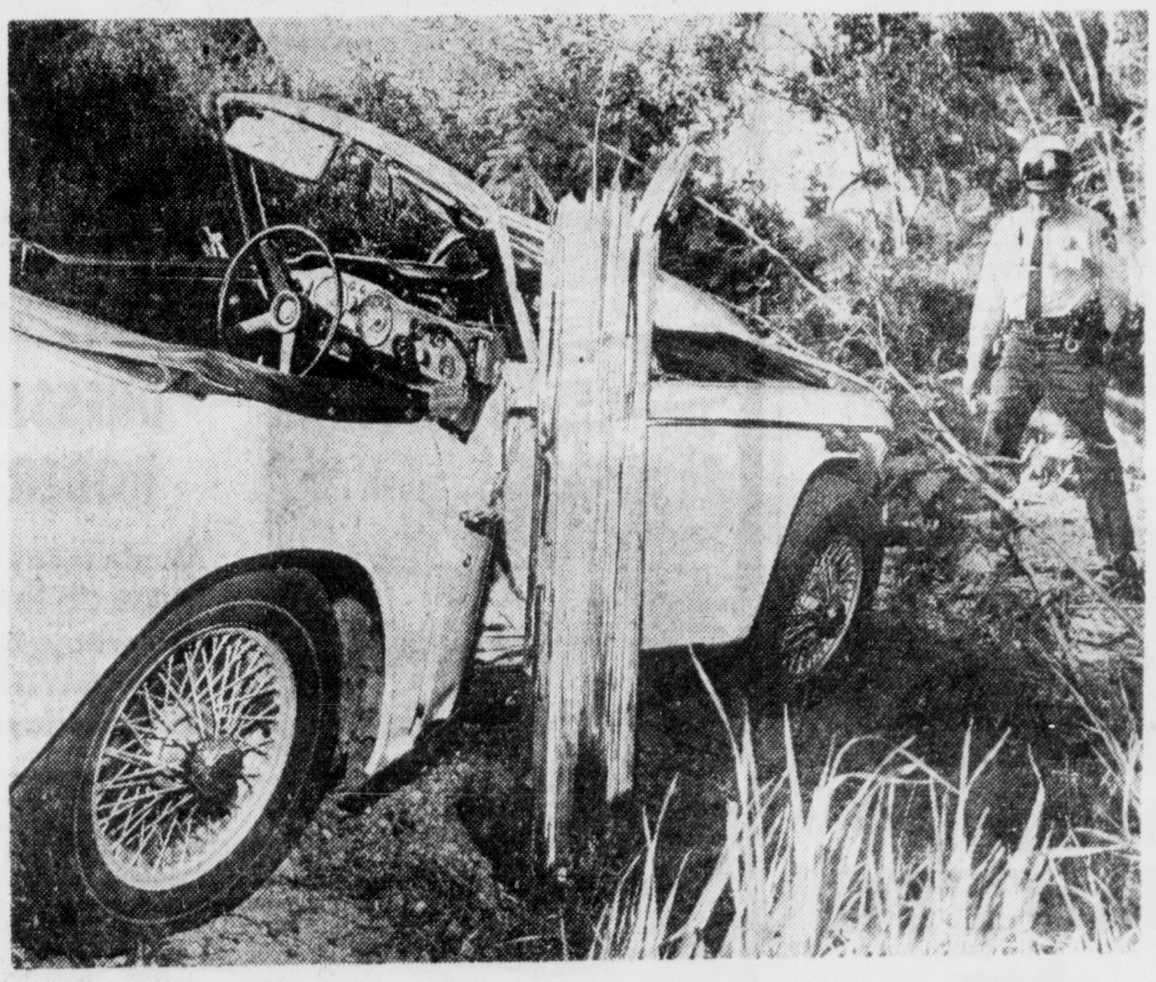
Unlike the slow train that bore Abraham Lincoln to Springfield in 1865, or the one that carried Robert F. Kennedy from New York to Washington one nightmarish afternoon last June, the Eisenhower train will move at a 50-mile-an-hour clip.

The few stops will be brief and functional: 10-minute halts in Charlottesville, Va., White Sulphur Springs and Huntington, W.Va., and Washington, Ind.; an hour for washing and changing tracks in Cincinnati, and a longer stop in St. Louis to switch to Norfolk-Western lines for the final push westward.

Even these details were pieced together from railroad officials. The Army—adhering to family wishes—said it would not make the rail itinerary public.

The train is scheduled to arrive in Abilene about midnight Tuesday.

As the ceremonies began today, President Nixon remained in seclusion at Camp David, Md., preparing the eulogy he will deliver tomorrow in the Capitol Rotunda.



POLE SHEARED, TWO HURT

San Rafael Patrolman L. J. Ahern inspects damage after this white sport car left the road in front of 248 Linden Lane about 3 p.m. yesterday and snapped a utility pole. The driver, James L. Olson, 22, suffered head cuts; his passenger, Wilber E. Mitchener, 24, hand and arm bruises. Both were treated at Marin General Hospital. The pair is stationed at Two Rock Army Base near Petaluma. Soviet Airline Office Hit By Angry Czechs

VIENNA (AP) — Eyewitnesses reported angry Czechoslovaks ransacked the office of the Soviet airline Aeroflot on Wenceslas Square in Prague early this morning chanting "Russians go home."

The informants said documents and pieces of furniture were thrown out of the office and burned. Czechoslovak police at first took no action but later demanded that the demonstrators disperse. There were no reports of any arrests.

The eyewitnesses said the crowd chanted "Ivan go home" and "for August," referring to the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia last August. They said persons who stormed the Aeroflot office were part of a huge crowd estimated at more than 100.000 that gathered in Prague's main square after the Czechoslovaks defeated the Soviets at the ice hockey world championships in Stockholm last night.

Notice Sent On Meeting

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in reporting that no public notice was given for Thursday's workshop session of the San Francisco-Marin Water Transportation Study Committee.

The notice, however, was delivered to the press room at the Marin Civic Center on Wednesday afternoon — too late for publication in Wednesday's paper. The meeting was held Thursday morning.

The committee was warned recently about conducting unannounced meetings, in violation of the Ralph M. Brown Act.

OBITUARIES

EDWARD ABRAHAM

Edward Frederick Abraham, 87, a retired merchant seaman, died at a Novato convalescent hospital yesterday after a long illness.

Abraham, who lived at 116 Harbor Drive, Black Point, died of natural causes, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan. An autopsy was pending at Redwood Chapel Funeral Home in Novato.

Abraham had lived in Marin County for 22 years. He is survived by a daughter, Stella E. Harlan, of Boise, Idaho.

Funeral arrangements were incomplete today.

HILDA ROUVALI

Funeral for Hilda Toivonen Rouvali, mother of Arvo Toivonen of Mill Valley, will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Daphne Funeral Home, San Francisco.

Mrs. Rouvali died Wednesday at a local convalescent home after a long illness.

A native of Finland, she had lived in the United States since about 1920. She had lived in Marin, in a convalescent home, for about two years, coming here from San Francisco.

KATE WICHELS

Kate Campbell Wichels of Napa, a sister of Anna Hoffmann of San Anselmo, died yesterday in a Bay Area hospital following a short illness.

She was the wife of John Wichels, retired electrical foreman for Pacific Gas and Electric Co., and she and her husband had lived in Napa most of their married life, since 1924.

Besides her husband and sister, she is survived by a brother, Duncan M. Campbell of Napa.

Funeral will be at 2 p.m. tomorrow at Treadway and Wigger Funeral Chapel in Napa.

'You Folks Have It Easy' Writes Vietnam-Based Soldier

DEAR HELEN:

I know you don't often print poetry, but I think this letter from a Serviceman in Vietnam is worthy of your column. Please use it. — G.L.

JUST THINKING

You know last night while standing guard, I though I'd write a poem.
And tell it like it really is to all the folks back home.
You people read the papers and watch the TV shows,
But with all those many headlines, no one really knows. . . .
You hear about our battles, the enemies we kill,
But you've never seen a buddy fall while charging up a hill.
At home you walk down sidewalks or in a crowded mall,
But here we fight the jungle brush so thick we have to crawl.
And stateside, you have bridges built to go across the river.
But here in 'Nam we walk right in and when it's cold we shiver.
You've got air conditioners there, to cool your shop or den,
But over here it's so damn hot we think it's hell we're in.
At home you take your wife or girl, go out and dance all night.
But over here we stand our guard — often stiff with fright.
Have you ever looked around and seen the many things you've got?
Or stopped just once to think about the many things we've not?
You have cold beer and water. You have hot meals to eat.
Our rations on the front lines really aren't any treat.
And everyday you take a walk down life's easy path—
I'll bet you've never had to go a month without a bath!
To you a bath is water, hot enough to make it steam.
To us it's nothing more than jumping in a leech-infested stream!
Perhaps you have been scared enough to think the end was near.
But I'll bet you've never had to live a year in total fear.
You folks have got it easy compared to us across the sea,
But all any soldier asks of you is,
"Please remember me!"

Men's Suits

If a man is less than an Adonis, should he reach for one of those elegantly shaped new spring suits in the stores? The answer—"Yes." The American Institute of Men's and Boy's Wear says so for this reason: although original efforts were aimed at the slim, trim, youthful figure, there now are similar looking styles for "the more mature man." These have been designed to accomodate a wider waistline—and disguise it a bit, too.

British Nurse Visits Marin

By JOAN LISETOR

"Marin County is so beautiful I cannot understand why it is not better known in Europe," says a British nurse, Doreen Joyce, who is spending a week studying conditions at Marin General Hospital.

DELORES YANNI, left, shows recovery room facilities at Marin General Hospital to Doreen Joyce, a nursing officer from Liverpool, England, who has spent the week studying conditions at the Marin hospital. Miss Yanni is the intensive care unit and recovery room head nurse.

"I was disappointed coming across the bridge from San Francisco, however," Miss Joyce says, "I had always thought the bridge was golden."

Doreen Joyce is a nursing officer, formerly called as assistant matron, of the Liverpool Royal Infirmary. Her job is comparable to that of an assistant director of nursing in U.S. hospitals. Her trip is sponsored by the Board of Governors of the United Liverpool Hospitals.

"I received the scholarship (trip) on the basis of a paper telling why I wanted to come to the U.S. and where I wanted to visit hospitals," the nurse explains. "I chose the cities of San Francisco, New York, Los Angeles and Washington, D.C."

The California portion of Miss Joyce's trip is arranged by Elizabeth Hill, the coordinator of foreign visitors programs for the California State Department of Public Health. Miss Hill selected Marin General Hospital for Miss Joyce's first week in California. Her next two weeks will be spent at Children's Hospital and the University of California Medical Center, both in San Francisco. Then she will go to Los Angeles, where she has a sister.

"I spent three weeks at three different hospitals in New York before coming here," Doreen explains. "And I must say I am impressed with the friendliness of the West over the East."

She arrived in San Francisco Sunday, a day ahead of schedule because she feared she would have the same trouble adjusting to the time change as she had between England and New York and wanted to give herself an extra day.

"I adjusted to the time change. It is only three hours, not six as between my home and the East Coast, but I was glad to have arrived early so I could spend the day sightseeing."

Her sightseeing in San Francisco included a cable car ride and a visit to Fishermen's Wharf. In Marin she toured Muir Woods before arriving at Marin General Hospital.

"I am so impressed with the personnel here (at Marin General). They are marvelously efficient and at the same time terribly compassionate. That is such an important combination when you are dealing with people," she says. "The people have been so pleasant, so welcoming."

Miss Joyce's primary nursing interest is coronary care and she feels Marin General was made a part of her itinerary because of its advanced heart care unit.

"In England we have nurses' costumes for little girls," Doreen says. "When I see little three and four-year-old girls I ask them if they have one and then I try to talk them into becoming nurses."

She says she is so happy in her profession and finds it so rewarding that she wants other people to be as happy as she is.

In addition to the warmth, efficiency and compassion of the staff at Marin General, Miss Joyce has been impressed with the concept of the volunteers. She says they have a few volunteers in some English hospitals but her hospital has not made as much use of outside help as is done here.

Following the three and one-half months of hospital observing, Doreen will take a month's holiday before returning to Liverpool. With her free time she will probably attend musical and ballet performances, do a bit of reading and meet as many people as possible.

SEW SIMPLE

Never Press On Right Side Of Fabric When Sewing

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

I don't understand why some pressing is done with a steam iron and other pressing must be done with a press cloth.

MRS. B. E. R.

DEAR MRS. B. E. R.:

A steam iron can be used for basically all of your sewing when your garment is in production. Be sure to remember one very important fact, don't ever, ever press any part of your garment from the right side.

The purpose of a press cloth is for pressing the faced edges of coats and suits and it is used when pressing wool more than any other type of fabric. This is important because you need more heat and moisture to get a sharp look on the edges of a woolen garment. Dampen an area of your press cloth lightly, use a hot iron (not steam) and press with a little more pressure than normal. I usually prefer pressing any faced area twice, rather than getting it too moist the first time. Wool takes a long time to actually dry again and when it dries naturally, the sharpness of the pressed edges become rounded again. For this reason, you must pound the faced edges firmly after you remove the pressing cloth, with the lower, unpadded end of your pressing board.

MRS. HOYT A. TATUM, Nora Springs, Iowa, is this week's winner of the Tailor Trix pressing board for her suggestion:

"With everyone wearing pants for every occasion, I have found a simple way to get a straight crease if your slacks call for one.

"Stitch the side seams and the inside leg seam of each leg, do not stitch the center front or center back seam at this time. Fold the two seams together and press and you'll have a perfect crease which may be stitched if you desire (especially if you use a knitted fabric). I have also found that using a cloth that has been dipped in vinegar for pressing this crease, keeps it in more securely and longer.

"Lastly, stitch the crotch seam from front to back."

DEAR EUNICE,

I have discovered a very attractive pattern which is shown in a plaid that is cut on the bias. I have had such miserable luck with anything that is bias in the past. I am wondering if it actually matters if this dress is cut with the straight grain of the fabric? MRS. F. T. M.

DEAR MRS. F. T. M.:

Most patterns that are cut with the bias grain of the fabric are cut this way because of a particular "look" the designer is trying to create. These garments usually depend on the bias to bring them closer to the body instead of the usual darts.

We have had success occasionally in changing the grain line and the main clue seems to be the darts. If the pattern you are referring to has bust line darts as well as darts for fitting the waist and hips, it will probably work when you change the grain. If there are no visible signs of fitting darts. I don't think the garment will hang correctly or fit.

DEAR EUNICE,

I am about to lose my mind as well as my food budget, replacing buttons that have been lost on both my children's as well as my own double-breasted clothes.

Whether I make these clothes or buy them, it is always impossible to go back and match the original buttons, so in order to put the garment back into wearable condition, I am forced to purchase eight or ten or more buttons each time. Is there any real solution to double-breasted clothes that seem to have a jillion buttons on them?

MRS. M. M.

DEAR MRS. M. M.:

This is a question that comes up daily. Many times you will see a button missing when the garment is still in the store, before being purchased, and it is really a problem. When you make your own clothes, it would be wise to purchase an extra button, also, to check them frequently to see if they are about to come off. Are you using buttonhole twist for sewing buttons on, also, are you leaving enough give or shank to the button to prevent pulling off?

The coward's way out would be to remove one row of buttons entirely, and leave only the functional row that actually button. This would give you a very smart, off-side closing effect, which is very good today as far as fashion is concerned.

If a bound buttonhole is the answer for your creation — and you wish to know how — send for Mrs. Farmer's leaflet, "Bound Buttonholes," which is available to you free of charge. Include a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request and mail to Eunice Farmer in care of the Independent-Journal.

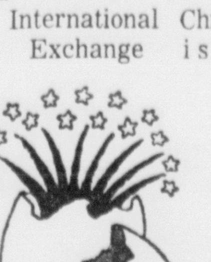
ON THE AGENDA

Christian Youth Exchangee To Tell Of Life In Indonesia

Marcie Thurston, daughter of Mrs. Doris Thurston of Mill Valley, will present a program at a meeting of Triple C (Community Church Club) of Mill Valley at noon on Wednesday. Marcie was the church's International Christian Youth Exchange student during 1967-68. She stayed with a Christian family including a doctor and his wife, seven of their 10 children, three grandchildren, and one other girl.

Marcie returned to the United States in June of 1968 and is a freshman at the University of California at Santa Cruz.



The International Christian Youth Exchange is administrered in the United States by the National Council of Churches. Over 20 countries throughout the world are now participating. Applicants must be between the ages of 16 and 19.

Much of the money for Marcie's expenses was raised by Muir League, the Community Church high school youth group. The church also contributed funds.

The Triple C meeting will be held in the Parish Hall of the church. Members will bring sack lunches, and dessert and coffee or tea will be served by Mmes. Agnes Reed, Joel Gustafson and Grace Guest.

THE APRIL 3 meeting of the Outdoor Art Club's Literary Section, featuring an illustrated lecture on Europe by Mrs. Roger Verran, has been postponed to May 1 because of Easter week.

THE LADIES AUXILIARY to the Marin Barracks 550, Veterans of World War I is sponsoring a Purity Club party luncheon for men and women Thursday. The fund-raising event will be held at the San Rafael Recreation Center, Second and Brooks streets in San Rafael, beginning with hors d'oeuvres.

Committee members are Mmes. Alice Partridge, Gertrude Reed and Leah Jarrett.

THE MARIN COUNTY Family Development Center will sponsor encounter groups for both singles and couples for eight weeks starting April 3.

The meetings, on Tuesday or Thursday evenings at 8 p.m., will take place at 179 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael. Thomas Grimm, a marriage counselor, will lead the couples group, while Rachel Irwin, a gestalt therapist from Oakland, will supervise the singles. Registration must be made by April 1 at the Catholic Social Service of Marin County, 179 Los Ranchitos Road, San Rafael.

SEVENTEEN Marin County organizations are participating in the Novato Senior Citizens-sponsored "Village Fair Bazaar" to be held today until 9 p.m. at the Community House in Novato.

The Novato Senior Citizens are staffing five booths at the bazaar, which is the only fund-raising event for the senior citizens.

THE CORTE MADERA Woman's Improvement Club won the single award in law prevention given at the 13th annual convention of the Golden Gate District, CFWC, held at the Villa Hotel in San Mateo Monday and Tuesday.

The women also received awards in the categories of press and publicity, crafts, and radio and television.

Other Marin clubs in the winner's circle included the Outdoor Art Club, which competed in conservation and Indian affairs; the San Rafael Woman's Club, receiving awards for conservation and California landmarks, and the Sausalito Woman's Club, an award for conservation.

An emergency resolution was passed to have the Apollo 8 flight stamp recalled and reprinted with words "In the beginning, God," which had been omitted in the first printing. Letters will be sent to President Nixon and members of the United States Senate.

THREE MEMBERS from Marin are attending the convention of the California Home Economics Association at the Ambassador Hotel in Los Angeles this weekend. Attending the afternooon and evening meeting will be Mrs. Rosemarie Sillery of Corte Madera, home economist with a foods corporation; Miss Virginia Shattuck of San Rafael, president-elect of California Home Economics Association Bay District, and Mrs. Theodora Faiola of Mill Valley, district supervisor with the Bureau of Homemaking Education.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN HORWATH

Linda Reusche Bride In Sunday Nuptials

Good Shepherd Lutheran Church in Novato was the setting Sunday for the marriage of Linda Reusche and John Horwath.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Reusche of Novato, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Horwath of San Francisco.

Eileen Reusche was her sister's maid of honor, and another sister, Gayle Reusche; Shari Garl, a student at Concordia Teachers College in Illinois, and Cathy Johnson of Chico were bridesmaids.

Best man for his brother was Paul Horwath. Ron Fisse of Camp Pendleton, Jim Riffie of San Francisco and the bridegroom's brother, Gary Horwath, ushered.

A reception at the Lodge in Novato followed the ceremony.

Linda is a graduate of Novato High School. She attended College of Marin and is employed by Pacific Telephone Company in San Francisco. Eric Reusche is her brother, and she is the granddaughter of Mrs. Hattie Reusche of San Francisco and Mr. and Mrs. William Bigham of Santa Rosa.

The bridegroom was graduated from Abraham Lincoln High School in San Francisco and City College of San Francisco. Kathleen Horwath is his sister. John is a corporal in the Marines, stationed at Camp Pendleton.

The couple will live in Oceanside.

Mr. And Mrs. John Heath To Make Davis Their Home

John E. Heath wed Judith Lynn Wooding Sunday in a ceremony at the First Unitarian Church in San Francisco.

Marsha Gillman of Santa Rosa was maid of honor, and the bridegroom's twin cousins, Theresa and Elizabeth Shearn of Ross, were bridesmaids.

William Heath of Novato was his brother's best man. David Allen of Woodacre and Douglas MacCrea of San Rafael ushered.

A reception in the Martin Luther King Room of the church followed the ceremony.

Judith is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Rae Wooding of Boca Raton, Fla. She is in her senior year at the University of California at Davis. Ronald Wooding is her brother.

The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Vera Heath of Kentfield. He was graduated from Redwood High School, College of Marin and U.C. at Davis and is studying for a master's degree in electrical engineering at Davis. Mrs. May Jope of Ross is his grandmother.

Following a wedding trip to Carmel the couple will live in Davis.

Family Planning Is Easier

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Speaking on "A Woman's Place Is . . . ?", Mrs. Rutherford Putnam, mayor of Petaluma, told members and guests of the Outdoor Art Club in Mill Valley Thursday afternoon that anything women do outside the home must be in addition to their duties there if they are to retain their role as women.

These are some of the highlights of her talk:

"It is women who have the children and are the center of the home," she said. "I think personally the family unit was never more important any place than it is now. While there are more things to pull us away from our homes, we still can't escape the fact that somebody ought to hold the line because of the importance of the family unit."

She said, however, that there must be a different look at the family unit, which is no longer typically large, in view of the need for population control. The way to plan a family has been made much easier, she said, and women often decide to work while they are young and put aside money for home and children later.

"We are not going to know for quite a while how we are being affected by all this," she maintained. "I happen to feel while the children are small — those years go by terribly fast —that, if it is possible, a woman should retain her position in the home as the mother of her children. Just being there is important. These are the years for you to have a molding influence."

The mayor went on to say that if it is not possible for a woman to be at home at this time, she should do everything possible to get the most appropriate people to take her place.

"Many women render a service during the young years in their family when they take part in any sort of activity that involves somebody else's children," she said, adding that this might include such activities as P-TA, Cub Scouts, Blue Birds or Rainbow Girls and many others.

"Don't underestimate yourself for the service you are rendering to the community, and don't say, 'I really don't do much.' Whatever you can do for your community is time well spent."

Dealing further with the subject of outside interests on a more personal basis, Mrs. Putnam emphasized that "outside interests should be your choice of what you are really interested in, not what is the going thing. It can be related to the family or be quite specifically your own. If you have a talent, I think you should put it to good use. Don't say, 'If only I could have done it when I was young.' Give some time out of your day to this interest. You might fear it is selfish, but ultimately it may play a part in a whole group of activities with others in which you meet people of all ages.

"If you go to work, you have to consider when and why. The doors are open much more to women of all ages, though some are not. Many areas are in need of women, such as teachers' aides."

The mayor especially urged her audience to consider the field of public service, such as service on city councils, boards of education and commissions.

"If an opportunity is offered by your community, unless you have a very good reason for not taking it, you should accept because the opportunities in public service are wonderful. There is nothing like it. You meet people, work for something much bigger than you are and you get to go many places.

"If you feel you can offer something, try it. The value of involvement is far greater than any of the pains."

Mrs. Putnam added a word of advice for anyone running for an elective office.

"Put on a positive campaign because after the election you still have to get along with your former competitors."

Questioned as to whether she will run for re-election, the mayor said in order to be fair to all news media at this time her answer would have to be "no comment."

High Cost Of High Fashion Going Down Soon, Says Designer

By LOUISE COOK

PARIS (AP) — The high price of high fashion may be going down soon if the head of the house of Christian Dior has his way.

Jacques Rouet, general manager of the 22-year-old couture house, says he expects to announce within the next two weeks a major "restructuring of haute couture."

"If haute couture prices could be lowered by about 20 per cent, that would change many things," Rouet said in an interview in his office on the Avenue Montaigne.

Although Rouet refused to give any clues, he said the price cut would be achieved "without changing the principle of quality."

Prices for Dior couture dresses—made to measure for each customer, with several fittings included—start at about $1,000. Ready-to-wear models sell for about a third of that.

Admitting that "in a way the prices have diminished the number of clients in haute couture," Rouet indicated that unlike some other high fashion houses, Dior does not intend to abandon custom clothes for ready-to-wear.

"Haute couture is not only the prestige of the house," said Rouet, "but also the heart of the whole enterprise. It is in that department that the biggest creative effort goes on."

The customer for haute couture, said Rouet, looks for exclusivity and a dress to transform her personality, "not something like a school uniform."

Asked if the current vogue for extreme styles made customers reluctant to purchase a custom-made dress that is likely to be out of fashion within one season, Rouet replied that although the Dior collection, designed by Marc Bohan, does include some far-out clothes, it is the classic items that sell.

Professional buyers and private clients like to look at the kooky styles, he added, and "the contrast gives value to what's conservative."

MUSIC REVIEW

Visiting Woodwind Quintet Is Dazzling

By MAYBELLE SPECKMANN

Last night's closing concert in the Homestead Valley Community Association's ninth annual Candlelight Chamber Music series at Brown's Hall in Mill Valley was the unsurpassable ultimate in woodwind performance.

No puffery was in the billing of the Danzi Woodwind Quintet as "the finest wind group in the world," for these first chairmen in the famed Concertgebouw and Netherland Opera orchestras are not only supreme artists individually but a marvelously well-balanced ensemble. They are disciplined to perfection in the minutest details and capable of the most subtle expressive nuances as well as powerful sonority.

The musicians are Frans Vester, flutist; Koen van Slogteren, oboe; Adrian van Woudenberg, horn; Piet Hiningh, clarinet, and Brian Pollard, bassoon.

Since they are noted for avant-garde music, it was not surprising that three of the five numbers and an encore were in modern idoms.

Two works were sensational in technical brilliance—one, the Quintet in A Minor by the Czech composer Anton Reicha in the traditional style of the great romantic masters, and the other, "Serpentinata," written in 1967 by German Gunther Becker, in the most far-out style imaginable.

The Reicha work was my favorite, but the Becker piece shocked one into rapt attention and was the one that caused most reaction among the audience that packed the hall. Consisting of a cluster of half tones manipulated rhythmically, dynamically and expressively, it exploited all the resources of the instruments.

In everyday terms, the timbres were reminiscent of buzzing insects, a fog horn—an incredible sound from the usually mellow French horn — piercing whistles and chattering, all sounding at times like a free-for-all fight. The timing alone in the dialogue among the instruments was a prodigious feat.

Not nearly so wild, though containing extremes in dynamics and tempi, was "Music da Camera" by Riccardo Malipiero, and the "Summermusic" of the contemporary American Samuel Barber, though using modern harmonic and melodic techniques, was really beautiful.

Earliest in period was the Quintet in E Minor of Franz Danzi, a Von Weber German contemporary for whom the quintet was named. It was a work similar in style and dazzling virtuosity to the Reicha quintet.

"Marcia Francese" by Jean Francaix was the encore that concluded the program with a delightful touch of humor.

Equal Opportunity Is Urged For State College Trustees

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— "There has been a silencing of moderate and conservative voices" on California's campusses, according to Gov. Ronald Reagan's chief education aid.

Dr. Alex Sheriffs spent a rugged hour before the Constitutional Revision Commission yesterday, discussing and defending the Reagan administration's educational policies.

Sheriffs recommended that the state College Board of Trustees be given equal constitutional authority to the University of California's Board of Regents and he also recommended that the regents 16-year terms be shortened while the trustees eight-year terms are lengthened so that both would be set at 10 or 12 years.

Before the governor's aide spoke, the commission approved a draft of a resolution extending constitutional protection of the state colleges from political interference.

The committee seemed unhappy with attempts to fire Herbert Marcuse, the septugenarian spokesman for the New Left on what many felt were largely ideological grounds.

Commission member Sol Silverman, San Francisco attorney, expressed misgivings over what he termed the trend toward an "ideological" approach in talking about faculty hiring.

Sheriffs still felt, however, that "there has been a silencing of moderate and conservative voices and hostile response to those who differ with the ideological posture of the day.

The commission ended its three-day meeting to consider how best to rewrite the language of the state's wordy 90-year-old constitution.

The commission, in discussion of state education policies, also voiced some reservations as to whether elected officials should serve as ex-officio U.C. regents.

Inmate Knifed At San Quentin

A 35-year-old inmate of San Quentin prison was reported in satisfactory condition today at the prison hospital with a knife wound in his back.

Prison officials said Frank Knickerbocker, serving time for possession of narcotics from Los Angeles County, was cut in the back with a homemade knife last night.

The inmate who stabbed him has not been identified and the knife has not been found, prison officials said.

Small Antiwar Rally Causes Hardly A Stir

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A small antiwar rally on the San Francisco State College campus caused hardly a stir yesterday as the once embattled institution completed its first week since the end of a four and one-half month student strike.

Fewer than 100 students gathered for the meeting then quietly moved into an auditorium with administration permission after being asked to disperse from the commons area.

The peaceful feeling pervaded the office of acting President S. I. Hayakawa.

"It's a wonderful feeling, "He commented. "There's a real relief from strain."

He noted that for the first time in months, deans and professors were seeing him about education problems and added "We're acting and looking as a college campus should."

Hayakawa still has not ended the state of emergency he decreed when he took on the job at the troubled school last Nov. 26.

About 150 policemen are still maintaining watches in various buildings.

Meantime faculty boards were processing disciplinary hearings for students involved in disruptive activities during the strike.

Trials are under way before five judges in San Francisco courts for some of the 453 persons arrested in the last major demonstration which occurred Jan. 23. Nine have pleaded guilty of unlawful assembly and are to be sentenced next month.

Hayakawa said he would start a review of April 11 disciplinary penalties meted out by faculty boards. He said that so far there have been only a few suspensions and no expulsions.

The educator refused to accede to amnesty provisions of the agreement reached between dissident student groups and a Select Committee named by Hayakawa.

Black Student Union and Third World Liberation Front leaders said they will keep the terms of the settlement, but have continued to criticize Hayakawa.

Burglary Case To Probation Department

The case of Michael John Pereira, 19, of San Rafael, was referred to the probation department yesterday by Judge Hadden W. Roth of Marin Municipal Court for possible transferral to Juvenile Court.

Pereira and Greg James Adams, 21, of Greenbrae, are accused of a burglary March 20 in Sausalito. They are to return to court April 7.

MUCH WORK AHEAD

Legislature Shuts For Easter Recess

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Legislature was in its Easter recess today, leaving a mountain of work behind.

In a final flurry of partisanship in the Assembly, both houses closed down yesterday to allow members to spend a week at home before getting down to the task ahead.

When the lawmakers return April 7 they will have the task of cutting through 1,640 measures in the Assembly and 1,007 in the Senate. In both cases, the total number of measures is slightly more than last year.

Among them is Gov. Ronald Reagan's proposed $6.2 billion budget and — eventually — his tax reform program including a $100 million income tax break.

Also still to be resolved are controversies growing from campus disorder and disastrous winter floods.

Almost as a final act before the recess, the Senate gave final approval to a bill imposing a half-cent sales tax on San Francisco, Alameda and Contra Costa Counties to rescue the financially-troubled Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

By a 27-2 vote, the Senate approved a minor Assembly amendment to the BART bill by Sen. Lewis Sherman, R-Berkeley, and sent it to Reagan.

The tax is estimated to raise $150 million in four and a half years to allow the district to complete construction of its ambitious rapid transit system. The financial plan probably sets the pattern for future districts of the BART type.

Reagan favors the financing method. He may sign the bill when he returns from President Eisenhower's funeral and an Arizona Easter vacation.

It is possible, also, that the bill could be signed by Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke, thus saving Reagan from directly violating his no-new-taxes pledge.

The Assembly spent most of its final pre-Easter week session squabbling over a resolution praising Dr. H. Claude Hudson, a leader in the Los Angeles black community.

Assemblyman John V. Briggs, R-Fullerton, pulled out the red-backed 1948 report of the Senate subcommittee on un-American activities and said it showed Hudson as active in the Citizens' Committee for Better Education.

The 1948 book, page 199, says the committee's major activity was "the support of extreme leftists for election to the Los Angeles Board of Education." It said the group backed Hudson in 1947 and identified Hudson as "active in a number of Communist-front organizations."

"I don't want to suggest in any way Dr. Hudson is disloyal to America," said Briggs. "In no case do I say he is a Communist nor do I infer he is one."

Assemblywoman Yvonne Brathwaite, D-Los Angeles, author of the resolution, responded that the committee was an organization which urged establishment of permanent child care centers.

She said Hudson's eldest son was killed during the Normandy invasion in World War II.

The measure barely won approval on a 41-2 vote when the most of the 40 Assembly Republicans refused to vote. Actually, the GOP was retaliating for Democrats who defeated a Briggs' resolution praising former state veterans affairs director James E. Johnson, a Negro. Johnson was picked to the Civil Service Commission by President Nixon.

Clausen Hails Ike As 'Man Of Peace'

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, today eulogized the late President Dwight D. Eisenhower as "truly a man of peace . . . who responded to the call of his country in its times of greatest need — not once nor twice, but whenever the need arose."

In a statement, Clausen added: "Dwight Eisenhower has been called a national hero, a leader in war, a crusader for peace, and it is true; he was all of these things. But, more important, he was a humble man called to greatness by those who recognized in him that rare quality of leadership that makes some men stand taller than others."

Runaway Car Smashes Into Chief's House

A runaway car carrying two boys smashed yesterday into the garage of Novato Police Chief Robert Di Grazia, he reported.

The auto smashed both garage doors and dented his 1967 model car. Di Grazia could not estimate the damage.

Mrs. Sally W. Trahan of 19 Sunnyhill Road, Novato, visiting next door to the chief's house, left her car with the motor running, and her two sons, Patrick, 5, and Timothy, 10, in the back seat.

When the auto started moving, Timothy jumped into the front seat and steered the car out of the road, running into Di Grazia's garage to stop it, the chief said.

Mrs. Trahan was cited for leaving an auto with the motor running.

The Novato police have a policy of not giving out the addresses or telephone numbers of its employees, so the chief would not give his address. He lives in the northwest section of Novato.

$160 In Coins Is Taken From Changer

The owner of the Fourth Street Launderette yesterday reported the theft of $160 in nickels, dimes and quarters from the coin changer at his business to San Rafael police.

Frank F. Buchbauer of Boyes Springs told police that the changer was not damaged and $23 was still inside.

IS IT POSSIBLE?

A home with all the glamour and prestige that you dream about. Starting with the architecture, a blending of stone facia and wood, entry hall that leads to a sunken living room, family room with a stone fireplace. A formal dining room, an all-elec. kitchen with custom cabinet work. A guest bath on the main floor. A beautiful staircase leads to 3 upper bdrms. and 2 baths. Plush carpeting and drapes complete this immaculate home. Large 2 car garage has a laundry area. Now let's go to the landscaped grounds. An artistically shaped swimming pool with a slide. Overlooking one of the most breathtaking views in the county. Could it be possible that this is all included for $38,900?

HOME WITH

Mother-in-law quarters. This beautiful reconditioned home, on a level lot, walking distance to town and schools, has almost complete living quarters below. An extra kitchen, and a huge area that has been completely sheet rocked and rewired, plus new light fixtures. This large area is now 3 large rooms, but one room could be a huge family room or divided into 2 big bdrms. — this lower area is almost another complete home perfect for your mother-in-law or a large family. The upper portion has an all new kitchen, including stove and refrig., all new bathroom, new luxury w/w carpeting, new furnace, all new copper pipes and new wiring thruout. The bdrms. are extra large. This beautiful property sits on a 50x110 level lot with plenty of trees. The lot alongside, of equal dimensions, could also be purchased. Combining both lots would make this an R-2 lot. House and one lot only $24,500.

Local couple purchased this car new in '65 from local Ford agency and we just took in trade on a new Buick Riviera.

If you're looking for the cleanest T-Bird in Marin County — see this one. All white with Landau top and bucket seats — this T-Bird has every conceivable extra, such as power windows, air conditioning, power seats, power steering and power brakes.

Low mileage car that shows the loving care by the former owner. NKU 930.

Cable Car Hit By Truck; Four Persons Injured

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Four persons were injured yesterday when a truck backed out of an alley into a jampacked cablecar.

Some 60 passengers were riding the cablecar up the California Street hill when the truck rammed into it.

All of the injured were riding on the steps of the vehicle. Two were hospitalized. They were Rebecca Brenner, 21, with fractures of both legs, and Joseph Duffey, 43, with a severely cut leg. The truck driver, Tom Z. Deyein, 26, was cited for unsafe backing.

Bring Outdoors Inside Is Answer

A kitchen can get pretty stuffy any time, but in summer when you look through the window over your sink and see the sun streaming into the yard and hear a warm breeze float by, you can feel as if you're suffocating.

Opening that window helps a little, but if your kitchen's location permits you have another alternative: A back yard door in the kitchen can be replaced with floor-to-ceiling sliding glass doors so when you feel like you're suffocating you can literally let the outdoors in.

Going one step further, says the Tile Council of America, you can turn the yard area just outside the sliding doors into an outdoor extension of your kitchen by simply extending the floor area and surfacing it with a material such as ceramic mosaic or quarry tile.

License Granted

Four-hour Limit In Lot Is Asked

San Anselmo Chamber of Commerce directors recommended yesterday that the south end of the city's creekside parking lot at Sir Francis Drake and Center boulevards be changed from two to four-hour parking to accommodate clients of the eight beauty parlors and Studio 7 art classes.

This would involve about 25 spaces if the lot were paved and marked, secretary-manager William A. Trewhella said. The recommendation was made to the city council.

Four Fined On Drunken Driving

Four persons have been sentenced in Marin Municipal Court for drunken driving.

Jesse James Seales, Jr., 50, of Hamilton Air Force Base, was sentenced to five days in jail, fined $302 and placed on one year probation. He was arrested Feb. 22 on Highway 101.

John Ernst Berger, 43, of San Francisco, who was arrested Dec. 15 on Highway 101, was fined $100 and placed on one year probation.

Peter Calvin Traphagen, 58, of 152 Morning Sun Avenue, Mill Valley, was fined $125 and placed on six months' probation. He was arrested Sunday in Mill Valley.

Ralph Loudel Giessler, 35, of 30 Via Belardo, Greenbrae, who was arrested Jan. 17 on Highway 101, was fined $150 and placed on six months' probation.

Loan Goal Is $20,000 Short

College of Marin Foundation members were told yesterday that $10,000 has been collected in the foundation's drive for student loan and scholarship money. The goal is $30,000.

The foundation board will meet at 7 pm. April 7 at Marin County Savings and Loan Association, San Rafael, to telephone parents of College of Marin students under 21, requesting contributions.

It was also agreed, reported J. Galen Foster, campaign manager, that the board will meet with service clubs, starting with the Rotary Club presidents group, to request that scholarship activities within individual clubs permit the foundation to coordinate club scholarships.

Burns Expects To Remain Senate Boss

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Democrat Hugh M. Burns expects to remain President pro tem of the State Senate the rest of this year even though Republicans now have won a 21-19 majority in the upper house.

The veteran Fresno senator said yesterday: "I expect to remain where I am" despite GOP efforts to oust him from the key post he has held for 11 years.

But he reiterated he would step down as pro tem after this year.

"I don't desire to carry on the burden of this office any longer — after this year, that is," Burns told reporters who clustered around him at the end of Sacramento Press Club luncheon.

The featured guest at the lunch was Republican Senator-elect John Nejedly whose victory in a special election in Contra Costa County last Tuesday gave Republicans control of the upper house for the first time since 1956.

In a question-answer period, Nejedly said he was not solidly committed to voting with Republicans to oust Burns. He said he could vote for Burns, depending on circumstances.

Nejedly said he would not make up his mind on the Senate leadership issue until after he is sworn in and discussed the situation with other Republicans.

Mutilated Body Is Identified

REDONDO BEACH (UPI) — The mutilated body of a woman found in a field here March 15 has been identified as that of Patricia Pierson, 26, daughter of a New Jersey business executive.

Detective Captain Gene Cavanaugh said yesterday identification was made through medical X-rays of the young woman furnished by her father, Theodore Pierson, of Trenton, N.J.

The body's head and hands were missing when it was found under a mattress by children playing in the field. Identification was made difficult because such normal procedures as finger prints and dental work could not be used.

HOW TO PLAY WINNING BRIDGE

By ALFRED SHEINWOLD

Four-Heart Contract Proves A Most Unusual Moral Point

If you work hard and save your money, you may be considered a dull dog. But if you persuade other people to do your work for you, everybody will admire you as a clever fellow. It sounds immoral, but I have a bridge hand to prove it.

Opening lead — ♠ Q

SUIT SHIFT

West led the queen of spades and continued the suit. South ruffed and led out the ace and king of hearts since he could see no way to get to the dummy for a trump finesse.

As it happened, the queen of hearts did not drop. South struggled on with the ace of clubs and a club to the queen, eventually losing a spade, a trump and two clubs. Down one, but South had the consolation of feeling virtuous. He had done his own work, and luck wasn't with him.

South would have been better off if he hadn't been so virtuous. He makes the contract if he allows the opponents to help him get to the dummy.

IGNORE TRUMPS

South should ruff the second spade, clear the top diamonds out of the way and then lead the ace of clubs and a low club, leaving the trumps alone. West wins with the queen of clubs and must return a spade since no other suit is safe.

South ruffs again and leads a club to the king. Now East must help declarer get to the dummy.

If East returns a trump, dummy wins with the 10 and leads another trump for a finesse. If East returns a diamond, dummy wins, and declarer can lead the 10 of hearts and then the low heart to clear up the trump suit.

WOULDN'T HELP

Even if East could return a spade, it wouldn't help him. South would discard a club, and dummy would ruff low. The 10 of hearts would hold the next trick, after which any lead from the dummy would give South the last three trump tricks.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with one notrump, and next player passes. You hold:

♠ Q J 10 7 6 3
♦ 9 7 6 3
♣ Q 8

What do you say?

Answer: Bid two spades.

The hand is not quite strong enough for a jump to game in spades, despite the excellent distribution. If partner can act over two spades (which is rather unlikely), you will go on to game.

ALMANAC

Today is Saturday, March 29, the 88th day of 1969 with 277 to follow.

The moon is between its first quarter and full phase. The morning stars are Mercury and Mars. The evening stars are Venus, Jupiter and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1812 the first wedding was performed in the White House. Mrs. Lucy Payne Washington married Supreme Court Justice Thomas Todd.

In 1847 as General Winfield Scott captured Vera Cruz, Mexican troops marched from the city to be disarmed and released on parole.

In 1945 soldiers of the First Army marched 55 miles to virtually cut off the Ruhr Basin from the rest of Germany.

A thought for the day: Silas Weir Mitchell said, "Death's but one more tomorrow."

Safecrackers Show Gratitude

NEWPORT, Ky. (UPI)—Burglars showed their gratitude with a note left in an abandoned safe here after they had removed $3,250.

They hauled away the 1,000-pound safe from Frisch's Restaurant and later forced open one section of the safe where they found a card with the combination to another section.

Found on a back road in Campbell County, the safe contained a note saying, "Thank you. Love it."

THE LENTEN SEASON

Palm Sunday A Triumph For Jesus, His Followers

By WOODI ISHMAEL
(AP Newsfeatures
(Sixth in a series of seven)

"And many spread their garments in the way: and others cut down branches off the trees, and strawed them in the way. And they that went before, and they that followed, cried, saying Hosanna; Blessed is he that cometh in name of the Lord: Blessed be the kingdom of our father David, that cometh in the name of the Lord, Hosanna in the highest. And Jesus entered Jerusalem . . ." St. Mark 11:8, 11

It was a day of triumph for Jesus and his followers that first Palm Sunday. May this Palm Sunday be a day of triumph throughout the world.

'Crucifixion' To Be Given

The Oratorio Choir of the Golden Gate Baptist Theological Seminary at Strawberry will present John Stainer's "The Crucifixion" at 8 p.m. Good Friday in Boradus Hall Chapel on the campus.

Michael England, a first year master of divinity student, will be bass soloist. Tenor soloists will be Jerald Reeves and Tjoen An Thio, both second year students.

Directing the choir will be Dr. Carlyle Bennett, professor of church music at the seminary. Assisting at the organ will be Mrs. Irine Suffern, instructor of church music.

Church To Have Guest On Monday

Dr. Alan Redpath of England, author and pastor, will present a special talk at 7:30 p.m. Monday at the Marin Covenant Church of San Rafael.

Theme of Dr. Redpath's message will be "Rediscovering the Church in the Priesthood of All Believers."

He has held church positions in Chicago, London and most recently in Edinburg, Scotland, and is author of numerous books on Christianity.

He is visiting Marin as part of a tour of the California Conference of the Evangelical Covenant churches of which he has been retained as a consultant for two months.

The service will be held in the church's temporary home, Marinwood Community Center, Lucas Valley and Miller Creek roads.

Bible College Is Open In Belgium

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—The opening of Continental Bible College in Brussels, Belgium, has been announced by the Assemblies of God foreign missions department.

Negotiations are under way for purchase of property for the college, which is expected to draw students from throughout Europe. Classes have already begun in temporary quarters.

Bucks Get Lew For A Million

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The National Basketball Association has scored a big triumph over the rival American Basketball Association with the announcement that Lew Alcindor of UCLA has verbally agreed to a million-dollar contract with the Milwaukee Bucks.

Alcindor made rumors official yesterday when he told the Associated Press he would sign a contract with the last-place NBA team. He said the prestige of the older, established NBA had something to do with his choice "but it wasn't the prime consideration."

Alcindor led UCLA to a third straight national collegiate title last Saturday and it was expected that the Bucks of the NBA and the New York Nets of the ABA would stage a giant money war for the rights to Lew.

But the 7-foot-1½ center told both leagues to make one sealed bid. Lew wanted no auction.

BEST OFFER

"Milwaukee made the most solid and most reasonable offer, all things considered," said Alcindor. He was expected to sign a multiple-year contract for a figure "considerably more than $1 million" next week, a spokesman said.

After Lew chose the NBA, officials of the rival association followed Alcindor to Los Angeles, where his mother was hospitalized with a blood ailment. They asked Lew to give them one more chance to bid for his services.

At an after-midnight meeting in a hotel yesterday morning, the ABA reportedly offered Alcindor "a huge amount" more than Milwaukee's offer. But Lew had made an oral agreement with the Bucks and he said no money offer could challenge his integrity.

Lew said he had no goals established for his professional career.

TOO FAR AHEAD

"That's too far ahead," he said last night at halftime of the San Francisco-Los Angeles Western Division NBA playoff game here. "The pros play a different tempo and there's a lot of pushing and shoving going on out there."

"And it'll be a chore to measure up to those two," he said, motioning to the court where Wilt Chamberlain of the Lakers was facing Nate Thurmond of the Warriors.

Alcindor never has been a very high scorer or rebounder. He was known at UCLA as a team ball player who would do anything for a victory.

John Wooden, his college coach, said, "Lewis will be a fine prefessional player because he's fine team player."

"He won't have to score points to be valuable," said Jerry West of the Lakers.

But he would have meant instant success for the ABA some feel.

FINANCIAL BLOW

With Alcindor in the league, officials expected attendance to rise to the point where all teams could be self-sustaining. The loss of the big man undoubtedly is a financial blow as well as a dent in pride.

Alcindor lives in New York and the Nets play near his home. And Lew admitted that "it would have been a lot easier playing in New York, all things being the same. But as it was, all things were not the same."

Alcindor said he knew nothing of the Bucks, who finished the regular season with a 27-55 mark, 30 games behind Baltimore.

Going To The Dogs At Phoenix Racetracks

PHOENIX — I went to the dogs the other night. The first guy who says "What else is new?" gets a belt in the choppers.

I refer to the Phoenix Greyhound Park which honored the San Francisco Giant's Boosters Club of Northern California. Unaccustomed to the doggies in the Bay Area, the 106 touring boosters loved the excitement, which is much faster than the horse races.

Frank B. Defazio, director of customer relations, took me on a tour of the beautiful, enclosed, air conditioned clubhouse, explaining this is one of the three major tracks that give Arizona doggie racing the year 'round, the others being in Apache Junction and Black Canyon, 40 miles north of here.

The Fastest Dogs In The World

Greyhounds average approximately 40 miles per hour in their run for the mechanical rabbit, making them the fastest dogs in the world, a shade speedier than my poodle. And the dogs have been good to this state as Arizona has realized more than $26 million in pari-mutuel taxes since the sport started here in 1942.

The track can seat more than 10,000 persons and the average nightly attendance for the race programs is about 6,000, according to Defazio, who noted that dog racing is one of America's 10 most watched sports. The average nightly pari-mutuel take, he said, is $160,000.

The beautiful dogs weigh about 60 pounds apiece and consume about two and one-half pounds of meat per day. Their average racing life is three years, from about two to five.

A Year-Round Dog Program

"One of the features here in Arizona," said Defazio, "is that the kennels like it because of our year-round program. They can keep their doge active."

The Arizona greyhound industry, which employs about 1,000 persons, even has an official publication called Post Time, what else? I was fascinated to learn the Greyhound Racing Board of North America goes so far as to select an all-American team of eight pooches. Now I ask you. The team "captain" is named Lurcher Boy.

The Phoenix track went all out to entertain the Northern California Boosters and named the featured race in their honor. "Miss Booster," an American Airlines stewardess named Ann Kelly, got to crown the winning dog.

After that we all went to the track's restaurant for a bite to eat. The food was great but the servings were so heaping that none of us could finish dinner. That's all right, though, because we took the rest home in a bowser bag.

Yesterday, the Boosters attended the annual old-timers baseball brunch in Scottsdale which featured, among other speakers, Clyde King, the freshman manager of the Giants.

King On Former Hurdler King

Introduced as a former major league pitcher by master of ceremonies Jack Brickhouse. King needled himself as not much of a chucker. "People ask me who was the toughest batter I faced," he said in his southern drawl, "and I tell them to look up my record. they were ALL tough. Actually, Stan Musial was the toughest. Gosh, when he found out when it was my turn to pitch he sent a cab out to my home to make sure I got to the ball park."

King is quite popular with the boosters. The man who showed a great deal of intestinal fortitude by inserting Willie Mays into the leadoff position in the batting order said he is firmly convinced the controversial move will be successful. "I can't say Willie will lead off all year," He told me, "but I plan and hope that's the way we'll open the season."

Giants Bombed By Cubs

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — After five straight victories, it was bound to happen.

In one of those days when nothing goes right, the San Francisco Giants lost to the Chicako Cubs 9-4 in Scottsdale yesterday as hurler Gaylord Perry took a beating in the 86-degree heat, giving up 14 hits.

In addition, the Giants lost utility infielder Charlie Smith to the Cubs for an undisclosed sum.

The Giants, now 15-5 for the Cactus League baseball season, went to Tucson today to play the Cleveland Indians.

3-0 LEAD

The Cubs jumped to a 3-0 lead in the first on a walk to Billy Williams and singles by Don Kessinger, Ron Santo and Al Spangler.

Chicago romped for five more runs on five hits in the fifth as Bobby Bonds, who let two easy balls get by him Wednesday, lost one fly in the sun and missed a shoestring catch attempt on another.

Ferguson Jenkins, the winning pitcher, limited the Giants to a lone run on eight hits in the seven innings he worked. Reliever Joe Niekro gave the Giants three runs on four hits in the eighth.

ABA Will Sue NBA Over Pacts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A suit for an injunction and damages likely to run to millions of dollars has been filed by the American Basketball Association against the National Basketball Association.

The ABA sued yesterday in U.S. District Court in San Francisco, seeking to ban the NBA from signing any new contracts and claimed the defendant was trying to monopolize the sport.

No amount was specified in the antitrust action, but ABA lawyer Fred Furth said "millions and millions" of dollars would be sought, based on a claim of triple damages on an amount to be named later.

The suit came in the wake of UCLA center Lew Alcindor's agreement to sign with Milwaukee of the NBA, but Furth denied the fight for Alcindor had anything to do with it.

"No single event contributed to the filing of the complaint," he said. "It's the NBA's conduct since 1949." That was nine years after the NBA was formed.

The complaint accused the NBA and its 14 members of inducing players to "break contracts which they previously signed" with ABA teams. The ABA asked the court to void the so-called option contract of the type that forced San Francisco Warrior forward Rick Barry to sit out the entire 1967-68 season after he jumped to his father-in-law's Oakland Oaks of ABA.

Furth said in the 1968 draft the ABA lost 39 out of 40 top players to the NBA.

The suit accused the NBA and its members of trying to blacklist any coach or players who tried to jump leagues.

The complaint alleged violations of the Clayton Antitrust Act and asked the court to halt those practices, thus permitting the ABA "to compete for facilities, players, coaches and broadcasting contracts on the basis of free, fair and open competition."

The suit charged the existence of an "Auerbach Committee" headed by Red Auerback, Boston general manager.

"The committe was formed for the sole purpose of driving plaintiffs out of major league basketball," said the complaint.

The committee allegedly has as its aim "joint purchase of a superstar through use of defendants combined economic power."

The suit is the first such action filed in the basketball big leagues, a move San Francisco Warrior attorney Robert L. Dunn called "a fundamental attack on the league structure of professional sports.

Upsets Reign In NBA Playoffs

Warriors Take 2-0 Lead

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I don't play for money against Wilt Chamberlain, I play for pride," declared Nate Thurmond, a big reason the San Francisco Warriors hold a 2-0 edge over the Los Angeles Lakers in their opening National Basketball Association playoffs.

"He's acknowledged to be the greatest center in pro basketball and I want to be the greatest," said the 6-foot-11 Warrior who clearly outplayed his taller and larger foe in last night's 107-101 victory at the Forum, home of the Lakers.

The best four-of-seven semifinal playoffs in the Western Division now move north with the third game slated Monday night at the Oakland Coliseum Arena.

"It will be very interesting to see who walks on the court for us," commented a disappointed Coach Bill van Breda Kolff of the Lakers. "I'm definitely going to make some defensive assignment changes. I wouldn't say the situation is critical exactly, but it certainly isn't rosy."

BEST GAME

Thurmond led the rebounders with 28 and scored 27 points in what he termed "my best game ever against Chamberlain."

The big Laker scored 10, hauled in 17 rebounds and spent the last five minutes sitting on the bench even though he had one personal foul left.

Rudy LaRusso paced the Warrior scorers with 29. Both Jeff Mullins, with 20, and Jimmy King, with 18, were on target from the outside in this second straight surprise. The Lakers finished first during the regular season while San Francisco was third.

For the second playoff game, Jerry West scored 36 points for the Lakers and this time Elgin Baylor chipped in with 20, but the only times Los Angeles led were in the opening period.

GIVEAWAY

"The Lakers are playing giveaway," commented Warrior Coach George Lee. "I don't think we've really played our best game yet and we're two-up. We were the underdog because the Lakers have the superstars, but we have them on the run now. This was King's

Novato, San Marin Grab Big Prep Baseball Wins

If one word describes the opening of the 1969 Marin County Athletic League baseball race, it's sudden.

Defeat and victory came quickly and shockingly yesterday, as Novato lived up to its role of leave favorite with a quick and convincing win over Redwood, 6-0, behind ace Russ Dillon.

San Marin, the youngest team in the league, pulled off a shocker, scoring three runs in the bottom of the seventh inning with two outs to upset defending champion Terra Linda, 3-2, at Novato.

Tamalpais scored all of its runs in the first inning, one on a double steal, to nick Marin Catholic, 2-1, in Kentfield.

Drake derailed San Rafael ace Rafael Gallardo to take a close 3-2 win over the Bulldogs at San Rafael.

Dillon, who hasn't given up a run this season, struck out 12 Redwood batters and gave up only two singles, but if you take out one inning they might still be playing.

The inning was the second and it doomed the Giants in a hurry as the Hornets bunched five of their eight hits to score six runs for the game.

The victim was Roger Smith, who otherwise pitched well.

A double steal by Wendell McReynolds and Ken Bolstad gave Tamalpais one run in the first and a run-scoring single by Rob Nelson produced another in the Tamalpais win.

A single by Rick Fox drove in Marin Catholic's only run in the second inning. Rick Thomas was the tough four-hit loser while Bill Secor hurled a five-hitter for the Indians.

San Marin, down 2-0 in the second inning when all-league catcher Craig Logan blasted a homer off Steve Francis and a single produced another Trojan run, pulled it out very, very late.

With two out in the seventh, the fledgeling Mustangs got going as Rick Jensen got on on an error, went to second on an overthrow, came home on a

Ailing Jensen Listed As 'Slightly Improved'

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Former major league baseball player Jackie Jensen, who suffered a heart attack Wednesday, was reported "slightly improved," yesterday, although a hospital spokesman said he still was considered in serious condition.

Jensen, 42, was moved from a monitor room, but remained in the Washoe Medical Center cardiac care area. It is expected he will be hospitalized about three weeks.

His wife, Kathy, said Jensen has gotten a lot of mail — "cards, letters and telegrams, some from people he's never heard of." She said he is able to read the mail himself.

Jensen, who quit professional baseball in 1961 because he disliked air travel, was the American League's most valuable player in 1958 when he was with the Boston Red Sox.

He started this year as head baseball coach for the University of Nevada, Reno, and was directing a team practice when stricken by the attack.

'Aging' Celtics In Rout

BOSTON (AP) — When the cat's away the mice will play, or so the saying goes. The trouble from the Philadelphia standpoint last night was that they all seemed to be playing for the same team—the Boston Celtics.

The result was a 134-103 annihilation of the 76ers in their National Basketball Association Eastern Division semifinal playoff game, sending the Celtics into tomorrow night's third game at Philadelphia with a commanding 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series.

High-scoring Sam Jones of Boston was thrown out of the game for arguing with the officials in the first four minutes of the opening period, and a bit later player-coach Bill Russell got into serious foul trouble. It looked like a made-to-order situation for the 76ers, but instead it was a bunch of lesser known Celtics who went wild.

DIDN'T DO IT

"We should have been able to take advantage of that situation, but we didn't do it," was all Philadelphia coach Jack Ramsay could say afterwards.

The 76ers did take advantage for a while, leading by as many as seven points early in the second period. But suddenly Boston's makeshift combination of regulars and reserves caught fire, gaining a 55-54 halftime lead and then staging a fantastic 79-point second half to bury their foes.

Larry Siegfried and Emmette Bryant rose to the occasion by completely outplaying the vaunted Philadelphia backcourt. Tom Sanders came off the bench to fill in for Russell and was immense. Bailey Howell and Don Nelson also took turns in the pivot, while John Havlicek shifted back and forth where needed in the emergency.

STAYED WITH THEM

"After Sam and I went out, Philadelphia looked like they thought they'd blow us off the court," Russell said. "When my guys stayed with them—and even built up the lead—it took some of the confidence out of them."

Russell was high in his praise of Siegfried, who scored 13 of his 20 points in the Celtics' game-busting third period explosion, and of Bryant, who finished with 15 points and a sparking floor game.

"And that's one of the best games I've ever seen Sanders play," he said of the veteran

Sports World Pays Tribute To Ike

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Sports activity across the country came to a temporary standstill today as athletes and fans paused to honor the memory of one of their own, former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Eisenhower, who played football at West Point before launching his brilliant military career, then found in golf a sanctuary from the rigors of the Presidency, died yesterday in Washington.

The sports world quickly joined in mourning the loss of the stellar soldier - statesman, and memorial services at far-flung sports events were planned through Monday when the state funeral is to be held in the nation's capitol.

The 24 major league baseball clubs were directed by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to conduct ceremonies at exhibition games in Florida, Arizona and California. No games will start Monday, the official day of mourning, until at least one hour after completion of the funeral services.

J. Walter Kennedy, president of the National Basketball Association, directed each of the eight teams involved in post-season playoffs to observe appropriate ceremonies before weekend games.

The American Basketball Association called off there regular season games scheduled for Monday night. The NBA playoff game between San Francisco and Los Angeles will go on as scheduled.

A tribute also was planned before the start of the Atlanta 500-mile stock car race tomorrow.

A minute of silence was to be observed during the third round of the National Airlines Open golf tournament at Miami, Fla., today and Monday's scheduled qualifying play in the Greater Greensboro, N.C., Open was postponed until Tuesday in deference to the memory of the former President.

Arnold Palmer, the great golfer who met the President at Augusta, Ga., after winning the 1958 Masters and played with him several times thereafter, was particularly saddened by Ike's passing.

"He loved the game," Palmer recalled. "When he was on the course, he could shut out the cares of the world."

Novato In Lead After Double Win

For the moment, Novato High School and San Rafael High School are kings of Marin County Athletic League track.

Novato upped its dual meet record to 3-0, with a pair of victories over weaker foes, thumping Marin Catholic, 92½-34½, and San Marin, 102-24, at Novato yesterday.

San Rafael's frolicking runners gave the Bulldogs a 2-0 league record with a 84-46 smacking of Terra Linda at San Rafael.

Meanwhile, Tamalpais, wracked by various injuries and ailments, still nicked Drake, 68-58, at Tamalpais, with a mile relay vicotry clinching the win.

Redwood, 1-0 in league, tore apart Piner in Santa Rosa, 93-34, with some top performances.

Novato had absolutely no trouble over Marin Catholic or San Marin, both of them thin as reeds. Phil Emsweiler won a pair of events, taking the 100 in 10.2 and the low hurdles in 15.6. The Hornets swept both the discus and shot in both meets, winning all but three events against the Wildcats, and all but four against the Mustangs.

Terra Linda won the mile relay for its only running event victory against the deep Bulldogs, as San Rafael swept the 880, the 100 and the two-mile. Bob Peterson won two events, the 100 and 220 and finished second in the long jump. Hurdler Dennis Silva won both hurdles and took the long jump.

Tamalpais, with ten key men out on its three teams, including varsity shot putter Verdean Herbold, needed the mile relay to clinch its first MCAL victory.

The Indians got top performances out of Luther Brown, who won both hurdles and anchored the mile relay and Mark Miller, who won the 880 and 440.

Bob Bartel, only a 150-pounder, threw the shot 50 feet, one and one-fourth inches in the Redwood victory.

Strange Minnesota Artillery

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Minnesota unloaded some heavy lumber yesterday and . . . surprise, surprise . . . none of it belonged to Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison or Tony Oliva.

The Twins smacked four home runs—two by spray hitters Cesar Tovar and Rod Carew, another by rookie Graig Nettles and the fourth by relief pitcher Joe Grzenda—to overtake the Los Angeles Dodgers 6-5.

Killebrew, Allison and Oliva—the Twins' power men—had two hits yesterday and have managed just two homers and 10 RBIs among them all spring. They left the heavy work to the others again yesterday.

Tovar, who had six homers all last year, tagged a three-run shot to start the Twins' comeback from a 5-0 deficit against the Dodgers. Then homers by Carew, who had only one last year, and Nettles, who created some late-season excitement with five homers in 22 games in 1968, tied the game. Finally, relief pitcher Grzenda won it with a ninth inning homer.

In other games, Atlanta ripped Washington 9-4, Houston edged the New York Mets 5-4, Montreal shut out Detroit 8-0, Kansas City shaded Pittsburgh 2-1 and the Chicago White Sox outslugged Boston 10-8.

Also, Philadelphia defeated Cincinnati 9-2, the Chicago Cubs dropped San Francisco 9-4, California took San Diego 8-1, Cleveland clobbered Oakland 12-2, Seattle edged California's "B" team 4-3 and Baltimore topped the New York Yankees 3-1.

single by Francis for 2-1. Bill Thompson, who had three hits, singled Francis home, and a bobble of the hit brought in another run.

Francis was the winner, although he gave up eight hits, while Jerry Goodrick was the victim of the upset.

Rick LaFranchi took over for wild Stan Lillienquist with the bases loaded and one out in the second inning, retired the side on two popups and went on to record the Drake victory.

Bob Sutherland's single in the fifth inning drove in the winning run in a two-run rally.

Roger Thomas got two hits for San Rafael.

Stanford Sophs Score Upset In NCAA Swim

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP)—Two Stanford sophomores have taken some of the fun out of Indiana's drive toward a second straight NCAA swimming championship.

Tonight they could further hamper the Hoosiers, but not enough to stop Coach Doc Counsilman's team from rolling up a record score in the 46th meet. Indiana led runnerup Southern California 274-182 going into tonight's final seven events.

In the closest finish in last night's six finals, Stanford sophomore Fred Haywood nipped Indiana Olympian Charlie Hickcox by two-hundredths of a second to win the 100-yard backstroke. Haywood was clocked in :52.44 and that was the only winning time of the night that didn't set an American record.

John Farris, the other Stanford winner, won the 200-yard butterfly in 1:49.6.

FRED HAYWOOD
Stanford winner.

DISAPPOINTED

The 19-year-old soph from Sacramento, who won a bronze medal in the 200-meter butterfly in the 1968 Olympics, said he was somewhat disappointed that the holder of the old record, Indiana's Mark Spitz, didn't race against him last night.

"But I usually watch Mark too much when I swim against him," Farris said. "I was able to swim my own race for a change."

FANTASTIC

"He's just fantastic," Farris said of Spitz after his latest record-breaking performance. The Indiana freshman set a U.S. mark in the 500-yard freestyle Thursday and is the meet's only double winner so far.

Spitz is also a Californian, from Santa Clara.

Farris said he considered going to Yale, "but I went there one weekend and almost froze to death. I decided to stay in California."

Tonight Spitz and Farris probably will meet in the finals of the 100-yard butterfly. Haywood and Hickcox likely will have a rematch in the 200 backstroke.

Top Rookies Vie As Seals End Season

OAKLAND — Norm Ferguson and Danny Grant — high-scoring candidates for best rookie in the Natiional Hockey League — will be opponents as the Oakland Seals play their last regular season game tonight against the Minnesota North Stars at the Coliseum Arena.

Oakland's Ferguson and Minnesota's Grant, both 23, each have 33 goals, although Grant has a big lead in total points. Minnesota also has a game remaining after tonight.

Also hunting for goals this evening will be the Seals' Gerry Ehman and Gene Ubriaco. Both have 19 and the 20th means a bonus. If they make it, that would give Oakland seven players with more than 20 goals. Only one player, Billy Hicke, reached that figure last season.

While strong on the ice, the team continues weak at the box office. Attendance has averaged about 4,900, compared with 5,700 last season. But the front office is looking for larger crowds during the upcoming Stanley Cup playoffs, saying that ticket sales to season subscribers has been good.

Stewart Wins Three In Tar Track Loss

College of Marin's outmanned track team lost its third Camino Norte Conference meet yesterday, bowing to West Valley at Campbell, 87-49.

George Stewart was a triple winner for the Tars, taking the mile, 880 and two-mile. Paul Vanderbilt won the pole vault and John Rowe took the shot.

Bears Grab Pac-8 Gymnastics Crown

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The University of California successfully defended its Pacific-8 gymnastics crown, winning three events and tying in a fourth to down rival Washington.

Cal scored 161.025 to Washington's 158.775.

Golden Bear team victories came in the floor exercise, side horse, and rings and Cal tied UCLA in the long horse. Southern California won the parallel bars and Washington took the horizontal bars. Individual competitions will be held this evening.

Murphy Takes Airlines Lead

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — A tightly-bunched pack of par wreckers set out in pursuit of pudgy Bob Murphy and his blast hot putter today in the second round of the $200,000 National Airlines Open Golf Tournament, but Jack Nicklaus and Bob Goalby weren't among them.

Nicklaus, who will be the favorite in the Masters Tournament April 10-13, can't seem to find the range with his big war club, the driver. He shot 73-75—148 here and missed the cut.

Goalby, defending champion in the Masters, is in the throes of one of the most atrocious and frustrating slumps that have ever plagued a big time golfer. He had 74-73—147, missing by a stroke.

Both went out to try to find a solution to their woes while the game's great and near-great took dead aim at the $40,000 first prize here, one of the sport's richest.

The 26-year-old Brooklyn-born Murphy, a brash, cocky but very personable young man of great girth, forged to the front of the pack yesterday by shooting a course record-equalling 66 over the 6,927-yard, par 72 Country Club of Miami course for 135, nine under par.

EIGHT BIRDIES

He had eight birdies in the remarkable round, including four in a row. He knocked in putts with his eyes closed.

"It reminds me of last summer," said portly Robert, a part-time watermelon salesman who won more than $70,000 in the Westchester Classic and Philadelphia Open on successive weeks and became pro golf's Rookie of the Year.

SNEAD ALIVE

The 56-year-old slammin' Sammy Snead remained in contention at 139, as did Arnold Palmer and Gene Littler at 142. But Bill Casper is broken out with allergy and back at 143 while PGA champion Julius Boros, suffering a stomach ailment, is farther behind at 145. South Africa's Gary Player, his putter ice cold, is at 144.

The blond, bombardiering Nicklaus believes he can iron out his driving kinks under the eye of his old pro, Jack Grout, who now teaches here, but Goalby is another and a sadder problem.

"I can't explain this slump," said the popular, broad-shouldered Masters titleholder. "But I'm in the middle of it. It has happened to others. You can bet I'll be back."

CAN'T PUTT

Goalby refuses to blame his failure of the past year to the controversy that surrounded his victory in the Masters which came after Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina signed an erroneous scoreboard.

"I can't putt," said Goalby. "My scoring average this year has been 72, pretty bad. I haven't had a round in the 60s. In no round have I had less than 32 putts."

Although he won the Masters with a last round 66 and could not be blamed for De Vicenzo's mistake, which cost the Argentine a tie, Goalby has been booed by fans and has been the victim of crank letters.

"It's ironical," said Goalby. "Roberto made about $250,000 as a result of the Masters controversy. I didn't make a cent."

best game in two years."

The former Tulsa star, hampered with injuries the past two seasons, came on in a reserve role and hit nine of 12 shots from the field, most of them long, and also contributed some determined defense.

Thurmond also did some accurate outside shooting, especially in the first half, when he led all the scorers with 21 points.

After leading 64-53 at the half, the Warriors five times had 12-point advantages in the third stanza, but early in the fourth the Lakers cut the lead to four.

With the score 88-84, King hit a long one and Thurmond added a free throw and field goal and the Warriors pulled away to stay before the crowd of 15,119.

Scoring honors went to Howell with 29 points, while Havlicek had 24 and Nelson 21 in the balanced attack. Chet Walker led Philadelphia with 26.

With Jones long gone as a result of a shouting and bumping match with referee Jack Madden after a disputed traveling violation at 3:37 of the first period, Russell drew his third personal less than half a minute into the second session, and then picked up his fourth with almost three minutes to go in the half. Philadelphia was leading, 50-48.

Here Sanders came in for Russell, almost immediately hit five straight points, and the Celtics never trailed again. Philadelphia tied it briefly a couple of times early in the third period, but Boston pulled away.

Colonels Test Oaks In Final Oakland Game

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Oaks, fresh from an easy win over Houston, take on the Kentucky Colonels tomorrow in their final home game of the season.

The Oaks took command early in last night's contest to post a 133-118 American Basketball Association win over the Mavericks.

The win wasn't the only good news for the Oaks. Guard Larry Brown, who pulled a neck muscle in Thursday night's 122-110 win over the Indiana Pacers, started for Oakland last night and dumped in 11 points.

However, fellow guard Henry Logan didn't suit up. Logan injured his head in the Pacer game.

Warren Armstrong led the Oaks with 30 points against the Mavs. He was backed by Gary Bradds' 23. Houston's top two scorers hit for the same amount with Stew Johnson scoring 30 and Kendall Rhine tossing in 23.

Quiet Voice Accomplished Much For Conservation

IN THIS ERA OF confrontation politics it is especially saddening to lose the likes of Dr. Paul T. Wilson.

One of College of Marin's most popular professors for 31 years, said his obituary in the I-J earlier this week.

And so he was, with good reason. He was a warm, friendly man. He was interested in every living thing. His intense interest in flora and fauna detracted not one whit from his interest and concern for every human being he came in contact with.

He knew his subjects. He may well have been the best informed man who ever lived when it came to natural history of Marin.

In this day and age of high velocity living, it is unlikely that anyone ever again will stay on the job such as he did for a full generation. He was as enthusiastic a collector and observer of nature in Marin in his final, retiring year at the college as he had been when he arrived young and energetic 31 years before.

It was infectious. To be his student was to absorb some of his enthusiasm for Marin's flora and fauna.

In the campus terminology of today, his courses were relevant, he communicated with his students, the generation gap was bridged.

In this era of confrontation politics it may be difficult for many to understand how a soft-spoken, mild-mannered fellow like Dr. Wilson could be a powerful force in the never-ending conservation battle.

But a powerful force he was.

Others spoke out more forcefully and provocatively in public. But in his quiet way Dr. Wilson was equally powerful in making "converts" in high places.

IF ONE WERE TO MAKE a list of the greatest conservationists in Marin's long history, the late Congressman William Kent and the late Mrs. Norman B. Livermore would undoubtedly have to top the list.

Among the next two or three names on such a list would have to come Dr. Paul Wilson.

He opened the eyes of thousands of students to the wonders of nature in the world about us. He instilled in them an appreciation for what we now refer to as our natural environment.

The knowledge, appreciation and attitudes of these thousands constitute a living memorial to him. As these attitudes and appreciations are handed from father to son, the results of his work will outlive his name and memory.

Today's advocates of strong-arm tactics on college campuses could well ask themselves whether their methods are destined to produce constructive results which, like Dr. Wilson's, will be felt beneficially long after the passing of the practitioner.

More Teacher-Trustees

In Tuesday's editorial of the conflict of interest situation for school board members who are also teachers, we overlooked three incumbent board members who also fall into that category.

Alyce Farkas, a trustee of Reed School District, is teaching this year at Pacheco School in Novato Unified School District.

Jessie W. Reasoner, a Bolinas-Stinson School District trustee, teaches at El Sobrante in the Richmond Unified School District.

Bruce Woelfel, Sausalito School District trustee, is on the faculty of Sonoma State College.

Mrs. Farkas and Miss Reasoner are candidates for re-election on April 15. Woelfel, whose term also expires, is not seeking another term.

We erred in reporting that Ben Franklin School in Daly City, where Paris B. Simmons, a candidate for the Fairfax School District, is a teacher, is a private school. It is a public school in Jefferson Elementary School District.

The Mustard Family

The mustard family of plants is noted for its pungent aroma, hence its name, which is derived from the word "musk." Besides the mustard plant, the family contains other spring wildflowers. The most prolific of these in Marin County is the common milk maids. (Yes, that's right, the name for some reason is plural.)

Members of the mustard family have a cruciferous flower. That is, they have four petals which form a cross, thus its derivation from crucifix.

Whatever the derivations and scientific classification, all you need to know is that the milk maids are blooming now in Marin County, so look for them.

Tiny Toads

A friend of ours who lives beside the San Rafael Canal tells us that the annual invasion of tiny toads has begun. This tender-hearted fellow doesn't care for the little beasties. Not because he doesn't know their value as living insecticides, but rather he is so fond of them that when he runs over one or two everytime he mows the lawn, it troubles him a bit.

Once he flushed a bucketful of thumbnail-sized toads out of a drainpipe. Those that escaped being flushed out to sea in the egg state are now changing from polliwogs to toadlets. Soon the sounds of toad romance will once more fill the air.

Early Retirement Measure Urged

I recently attended a meeting of the Peace Officers Research Association of California and found at that meeting that there is an urgent need for interested persons to voice their opinions via letter to Sacramento.

Assembly Bill 374 is in committee now and stands a chance of staying there unless we make it known to the committee members that it must . . . go before the Assembly.

This bill is authored by Assemblyman E. Richard Barnes and provides mandatory retirement for all safety members, police and fire, at age 60, and makes it possible for retirment at age 50 at half pay after 25 years of service. This is the same program that the California Highway Patrol now has, as well as many other California cities. The main objective is to make retirement standards uniform throughout the state.

Currently in San Rafael and many other cities locally the mandatory age is 65 years. . . .

Those who are interesetd in assisting their local police and firemen in this matter please write to Wadie P. Deddeh, chairman, Assembly Public Employment and Retirement Committee, State Capitol, Sacramento 95814 and to their local assemblyman.

Chance To Clean Academic House

Fussy as it may seem, I deign to point our that state law provides that "absence without leave of an academic employee for five consecutive working days is an automatic resignation from state service." (Ed. Code 24311).

Only the State Personnel Board may reinstate, and then only if the employee files a written request within 15 days after notice, and makes a "satisfactory explanation" of his absence.

What a neat opportunity to Americanize the "faculties!" I mean those who are not already in jail. Moreover, it would seem slightly immoral to intentionally frustrate such a clear pronouncement of law.

Emergency Roles Draw Gratitude

This is a somewhat belated note to thank Officer Richard Standridge of the San Anselmo Police Department and Capt. Role Of Teacher On School Board

While my position is quite different from the candidates you mention in your editorial of March 25 regarding interest-conflict for teacher-trustees, I am a public school teacher, and Ben Franklin School in Daly City is not a private, but a public school.

My position is different in that I am not teaching in the same county, in fact two counties away, and am not professionally associated with teachers in this county, other than in belonging to the same state and national educational associations.

Frankly, in my case, and I hope in the case of the other teacher candidates there is no possibility of a conflict of interest, such as you state. In the first place each school district is budgeted on the basis of its educational needs, and thus each demand for funds, salary or otherwise must be based on what benefit it will be for the children of the particular district, not on what some other district is demanding at the time. Second, it is a decided benefit to have a teacher on the board, for they have the background necessary to determine where financial cuts can be made in budgets which will not affect the educational quality. Third, as in my case, teaching in a school that has as many children as the district of Fairfax, will enable me, if elected, to recommend to our board innovations which are both educationally sound and beneficial to the children and taxpayers of this community. Finally, being a teacher in a district which has had a great deal of educational crises, will allow me, if elected, to assist in avoiding such crises in Fairfax during the next four years.

I appreciate the intent of your editorial, and the continued policy of editorials which deserve deep consideration by all citizens of our county.

Police Surrender Citizen's Trust

In reference to your editorial, March 26, regarding "Police Cannot Carry Society's Responsiblity," let us face some facts.

When you and I, both, can once again completely trust policemen, then, and only then, will law-enforcement return to your desired effectiveness.

Even yet, I am occasionally warned to stay out of a certain city because my wife and/or I may be subjected to an embarrassing arrest. This threat hangs over our heads only because of gutless policemen — policemen who feel they must or forced to uphold the image of law-enforcement at any cost. . . .

I believe it is important — partly as an American citizen and partly because I have earned it because I have served my country well — from Pearl Harbor to the peace surrender in Tokyo Bay — that I remain free to move as any ordinary citizen.

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

A young lady expressed consternation at the news that her wealthy 80-year-old grandfather had up and married his twenty-two-year-old secretary. "I can understand," she told her husband, "what December can see in May — but what, I ask you, is May going to find in December?"

Her husband ansered, "Christmas."

THE DRUMMONDS

The President Everyone Trusted —That Was General Eisenhower

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — I'd like to tell you some things about the Ike I knew — some things intimate, some significant.

Despite his 42 years in the Army, General Eisenhower didn't think in purely military terms. His was a civilian mind and there is a vivid example of how he dismayed much of the top brass when he was chief of staff.

It was in the late 1940s. Congress was about to set up the Atomic Energy Commission and, since weapons then were to be its main business, there was tremendous pressure to put the military in control. Those who wanted it that way were pleading with Ike to back them. They were sure that if he did, his view would prevail.

But Ike came down for civilian control. "Let the Pentagon," he said, "be the client, not the manager."

DURING HIS eight years in the White House Ike achieved two things which then were simply taken for granted:

He had total credibility. He was never disbelieved.

When the U.S. U-2 spy plane was shot down over Russia, many inside and outside the government urged him to pretend he didn't know about the flights. President Eisenhower refused. He knew about these flights and he didn't propose to say otherwise.

Ike had the total trust of most Americans. He had it under all circumstances.

In 1956 people were calling for his re-election on the ground he got us out of the Korean war. When the Hungarian revolution threatened war, they called for his election because he would be needed if war came. Whether the issue was peace or war, the nation trusted Ike as it trusted few presidents in history.

IKE HAD spontaneous wit.

Once he wrote a lengthy, longhand letter to his close friend, Winston Churchill. Because it went beyond amiabilities and dealt with delicate diplomatic issues, the President sent it over to the State Department for comment and criticism.

Secretary of State John Foster Dulles read it. Undersecretary Walter Bedell Smith read it. Other experts read it, line by line, syllable by syllable. Then they gathered in Dulles' office to pool their views. The secretary reached for the White House phone.

"Mr. President," Dulles began, "we have all read your letter to Churchill." He paused. "We can't find anything wrong with it."

A booming laugh came over the phone.

"Can't find anything wrong?" Ike asked. "What's the matter over there? Everything falling apart?"

NOTHING FELL apart during the Eisenhower presidency. Racial turmoil had not escalated, but the cold war was still on. Ike held the line in West Berlin, used U.S. troops at Lebanon's request to keep it from being taken over by Communist force and began disarmament negotiations with the Soviets.

General Eisenhower helped his party to shed its isolationist moorings and make it embrace social and economic welfare legislation for the first time since the 1930s.

He often found the GOP a heavy cross to bear. One time when Joe McCarthy was attacking him for being soft on Communists, and other Republicans were belaboring him in the Senate and holding up his bills in the House, I wrote a column suggesting that the GOP had been out of power so long it didn't realize it had a President in the White House.

Ike sent me the column torn from the Washington Post with his scrawl across the top: "This is exactly how I feel."

Ike perhaps was not a great President — but certainly a great American.

Airports Solve Congestion Snarl— Make You Walk To Destination

WASHINGTON — I am constantly amazed how the airlines are solving their problems. Everyone is aware that one of the big stumbling blocks to future air transportation is airport facilities. No airport in the country is prepared to handle the new air buses carrying 400 passengers that will soon be put into service.

I was under the impression that no one was working on the crisis, but I was wrong. The airlines and airports together are solving the problem in one of the most unconventional ways that human engineers have ever devised.

They're making people walk to their destinations.

AS THE AIRPORTS get larger, they keep extending their terminals, and the gates to the aircraft keep getting further away.

I discovered the consequence of this the other day when I had to catch a plane in Chicago for Davenport, Iowa. I started walking toward my gate, then realizing I had only an hour to make it, I started jogging. A few miles later I discovered I still wasn't anywhere near the gate, so I started sprinting. But because I was carrying a brief case, I just didn't have the spurt I needed for the last few miles, and I missed my plane.

THE AIRLINE ticket attendant was very sympathetic and said to me, "Why don't you walk to Davenport: It's only a few more miles down the road."

"Only a few more miles down the road?"

"Yes, we don't like to talk about it, because we naturally want people to fly, but most of our airline terminals have been spreading out so far that our departure gates are located only a few miles from where people are going. If you look out the window, you can see the lights of Davenport right over there."

"That's amazing," I said. "I knew I had gone pretty far, but I didn't think I was anywhere near Davenport."

"Most people don't," the ticket attendant said. "But, you see, we have to keep extending the wings of the terminal to handle the traffic and so the cities get nearer and nearer. Someday we hope to link the Davenport and Chicago airports so passengers can walk between the two of them without getting wet. It certainly will solve the pressing, airport traffic problems."

I THOUGHT Chicago was the only airport doing this, but not long ago I was out in Los Angeles and had to make a plane for Santa Barbara. When I was given my gate number for the flight, I started for it. And you can imagine my delight and surprise when I discovered that by the time I got there I was only five miles from the Santa Barbara city limits.

Then last week, I was in Miami and had to fly to Tampa. As I walked through the terminal to my gate, I stopped off for lunch at the Palm Beach Airport snack bar, and then continued straight on to find my plane was parked at a gate number just beyond Orlando.

I found out that every major airport in the country is now working on tunnels and ramps which will eventually hook up with airports in other cities. It's the first breakthrough in airline congestion. Engineers predict that in the not too distant future all the airline terminals in the United States will be linked together, and by the time a passenger reaches his gate number on foot, he will have arrived at the place where he originally intended to fly.

A $10 Million Deal For Amusement Firm

NEW YORK (UPI) — The acquisition market closed with a rush this week.

General Instrument Corp. of New York bought Allied Amusement Co. of Chicago for $10 million cash in order to acquire Allied Amusement's half interest in a string of community antenna television systems serving 20,000 subscribers in Illinois and Indiana.

A chain of 30 motion picture theaters, 13 drive-ins and 17 conventional houses in Illinois and Indiana, is being sold to Childhood Productions, Inc., of New York for $5 million and buyers have been found for a chain of hamburger stands with McDonald Franchises.

Allen Aircraft Radio, Inc., of Chicago agreed in principle to buy Skyways, Inc., Western Skyways, Inc., and Skyways Flight Services, Inc., all of Portland, Ore., which have combined annual sales of $6.8 million, for stock.

General Cigar Co. agreed in principle to buy Henry Leonard & Thomas, Inc., makers of Dr. Grabow's presmoked pipes. The price is $4 million in convertible preferred stock.

The Walter Reade Organization, Inc., of New York, operator of theaters and film production and distribution services, agreed in principle to buy Pyramid Publications, Inc., also of New York, a publisher of magazines and paperback books, with sales last year of $5.38 million, for $4 million in cash and stock.

Management Data Corp. of Philadelphia, tentatively agreed to Buy Systems Associates, Inc., of Reading, Pa., for stock. Both companies are in computer software and managerial services.

Arkansas Best Corp., Mid-America Industries, Inc., and Southland, Inc., all of Fort Smith, Ark., agreed to form an affiliated group. Southland shareholders will get an undisclosed amount of cash while Mid-America holders will get up to 250,000 shares of Arkansas Best common. Mid-America is an auto parts distributor and Arkansas Best and Southland both make furnture.

General Mills, Inc., of Minneapolis bought Donruss Co., a Memphis bubble gum manufacturer, for cash.

Zimmer Homes Corp., Pompano Beach, Fla., maker of Mobile Homes, agreed in principle to buy the business of Richmond Homes, Inc., at Richmond, Ind., which has annual sales of $3 million. Terms were not revealed.

Span Panel Approves Electronic Toll Plan

A one-year test of an experimental electronic system to collect tolls on the Golden Gate Bridge was approved unanimously yesterday by bridge and highway district directors.

The key to the system is a "slave unit" attached to a vechicle that automatically broadcasts a four-digit code number to a receiver as it passes through the toll gates. The receiver records the number on paper tape for automated billing by the district's computer.

While the test will be limited to district vehicles, and possibly buses, it could be used by commuters on their vehicles, and if the system is successful and approved by the directors, said district engineer Robert E. Shields.

Several toll gates would be set aside for vehicles equipped for the system, he said, adding it would be compatible with his proposal for a $3 million expansion of the toll plaza.

Shields first proposed the $20,000 test last July, but the former general manager of the district, James Adam, said its development should be left to the federal government. Adam's successor, Dale W. Luehring, endorsed the test.

The equipment, including 270 "slave units," is to be rented from the Taller-Cooper Division of Litton Industries at $986 a month. The test will start in September, Shields said.

The proposed expansion of the plaza, which would provide a new southbound roadway west of the administration building and reverse toll collection to northbound traffic, was recommended Thursday by the building and operating committee. A majority of directors favored it yesterday, and none opposed it, but approval was postponed to April 11 to give more time to review the plan.

Golden Gate Bridge and Highway District directors also:

TOWER LIGHTS — Invited the firm of John S. Bolles and Associates of San Francisco to submit a proposal for floodlighting the towers of the bridge, at no cost to the district.

IUSPECTION — Appropriated an additional $38,000 to complete structural inspection of the bridge by Ammann and Whitney of New York. The engineering firm last year was given a $460,000 contract for the inspection, but Shields said costs had risen because of unusually poor weather and the need for additional inspection.

AWARD — Received a "life savers" plaque from Suicide Prevention Inc. of San Francisco praising district employees for saving nearly 4,000 lives since the bridge opened in 1937, or 10 lives for each successful jumper.

BUS PLAN — Set a joint finance and commuters' affairs committee meeting at 9 a.m. April 7 to consider adoption of the plan for the district to go into the commuter bus business.

RESTAURANT — Referred to committee for study a proposal by San Francisco Supervisor William C. Blake that the Round House Restaurant at the toll plaza be replaced with a "first class" restaurant.

$29 Million Settlement In 1960 Midair Plane Disaster

NEW YORK (UPI) — All claims arising from the 1960 midair crash of two airliners over Staten Island finally have been settled for a total of $29 million.

With the announcement of the final award yesterday, Brooklyn Federal Court broke the seal of secrecy on the case. The proceedings had been kept secret for three years while the awards were made.

The crash, which ranked as the world's worst air disaster until only 13 days ago, took place when a United Air Lines jetliner and a Trans World Airlines Lockheed Super Constellation groping through fog and sleet collided over a small Army airport on Staten Island Dec. 16, 1960.

All 128 persons aboard the planes and six people on the ground died in the crash. In June 1962, the Civil Aeronautics Board in Washington declared the United Airline crew negligent since the DC8 jetliner was more than seven miles beyond the farthest limits assigned to it by radar controllers at Kennedy International Airport, then called Idlewild. The plane also had a defect in its navigational equipment.

United Flight 826, going to Idlewild from Chicago with 77 passengers and seven crewmen, sliced into TWA Flight 266 on its way to LaGuardia Airport from Dayton and Columbus, Ohio, with 39 passengers and a crew of five.

Big Bridge Tournament Continuing

Marin County bridge players failed to win the big ones yesterday but grabbed several impressive victories in the annual tournament of the Marin unit of the American Contract Bridge League at the National Guard Armory in Santa Venetia.

The trhee-day tournament drew about 500 persons from throughout the Bay Area to yesterday's opening round.

Donald A. Greenhalgh of Novato, president of the Marin unit, said that tonight's games would start at 8 p.m., and tomorrow's sessions at 1:15 p.m. and 7 p.m.

In the women's pairs yesterday, Elizabeth and Hazel Brodie of Greenbrae took second overall, for the best Marin showing.

In the men's pairs, the best Marin could do was a third by Robert Spicher and David Smith of San Rafael.

William C. Moor of Novato and Elaine Jaccard of San Rafael took a section first in last night's mixed pairs event.

In the side game, Owen V. Haxton and William Smith of Novato led the field with a first overall score of 207.

Ban On Shellfish Remains In Effect

An official ban on taking shellfish from Richardson Bay is still in effect, Marin County health authorities said yesterday and will remain till tests show them to be safe for consumption.

The ban, imposed Feb. 27, was ordered when state Department of Public Health tests showed "gross sewage contamination" in the bay. Health officials warned such diseases as typhoid, infectious hepatitis and salmonella can be caused by eating the contaminated shellfish.

The Poet Brownings Are Not Forgotten

See Page M4

BONJOUR GAIETY and Beau Bouffon DeArgent, two miniature poodles belonging to Mrs. Terrie Ellerman, were decidedly overdue for a visit to the beauty salon when this photograph was taken, and, according to their owner, seemed downright ashamed of and unhappy with their shaggy appearances.

DOROTHY NEWMAN, at work with power shears, begins the transformation of a once shaggy poodle into a sleek, well contoured animal. Finishing touches will be done with hand scissors. And while she works, Mrs. Newman keeps up a patter of soothing talk to the dog.

Two Poodles Visit The Beauty Parlor For Their Primping

It's Necessary, Says An Owner, For The Dogs' Sense Of Esteem

By DON KEOWN

So you think those visits paid by poodles to the canine beauty salons for primping and pampering are only affectations of the owners?

Far from it, staunchly maintains Mrs. Terrie Ellerman of San Anselmo, owner of a pair of handsome specimens of the popular breed.

"Without their trims and all the other attentions they receive at the salon, poodles are miserable," she insists.

ORDINARILY Mrs. Ellerman takes her miniature poodles, Bonjour Gaiety, a silver, and Beau Bouffon DeArgent, a champagne or near white, to the Gay Doggie Salon of Dorothy and Art Newman at 511 Fourth Street, San Rafael, once a month for clipping and grooming.

"And recently when I let them go four months between visits, it was plain they just didn't feel right," Mrs. Ellerman declares. "They didn't even like themselves."

Bonjour Gaiety and Beau Bouffon DeArgent are mother and son, and both show dogs with winning records.

A VISIT TO the salon goes something like this, according to Mrs. Ellerman:

"When the pet arrives at the shop, he is placed in an open-type kennel without doors and snapped by his own collar to which he is accustomed. He is first brushed and combed thoroughly to loosen any dirt in the hair, to remove matting and tangle, and to fluff his coat." Then the "clip" to be given later is "patterned" into the hair.

There follow two separate baths with rinses.

THE FIRST bath is primarily a flea and tick killer with a weak blueing solution to restore true color to the hair and to bring out contrasts. There is also a deodorant in the water to kill doggie odors.

The second bath contains a protein-balanced solution of skin and coat conditioners to alleviate dry skin, to separate the hair, and to cause it to soften and to fluff for better clipping.

No soap or detergent is permitted in the bath water to prevent the loss of natural oil from the hair.

DURING THE bath the teeth of the dog are inspected and the owner informed if there is loosening or decay requiring the attention of the veterinarian.

Eyes are swabbed to remove irritation. Ears are cleansed, treated with a solution to dispell excess moisture and an antibiotic, and cleared of hair. Nails are trimmed as short as possible along with the dew claws.

Next the dog is dried thoroughly with a warm air blower while being constantly brushed and combed.

THEN THE pattern for the clip is "scissor-shaped" to a smooth, even format to fit the contours of the poodle.

The master or mistress specifies the kind of clip and the degree of closeness. Bonjour wears a Dutch clip while Beau Bouffon sports a continental cut.

The clipping completed with hand scissors, the finishing touches are applied — pastel-colored ribbons chosen from a rack five feet long, polish for the nails (some 30 colors are available), perfume and cologne.

The grooming over, the poodle has been restored to self-esteem for another month.

THROUGHOUT the treatment, Mrs. Ellerman says, Dot Newman has kept up a continuous stream of soothing talk to the dog she is grooming. And it responds with patience and obedience.

"All the girls employed in the salon also seem to take a personal interest in each dog and treat them as individuals," she reports.

And despite all the special attention accorded them, Mrs. Ellerman denies that poodles are spoiled canines. "They take it all in stride," she says.

POODLES, SHE maintains, are dogs of exceptional personality, intensely loyal, obedient, fine retrievers, "and they never fight."

Mrs. Ellerman does have one bit of advice for poodle owners: "Don't remain at the salon while your dog is being groomed. If he knows you are there, he will put on an awful show of pretended abuse. While I stayed, mine were the worst behaved dogs in the place."

And while poodles are often regarded as dogs that appeal primarily to women, Mrs. Ellerman says it is surprising the number of owners who left or called for their pets, now

"Why Did My Husband's Trousers Split On The Crease?"

The construction of the fabric from which the trousers are made is the reason for the fabric split. The fabric is made of highly twisted yarns. When they are creased, there is an extra strain on them. After repeated pressings on the same crease line, the tendency to break is multiplied. The agitation necessary to cleaning the trousers causes the weakened fabric to break and the damage becomes noticeable.

The fault lies in the highly twisted yarns used in the manufacture of the trousers.

sleek, lavender-scented and beribboned, who were men.

THE GAY Doggie Salon caters to German shepherds, cocker spaniels, beagles, other longhair and terrier breeds and just plain mutts as well as poodles. But poodles are the principal patrons.

In 15 years of working with dogs, Dorothy Newman says she has been bitten but once — then by a young poodle receiving his first trim. She stresses that the offending dog had been brought up in a kennel without human companionship.

Generally, she says, the dogs are cooperative, and most even seem to enjoy the attention. Tranquilizers are not used.

THERE IS none of the "alligator wrestling" technique associated with home bathing and grooming of the family pet to be seen at the Gay Doggie Salon.

But the scene is a busy one, and the sound, with four women regularly employed by the Newmans, is generally one of feminine chatter and laughter, plus the snip of shears and the noise of other equipment in operation.

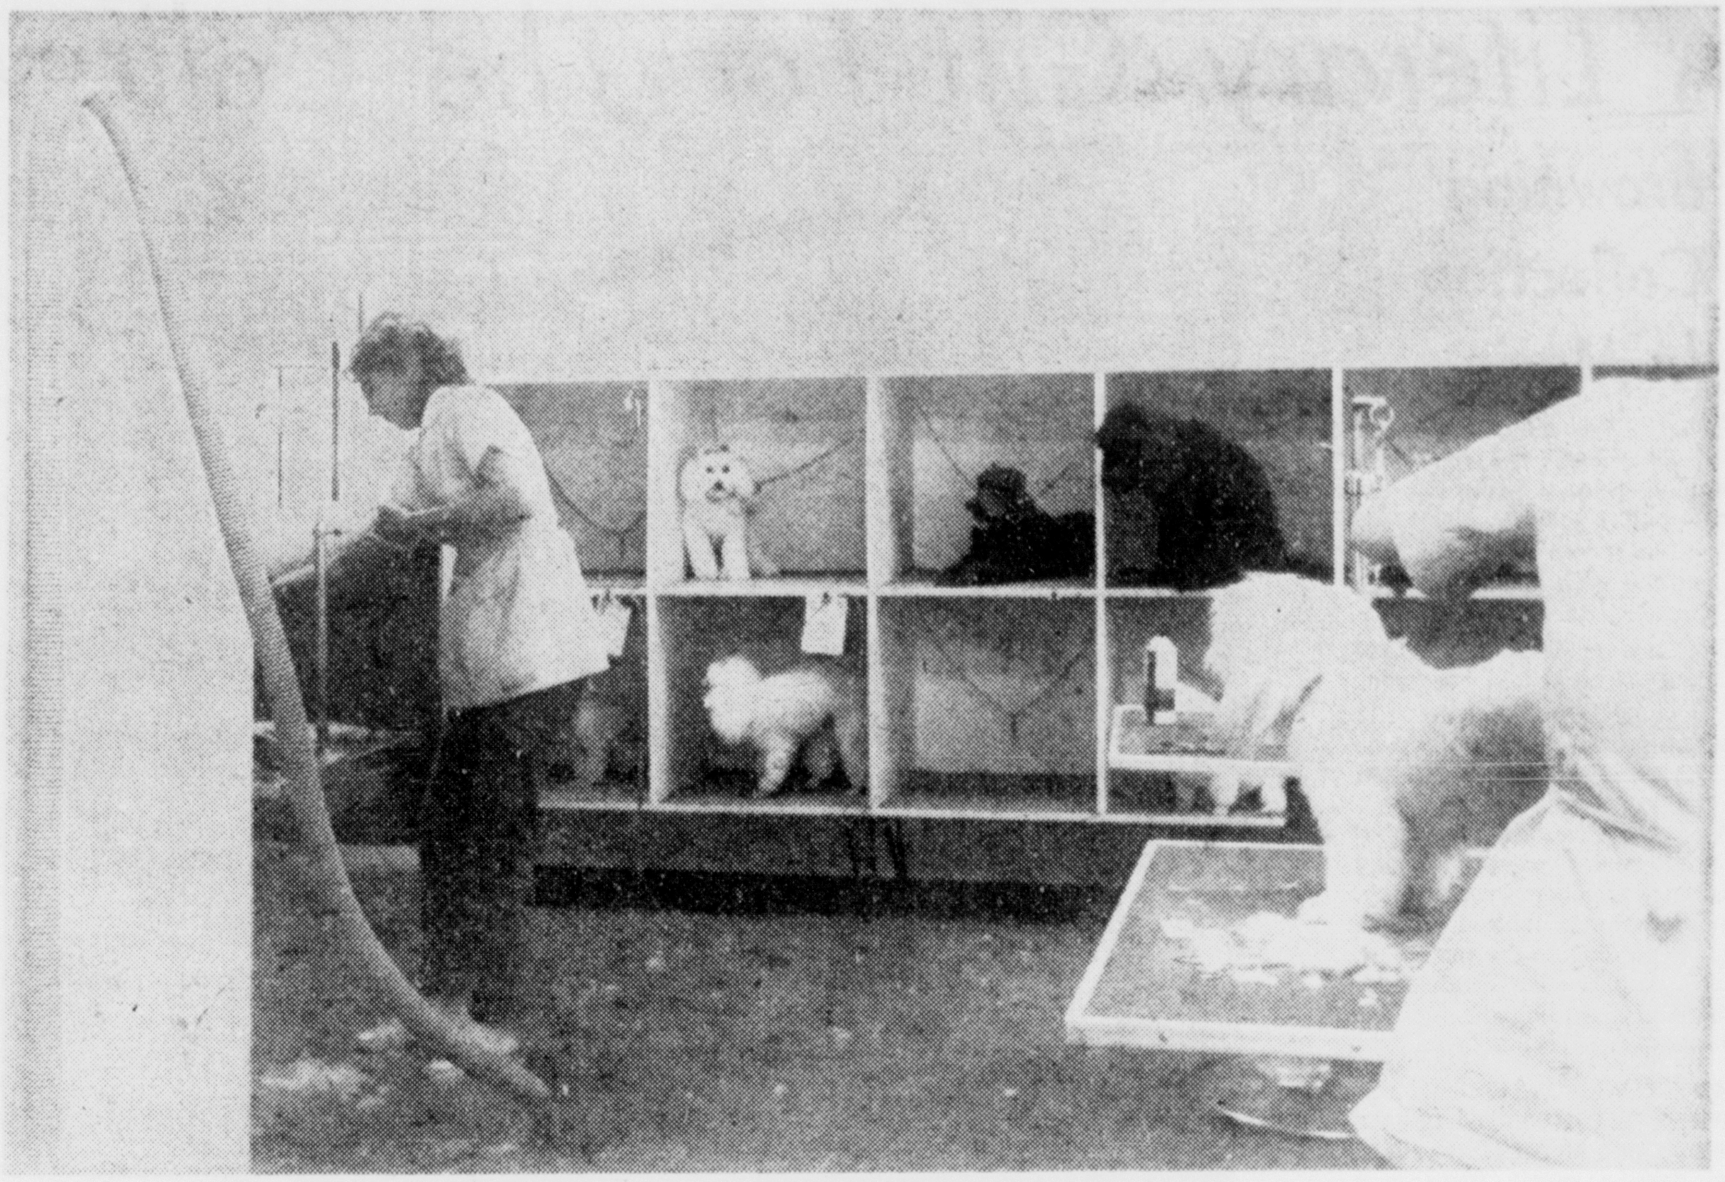
"It reminds me of the sounds at a secretarial school," Mrs. Ellerman says.

THE NEWMANS have operated their salon for 13 years. They belong to the United Dog Groomers, the American Dog Grooming Association and the American Pet Shop Association.

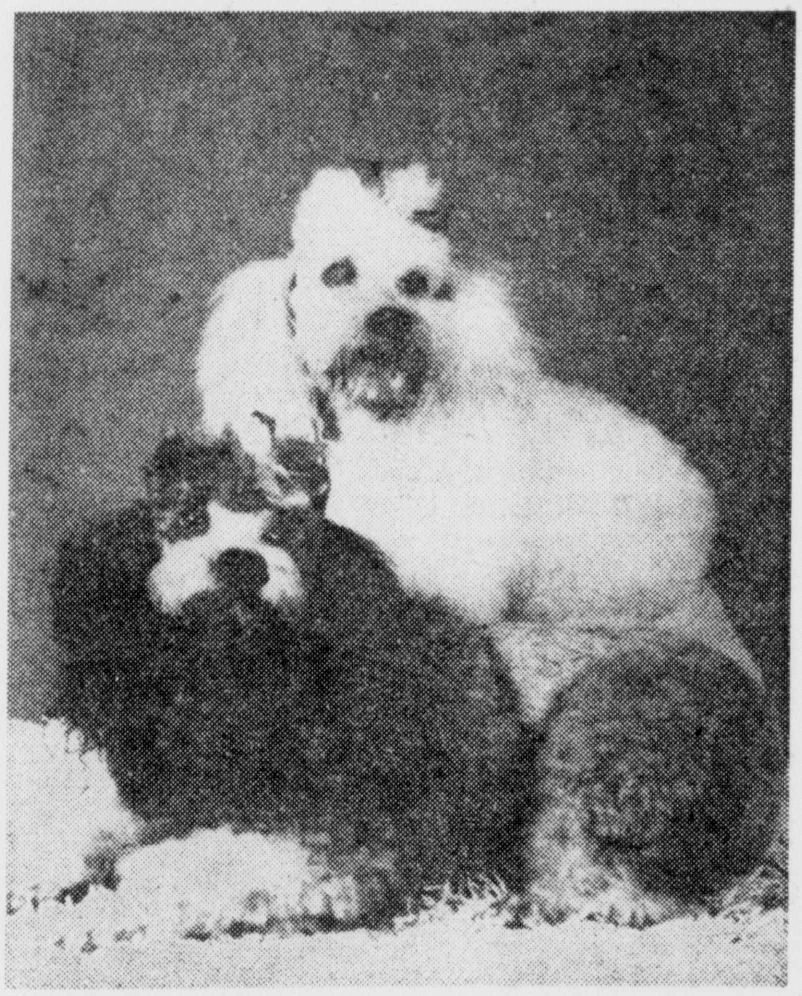
Their establishment is deceptive in size, since it extends back some 175 feet.

What does all this primping of their pedigreed dogs cost the owners?

For Bonjour and Beau Bouffon, Mrs. Ellerman says, the tab for the full treatment runs about $20 a dog. But the transformation from a somewhat woolly pet indistinguishable from many another dog of less exalted ancestry to a proud pedigreed poodle of poise and personality is well worth that cost, she adds.



THIS IS THE scene in the Gay Doggie Salon in San Rafael as some dogs are clipped and groomed by handlers, while others, their trims completed or yet to be administered, await in private cubicles with varying degrees of patience.



THEIR PRIMPING and clipping completed, Bonjour Gaiety and Beau Bouffon DeArgent, all fluffy and beribboned, look like two very different poodles from the dogs that had entered the Gay Doggie Salon only a short time before. (Photos by the Tiny Tots Studio)

A Literary Gift For The College Library

Browning Collection In Marin

Robert Browning has been dead 80 years, and his wife, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, for more than a century.

Yet those two poets are still among the most honored figures in English letters.

Nor are their admirers restricted to the United Kingdom.

Browning societies continue to flourish in the United States, one of the most active being based in San Francisco.

The San Francisco Browning Society meets weekly Friday mornings October through May. Membership is limited to 100, and, according to the president, Mrs. August B. Rothschild, "there is a waiting list for new members."

MEETINGS ARE held at various places including the Century and Metropolitan clubs, and once a month there is a principal speaker.

An active member of the Browning enthusiasts during her lifetime was the late Sarah Wingate Taylor, poet and professor of English at San Rafael's Dominican College for 20 years.

As a result of that relationship, Dominican's Archbishop Alemany Library, opened six years ago this April, has received a windfall.

IN MEMORY of Miss Taylor, the Browning Society presented to the Dominican library a 150-volume collection of works pertaining to the Brownings.

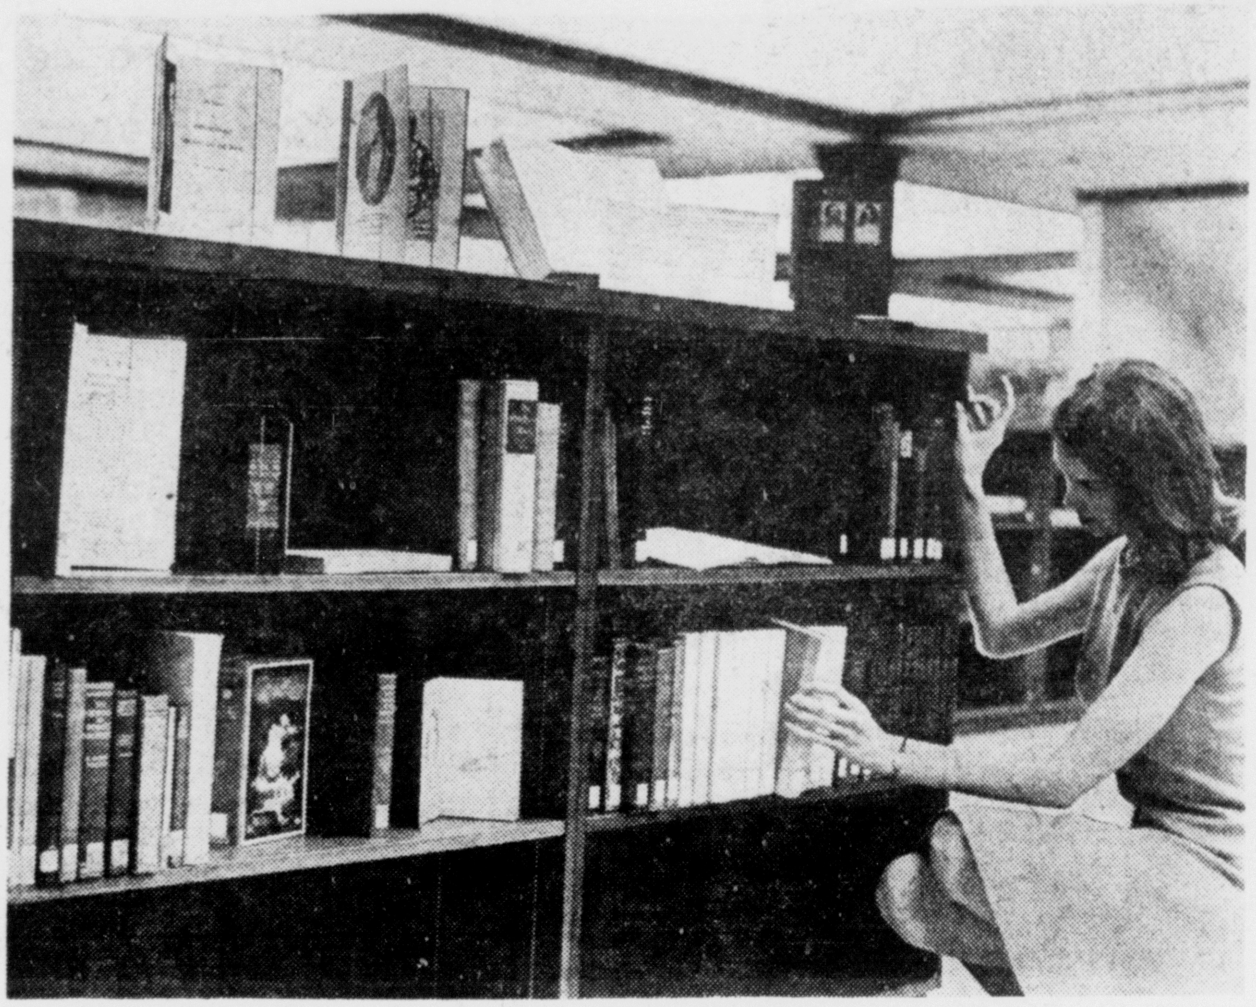
The gift was made last fall, but the processing of the volumes has just been finished at the library.

Included are the complete works of Robert and Elizabeth Browning, plus volumes of biography, criticism and memorabilia.

ALSO INCLUDED are the "papers" of the Browning Society of London which were published in 13 parts from 1881 to 1891, the papers of the Browning Society of Boston published from 1886 to 1897, and a few monographs under the title "Mornings With the San Francisco Browning Society" that date back to the founding of that society in March of 1902.

Outstanding in the collection, according to Sister M. Marguerite, O.P., librarian, is the material pertaining to Browning's famous poem "The Ring and the Book."

These include a complete photographic reproduction of the group of 18 pamphlets, dated 1698, that Browning called "the old yellow book" and upon which he based his poem to Guido and Francesca Franchesini. The original pamphlets are now at Balliol College, Oxford University. The collection also includes photographs of Florentine art, "Florence in the Poetry of the Brownings," and Helen Clarke's "Browning's Italy," a study of life and art in Browning.



SUSAN BURNS, a Dominican College junior from San Rafael, examines some of the first editions and rare facsimiles of Robert Browning's works, letters and critical studies dating back to the 19th Century that have been presented to the Archbishop Alemany Library by the Browning Society of San Francisco in memory of the late poet, Sarah Wingate Taylor.

THE SAN FRANCISCO Browning Society has apparently been primarily concerned with Robert Browning though the collection has some critical studies on the work of his wife, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, published in 1899 and 1907, as well as a 1929 volume titled "Elizabeth Barrett Browning: Letters to her Sister, 1846-1859."

A collection of volumes published at Baylor University during the tenure of A. J. Armstrong are also included, along with some of that Browning authority's letters to San Francisco society members.

The third Dominican College library is a million dollar structure designed by Henry Schubart of Schubart and Friedman of San Francisco that won an award of merit from the American Institute of Architects and the American Library Association in 1964.

OVER 46,000 books were moved from Guzman Hall to the new building in 1963 and the collection has since grown to 61,000 including 3,500 volumes processed last year. The open stacks will house an eventual 100,000 books, a goal that could be reached in 10 years at the present rate of growth.

The library serves both the four-year liberal arts program of the college and the graduate school which means, according to Sister Marguerite, that it must be an academic library kept current with the curriculum needs as well as a research library to meet the requirements of the faculty and graduate students.

"We have a large collection of art books because of our emphasis on the humanities and art

HANDWRITTEN monographs entitled "Mornings With the San Francisco Browning Society" that date back to 1902 are examined at Dominican College's Archbishop Alemany Library by Laurie Lynch of Santa Ana, who will be doing graduate work at the school this May for honors in her major subject, English. The monographs are part of the Browning collection of books and papers, now housed in the San Rafael college's library.

San Francisco Society Presents Books, Papers To College Library

NANCY KRIEG, a senior from San Rafael, and Devi San Lazaro, a graduate student from Bangalore, India, peruse some art books in the fireplace corner of the Dominican College library which is enhanced by the colorful tapestry, "Tree of Life," handwoven from natural fibers by the children of Harrania, Egypt. The Dominican College student body presented the tapestry for the college to Sister M. Samuel, O.P., last month in commemoration of her first year as president.

history'' Sister Marguerite stated, ''and have increased our buying in the field of black culture because of the new minor in black studies.''

BUT DOMINICAN has not tried to initiate collections, though it has also a collection of books, photos, documents and personal letters of Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, presented by the Nimitz family and the United States Department of the Navy.

And now, a quite respectable research library on the Brownings.

The special curriculum library of about 2,000 books serves the education department with all state texts and supplementary texts for secondary and elementary studies plus pictures, pamphlets, units of work and courses of study used in California public schools.

THE GENERAL library collection has been enriched by matching federal grants and private gifts. The library also keeps current with 375 periodicals covering the curriculum with additional titles of recreational and cultural interest.

Though the library's primary service is to Dominican College faculty and students, it is also available to the adult community for reference work.

College of Marin students are referred by their own librarians who keep a record of the books most in demand.

Dominican College alumnae pay a small fee for library privileges each semester and may borrow books.

A COMPLETE ''listening room'' is now being furnished as the result of a fund raising project by the Associated Students of Dominican College. The students also presented a large tapestry woven in Egypt entitled ''Tree of Life'' that hangs in the fireplace corner of the main floor.

The library is open daily throughout the school year, with the exception of major holidays.

The Bitter Mr. Bierce

A Fellow Commuter Remembers When The Writer Was A Marinite

(Editor's Note: From 1908 to 1912 Marin County pioneer William T. Ortman, now an Oakland resident, was a fellow commuter with the writer Ambrose Bierce on the trains and ferryboats between San Rafael and San Francisco. In this article, he sets down for the Independent-Journal Marin Magazine his recollections of Bierce.)

By WILLIAM T. ORTMAN

In the period when I knew him as a fellow commuter, Ambrose Bierce was a tall, somewhat slender man, in his late 60s.

For a man that age, he had a splendid head of curly hair, although the hairline on his forehead was beginning to recede and thin a bit, giving his face a more rounded appearance.

The nose was small, but finely sculptured. His complexion was a soft white with a slight ruddy tint that would have been becoming in any girl. The eyebrows were not heavy, but somewhat roughly defined.

BIERCE WORE a small mustache waxed at the ends and turned up modestly like that of Germany's Kaiser Wilhelm.

The mouth was small and tender looking, giving the face a look of shyness that was in contrast to the rapier-like intellect of the brilliant mind.

It was the daily occurence, except for Sunday, for the milkman to see the handsome Bierce at 6:15 o'clock in the morning, striding along San Rafael's Second Street enroute from his rented quarters on E to the depot where he would board the electric train for San Francisco.

BIERCE LIKED fine clothes and he knew how to wear them. He would be attired in a fashionable suit, rosebud in the lapel of the coat, derby hat and kid gloves, sporting a light cane, the very picture of sartorial elegance.

At the depot he purchased an Examiner from a newsboy and immediately boarded his train. So punctual was Bierce that he and the train invariably arrived at the station at the exact same time.

The San Francisco Examiner was then the pride of the William Randolph Hearst newspaper empire, and Bierce was its star columnist.

AT THE TIME San Rafael enjoyed two competing railroad lines, and the commuter movement was considerable, especially after the new electric trains went into operation.

Bankers, developers, stockbrokers, etc., were able to live in grandiose fashion in Marin on spacious estates, and ride to the city and work in style and comfort.

This created an elite set of commuters composed largely of Montgomery Street tycoons with mutual interests and prestige. Perhaps the kingpin of this group of magnates might have been Capt. Robert Dollar, distinguished in appearance, immaculate in attire. But he was often abroad and missing from the commuter train for months at a time.

HARRISON DIBBLE, mining engineer and realtor was the leading candidate for that leadership in Dollar's absence.

Another contender, and oldest of the trio, was Ambrose Bierce, bon vivant as well known in London and New York as he was in San Francisco.

Yet for all his elegance, Ambrose Bierce was a quiet man and something of a brooder. He was known for his solitary strolls on Sunday afternoons about San Rafael. He was a man who preferred being alone to company, meditation to conversation.

THE TOWN was well aware that he was something of a celebrity, and an especially gifted person. Bierce knew this, too. He saw to it that he was well paid for his talents, both for

AS A YOUNG soldier in the Union Army during the Civil War, Ambrose Bierce developed a hatred for war and warmakers that was to remain with him long after he came West, established his home in San Francisco and San Rafael, and became a leading newspaper columnist and literary figure.

When Ambrose Bierce Rode Marin To San Francisco Trains

the newspaper and for periodicals and books.

He had been born in Ohio of poor but religious parents, the 10th child in a family of 14. What education he received came from his mother, a woman he worshiped throughout his life. Still a teen-ager, he had enlisted in the Union Army in 1861.

Four years spent in the Civil War furnished material for his successful short stories, but also left him melancholy and with a hatred of war. To him, the soldier's life was wretched, and his death was worse. The forces that brought war about were regarded with cynicism and detestation, and were the targets of some of his strongest venom.

IN LATER years he had mellowed somewhat, and the supernatural had become a prime interest, resulting in Edgar Allan Poe-like tales.

Although on the commuter train, Bierce rubbed shoulders with and was considered the equal of any of the men who made up the clique of the wealthy and the powerful, it was upon the ranks of the ruling that he aimed his fiercest barbs. The ruling class of San Francisco's business and social world did not escape his attentions. Stung again and again by his acid pen, they called him "Bitter Bierce."

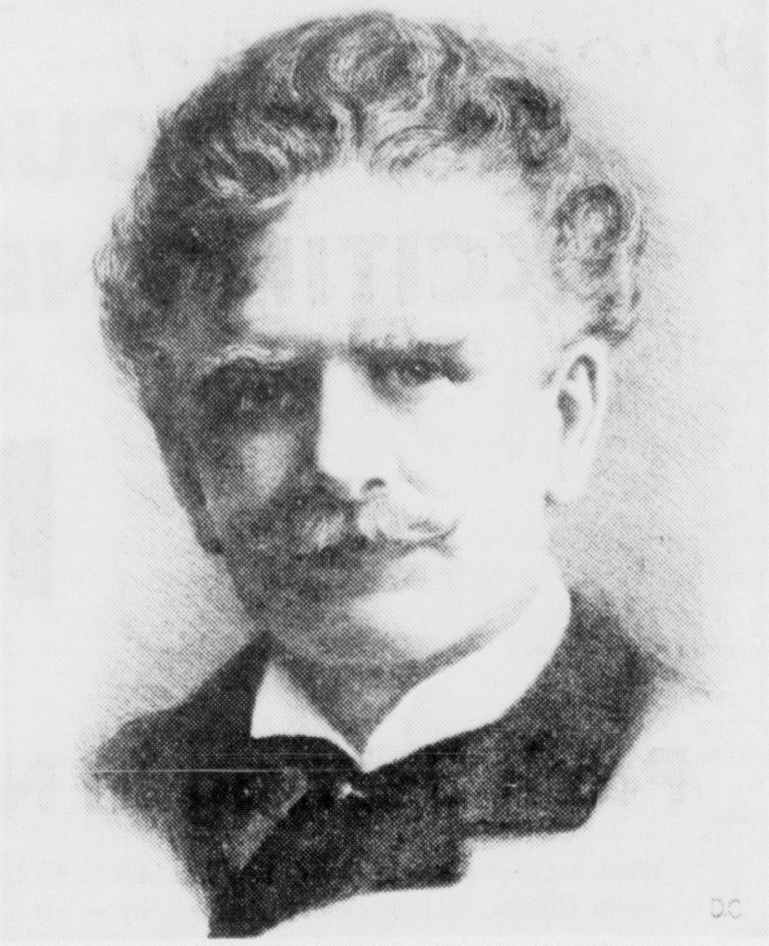
Frequently he was attacked physically and forced to defend himself. And he kept his office door locked, a dueling pistol on his desk.

BUT HIS fellow writers, and many others, respected his wit, honesty, courage and his dislike of pretense and sham. So did many others, who enjoyed his thrusts at pomposity and admired his literary talents.

His ride to San Francisco was spent largely in perusing the Examiner and his own column, not out of admiration for what he had written but in search of changes that might have been inflicted by space-minded editors or errors that might have been committed by typographers.

His regular seat was on the second coach back, west side, so that the morning sun did not glare upon the newspaper page. He avoided the smoking car favored by many of the commuters because he was asthmatic.

AND EVEN though his position as a member of the commuter elite was recognized, he generally rode in silence. His mind was too busy planning the next assault upon a strutting buffoon or unprincipled miscreant for idle conversation.



AMBROSE BIERCE was a handsome man, fair in complexion, with a heavy head of curly hair, and with a mustache carefully waxed at the ends. This portrait by Douglas Crane captures the handsome Bierce much as fellow commuter William T. Ortman remembers him, although it was dated some years prior to those contacts.

Suddenly, in the fall of 1912, he resigned his position with the Examiner and disappeared from San Rafael and San Francisco.

A fellow journalist saw him in El Paso, Tex., in the early winter of 1913, describing him as seeming very tired. According to this acquaintance, Bierce announced his intention of going into Mexico to observe the revolutionary fighting there.

ATTEMPTS TO dissuade him failed.

There is no record of Bierce ever being seen again after he shook hands with that journalist friend and walked away down that El Paso street.

In 1915, Fremont Older, editor and owner of the San Francisco Bulletin, sent James H. Wilkins, a native of San Rafael and a very competent reporter, to Mexico to search for Bierce or to learn the details of his demise.

WILKINS WROTE that, contrary to those writers who had alleged that Bierce had gone to Mexico to join with Pancho Villa's guerrillas, the American had actually served on the staff of a government army. Other investigators have written similarly. And Wilkins also wrote that Bierce ultimately had been captured by the Villa forces and executed.

Reporting an alleged interview with a man who claimed to have witnessed Bierce's death before the firing squad, Wilkins said the one-time dandy and literary light of the San Francisco Bay Area died before the firing squad calmly, arms folded, unafraid, courageous to the end.

And there was no grave, wrote Wilkins. For the Mexican rebels did not bother to bury the dead, but instead left the bodies to the buzzards.

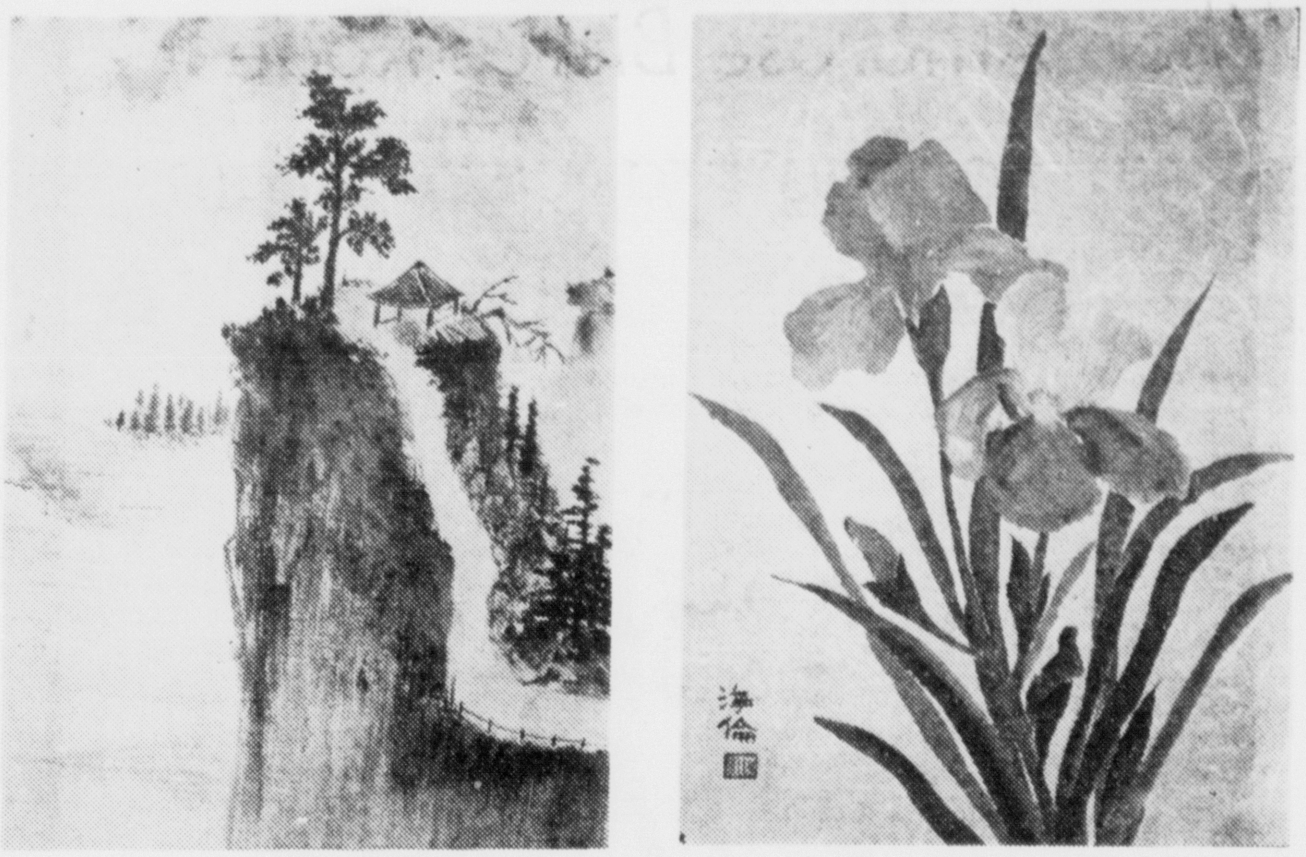
Oriental Art In The West

Caucasians Borrow From Style Of Chinese Masters

By GIL PEARSON



TWO PAINTINGS by Helen Loudon of Mill Valley demonstrate the delicacy of line and silhouette and the air of serenity that mark artwork done in the centuries-old manner of the Chinese masters.

However great the influence of Western arts on contemporary China, it can hardly surpass the influence of her own arts on the West.

For one thing, there is the vast Caucasian student drive to grasp the simplicity of expression which characterizes Chinese portrayal.

Marin student Helen Loudon says:

"The natural effects of light and shade are almost wholly absent in this art, which relies rather on its incomparable mastery of line and silhouette. Joyfully, Oriental paintings depict life's moments of serenity and quiet. It is this quality which enticed me into adopting the hobby of rendering simple statements via Oriental techniques with ink and brush."

MY INTERVIEW with Miss Loudon progressed over munchings of skewered lamb kebabs at the Tiburon Lodge which exhibits her Far East art.

Her opening observation was that while Chinese paintings are simple in form, it actually takes years of production to master the technique.

"I am only a student and have lots of work ahead before I can hope for recognition," she confided, obviously surprised over any interest of the press in her efforts.

As a full-time secretary, her story does have dramatic substance for Marin men and women who work every day and "hobby" in between times. Her drive is appealing because she has the fortitude to exhibit competitively early attempts alongside showings of more experienced artists. It all adds up to good old Yankee initiative of the down-to-earth, up-an'-at-'em variety.

And where Helen Loudon can actually ring up sales, her probe for the fuller life becomes meaningful and inspiring to those who yet hesitate to round out their 8-to-5 routines with some challenging hobby.

THE ORIGINS of Chinese paintings are lost. Centuries of development preceded the earliest specimens found.

While Chinese painting never consistantly followed the rigid

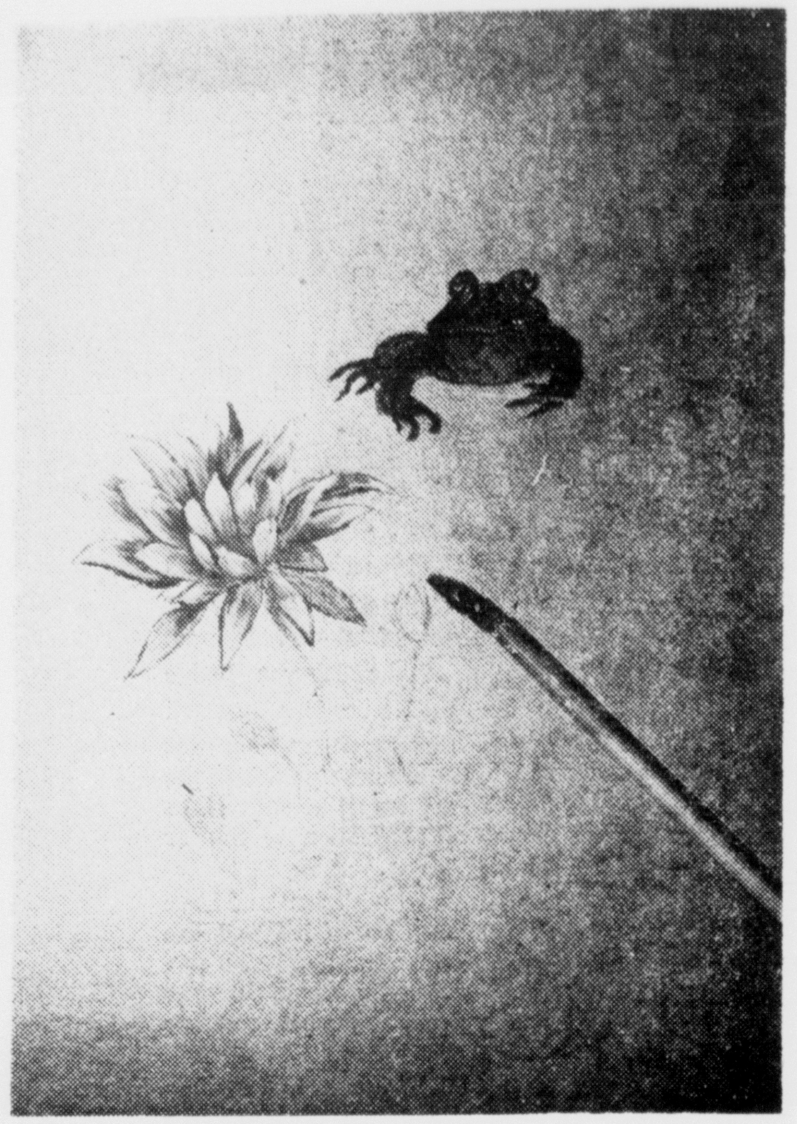
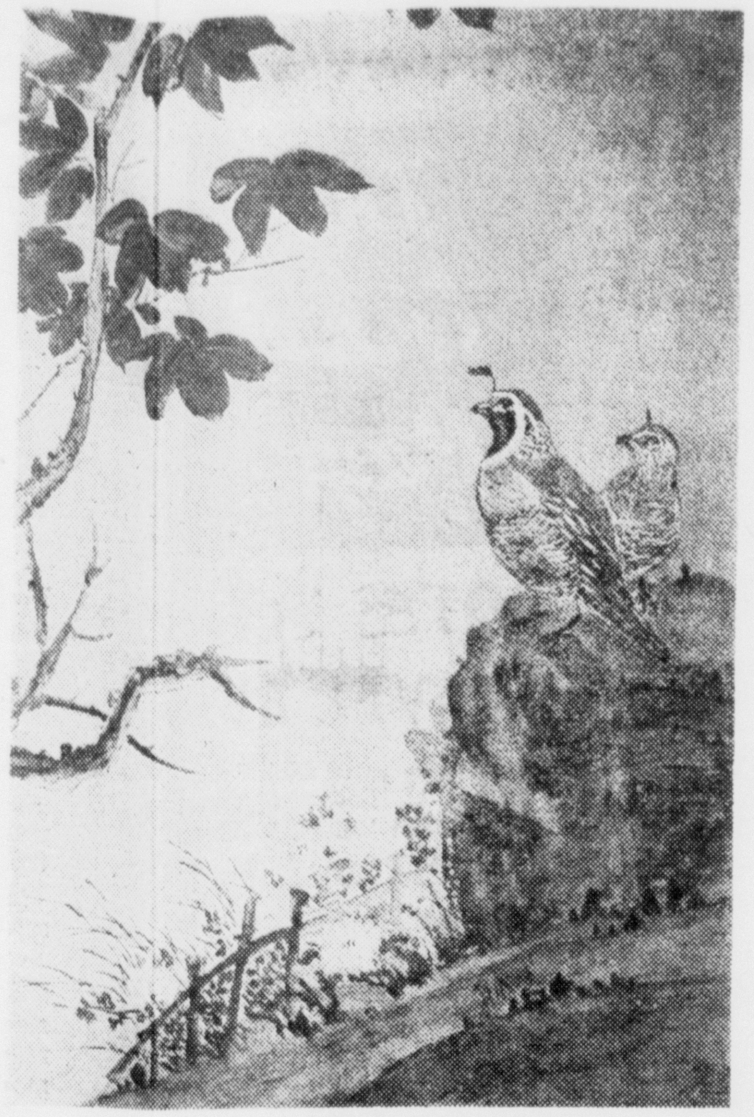
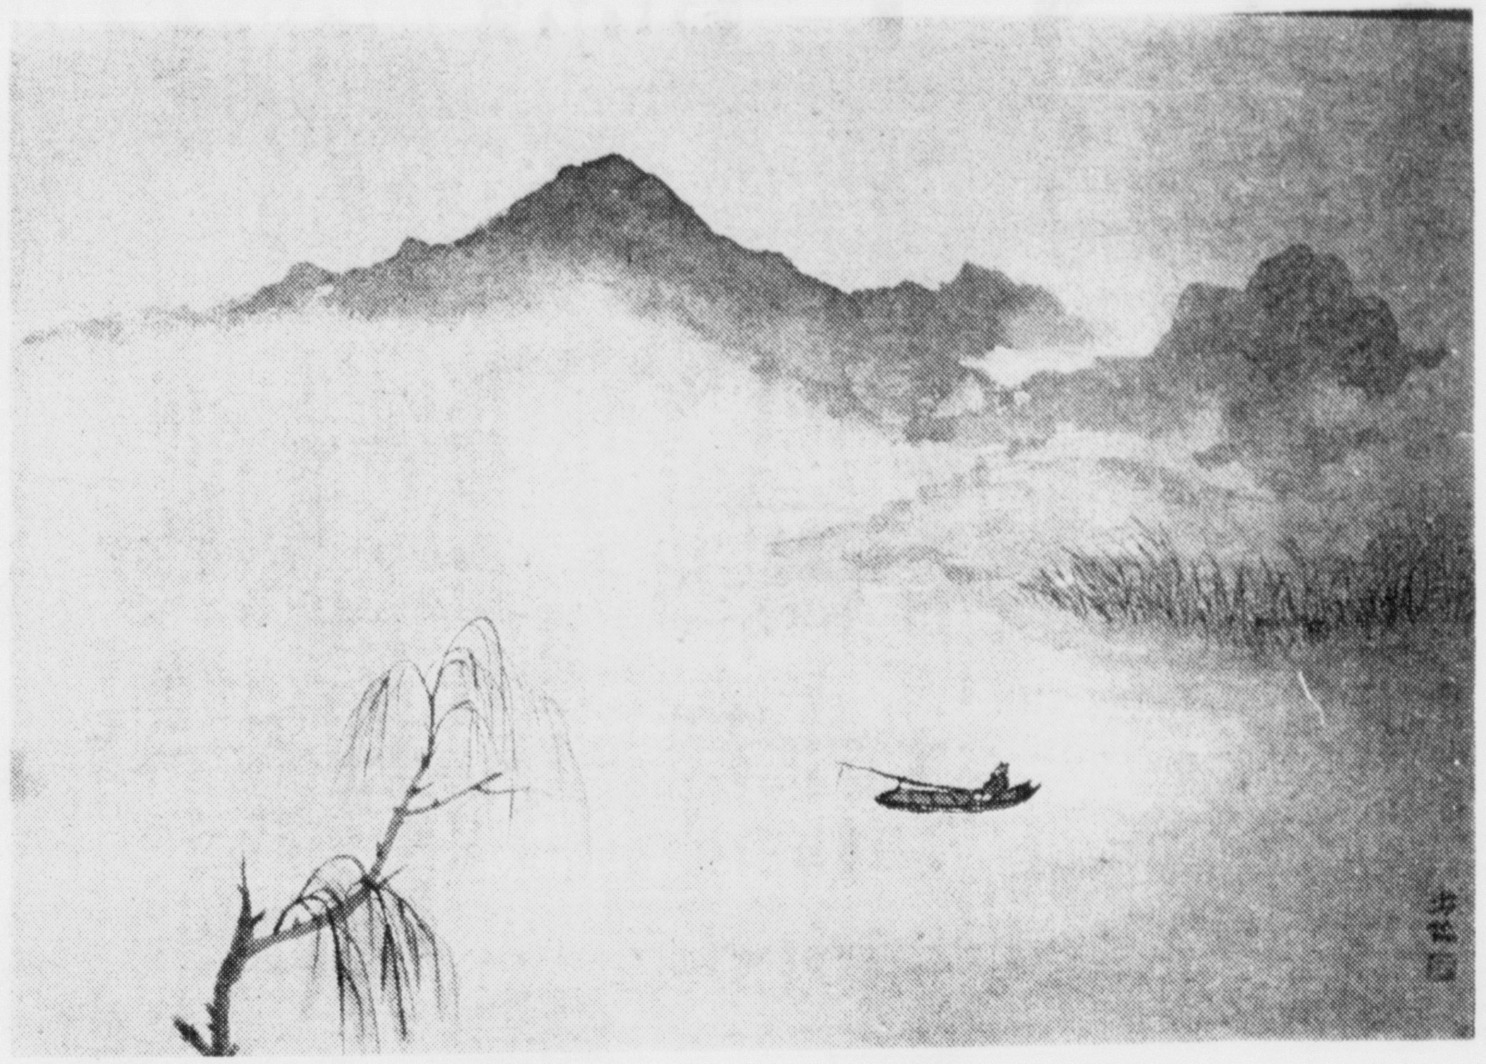
DEPTH IS GAINED in this Helen Loudon painting done in the Chinese style by the figure and trees done with strokes painted on linen by a vertically-held brush. Shaded inclines and rocks were made with blunt, unrestricted strokes.



A PAINTING under way on gold paper features a dark green frog with light green and white water lily. Pads, reeds and a dragonfly are yet to be added by the artist.



STUDENTS OF Chinese art learn to paint birds by using the No. 1 brush for beak, eyes, legs and feathers, and No. 3 brush for other parts. Here Miss Loudon has worked on gold paper.



USING WATERCOLOR paper, Helen Loudon has created for this painting a drifting fog effect as a dividend resulting from laying on a blue mountain with "graduated soggy" brush strokes. (Photos by Gil Pearson)

laws of Western perspective, a highly organized system of representing objects in space was evolved.

Landscapes reached their peak during the Sung dynasty. Masterpieces were done in ink, sometimes with white and color added and sometimes in monotone on scrolls of absorbent silk or paper — the vertical hanging scroll (the chih), and the horizontal panoramic scroll (the heng).

Early outstanding artists in this phase included Ma Yuan, Ma Lin, Hsia Kuei, Li Ti and Kuo Hsi.

"JUST WHAT is the basic difference between Eastern and Western painting technique?" we asked the demure Miss Loudon.

"The handling of the brush," she replied with considerable conviction. "Initially it is difficult to hold it properly. One easy way is to grip it horizontally between your thumb, index and middle fingers. Then move your ring finger up to support the brush holder and in turn move your little finger up to rest against the ring finger.

(On the chance you are still with us, dear reader, we'll carry on):

"Then turn the brush to the vertical position. Rest your wrist lightly on the table and lift your elbow about three inches. When manipulating the brush do not only move the fingers but move your whole arm. This method allows a wider range of movement and gives a more accurate motion of the brush."

"IN CHINESE painting," she continued, "gradation of shades is achieved in one single stroke as a result of a special technique of soaking colors with the brush.

"The goldfish, for example, is painted with only a few strokes. To lay on a stroke, in this case, the brush is first soaked with diluted yellow, then with vermilion, and lastly the tip of the brush is dipped into red.

"A slanting stroke will thus include three colors intermingling harmoniously throughout."

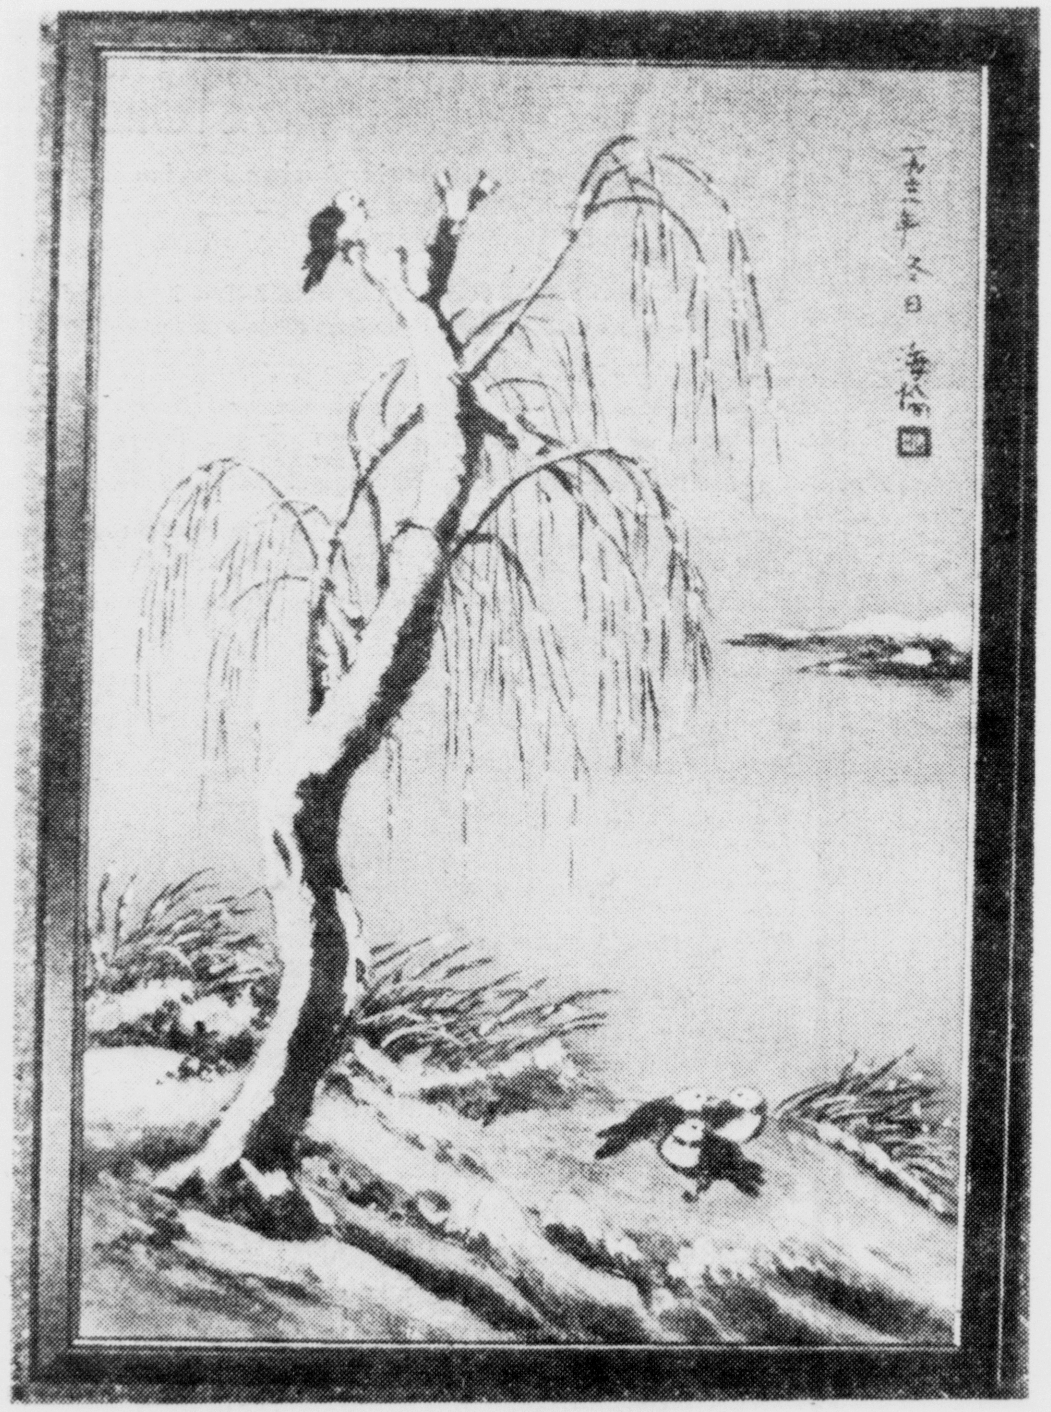
According to our featured student, bamboo — in the Chinese concept — signifies a perfect gentleman who is upright and humble and will not submit to force. It is straight and hollow within.

When painting a picture of bamboo, every stroke is done by using the vertical brush method just the same as doing calligraphy, requiring entirely arm movement which must be decisive and strong. That is why many Chinese scholars are expert in bamboo painting.

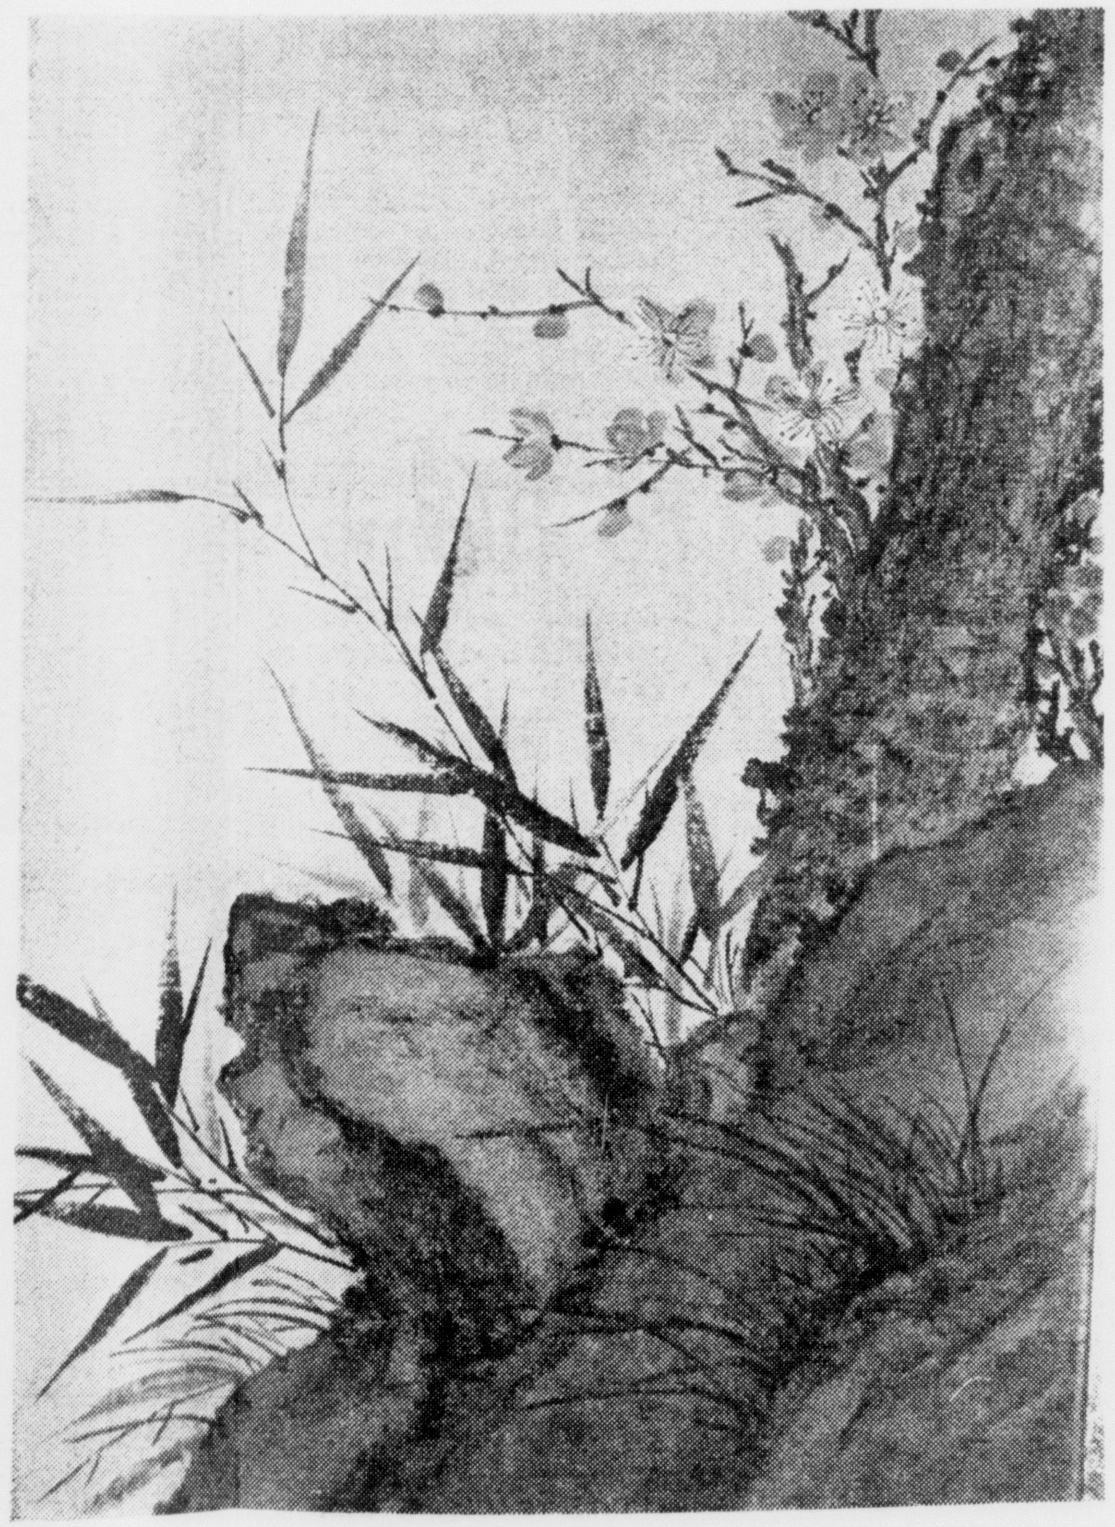
HELEN LOUDON studies Chinese watercolor painting under the tutelage of Peiping-born Madeleine Fu at her Town and Country Village studio in Strawberry. Miss Loudon was born in San Rafael and now lives in Mill Valley on a precipitous slope deep in the woods.

Well traveled, she is familiar with Europe and the Far East.

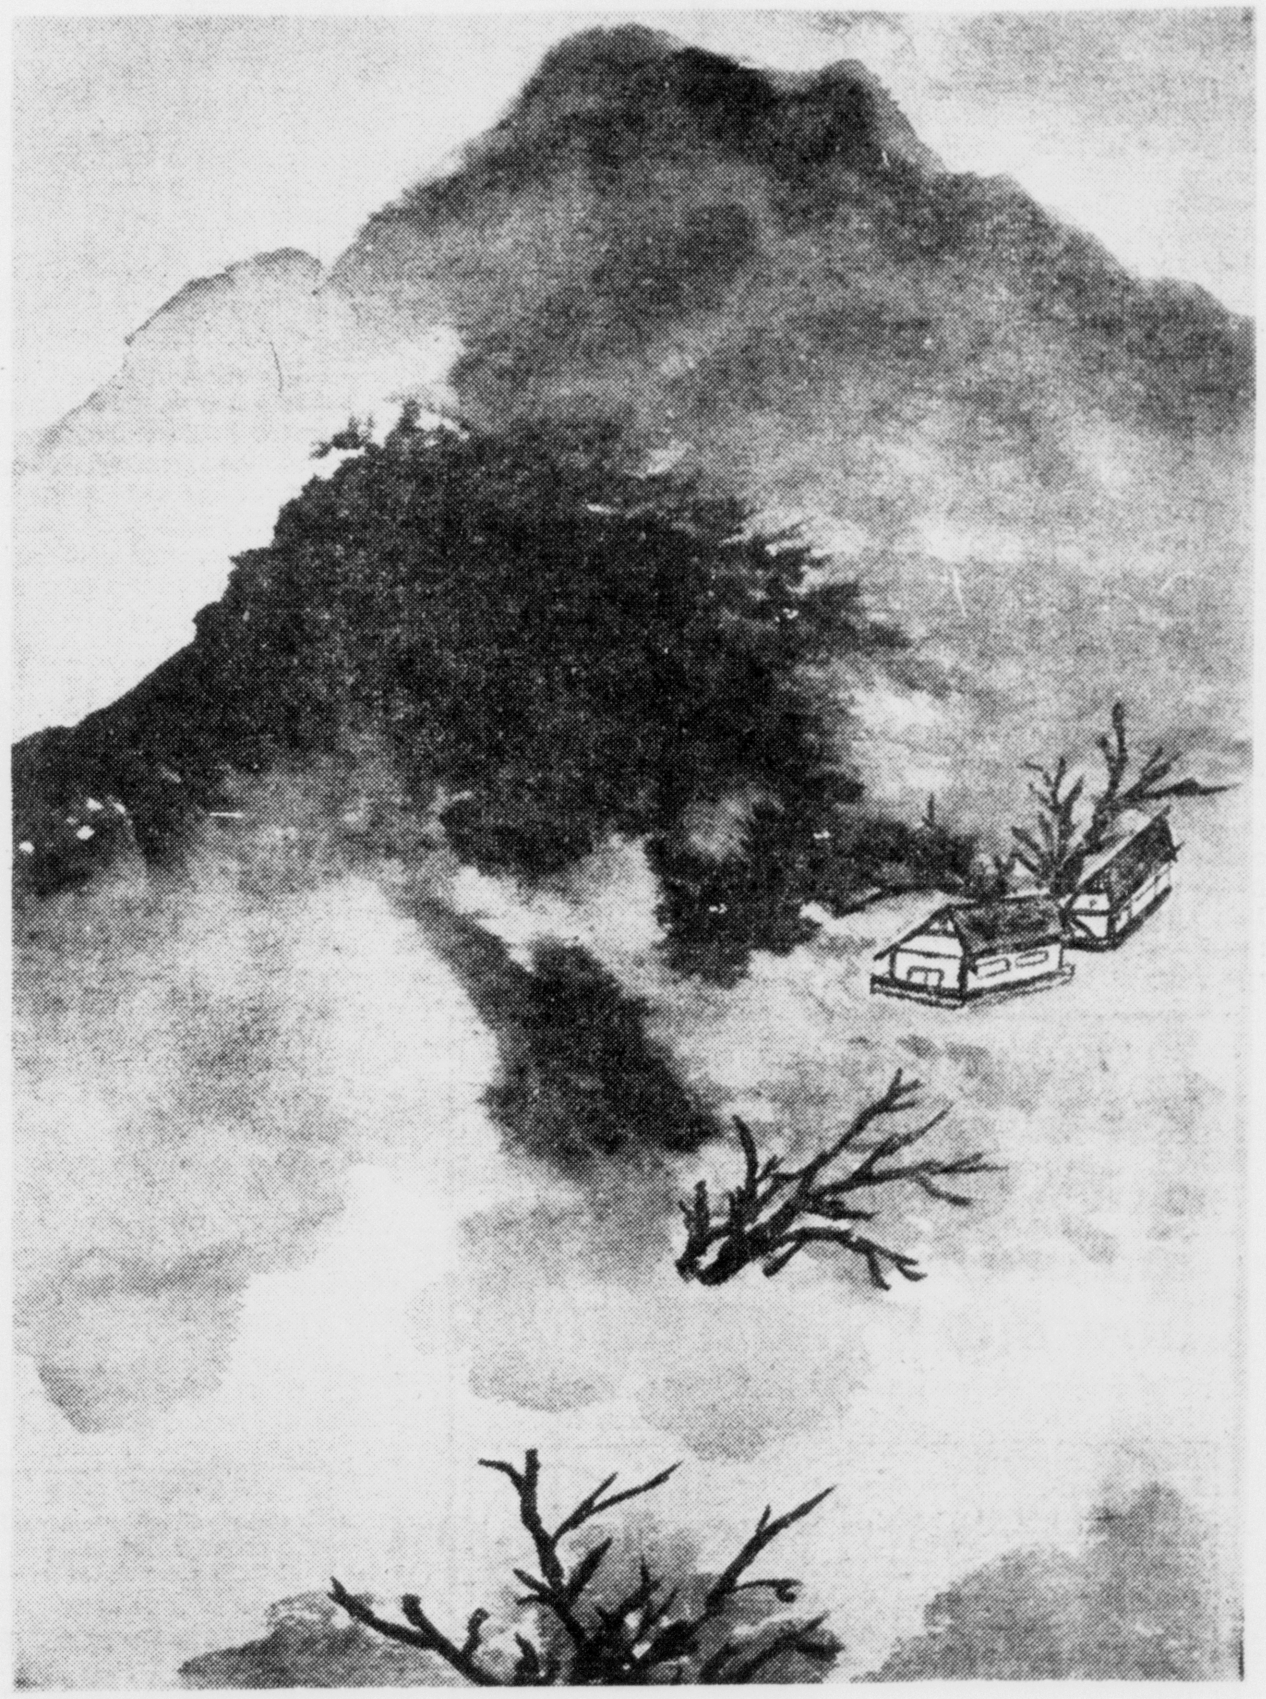
Her "chop" (Chinese equivalent of a rubber stamp) was made overnight for her in Formosa. Made of ivory and about two inches long, it spells out her first name in Chinese lettering. She uses it to sign her paintings.



TO BRING OFF a wintry touch in this painting, artist Helen Loudon has used a plastic white against pale blue water. Her chop or signature, made in Formosa, appears at upper right.



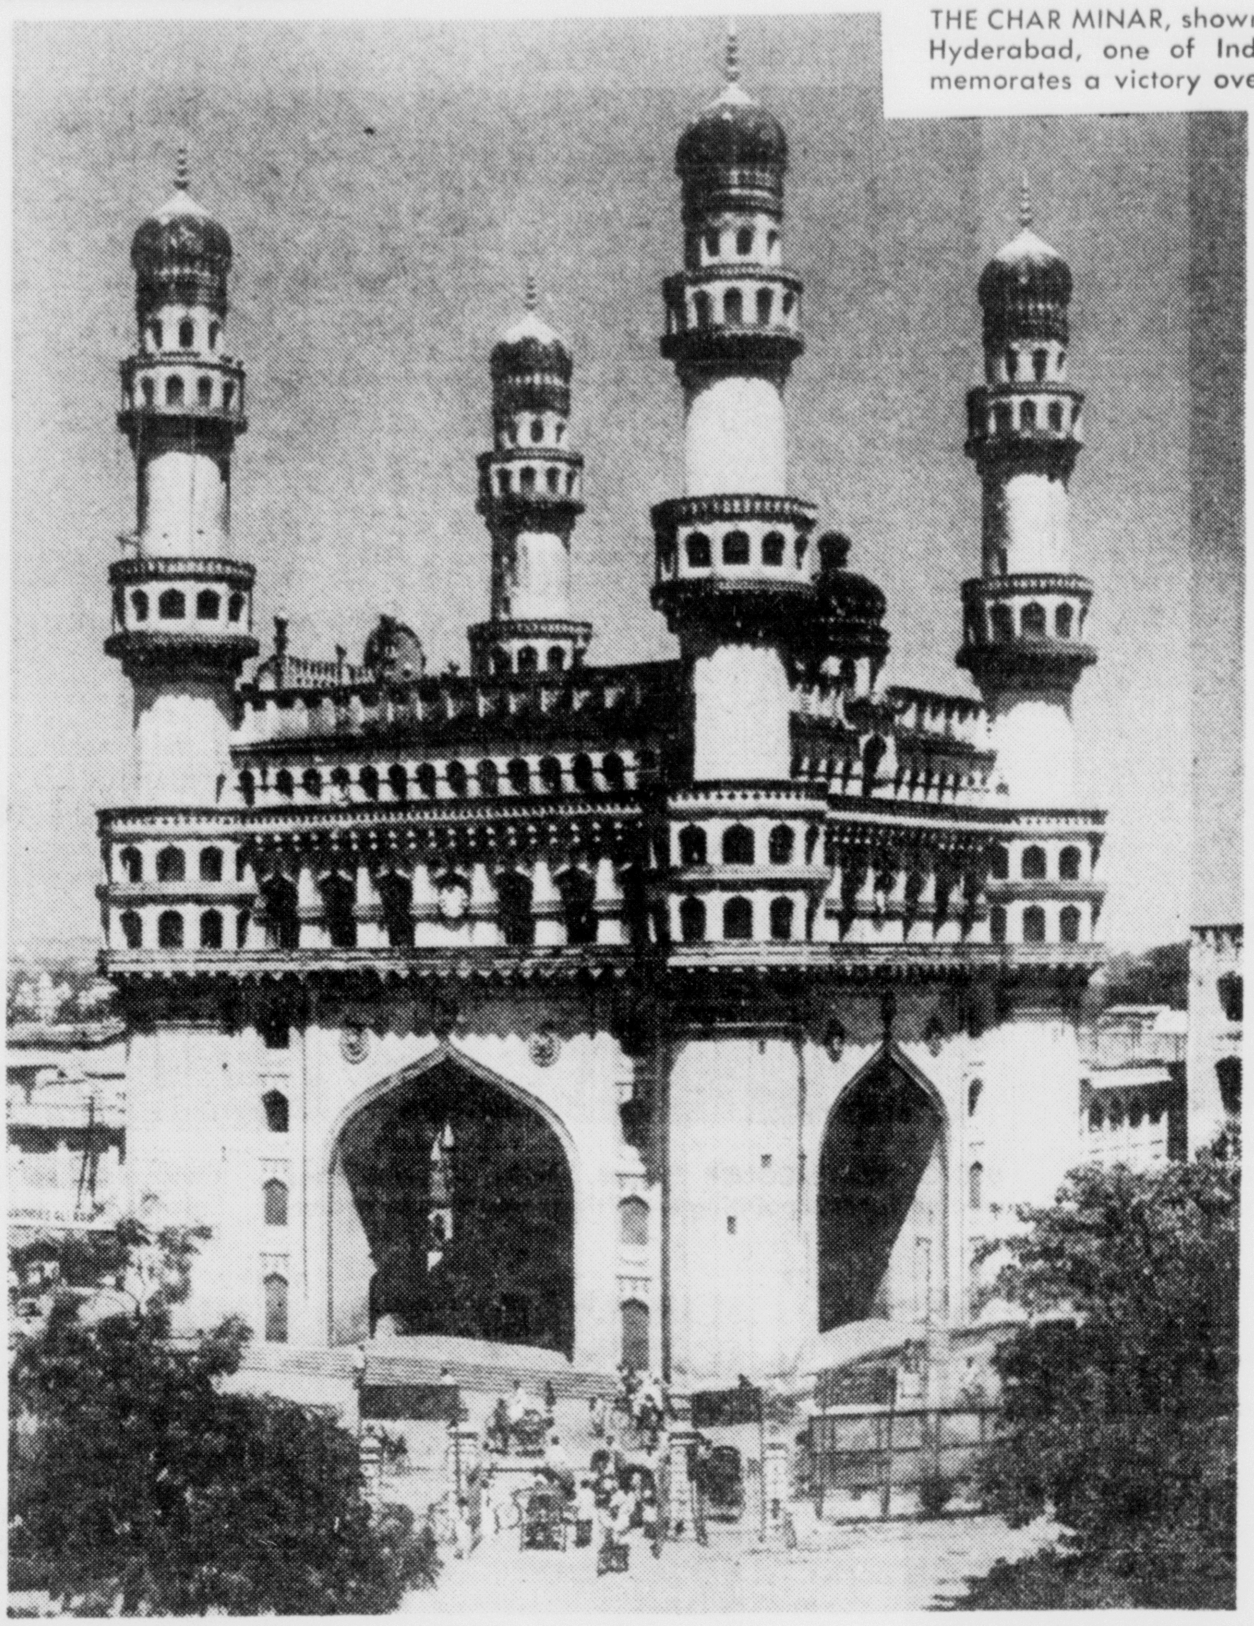
PLUM BLOSSOMS develop from writing the letter S with a No. 3 brush soaked with a vermilion color to which is added red, white or yellow. A diluted yellow then washes from the flowers' center for blending.



THE EFFECT OF a wild storm has been achieved here with slanted strokes for black and gray mountains that dominate a "Grandma Moses" dwelling and tree produced in appealing simplicity with vertical brush.

India's Exotic Hyderabad

It Belongs On Itinerary To The East



THE CHAR MINAR, shown at left, is among the landmarks of Hyderabad, one of India's most exotic cities, and commemorates a victory over the plague in 1591.

All of the romance of the East, plus a breezy, bracing climate makes Hyderabad, fifth largest of India's cities, one of the first to put on your itinerary.

Exotic Hyderabad, about two and one half hours from Delhi by plane, has Persian overtones in its architecture and a princely past, and it stands on a plateau 1,500 feet high to make it comfortable almost year-around.

THE TOWN'S dominant structure is the Char Minar, an Eastern "Arch of Triumph" which is 180 feet high, crowned by four minarets, and commemorates a battle won against the plague in 1591.

For about $1 you can buy a dozen delicate bright glass bangles; slightly higher in price are the metal bangles with semi-precious stones, those in lacquer-ware and hundreds of other styles.

IN THE OTHER lanes of the bazaar are stalls where heady perfume oils are sold in tiny vials. Saris of every conceivable color and pattern are displayed on shelves or string up overhead like lustrous, graceful banners.

Local craftsmen also make unusual bidriware. This combines metals embedded into an alloy and fashioned into boxes, ashtrays, buttons, brooches and the like.

One of the top sightseeing attractions in town is the Salar Jung Museum, named for the former prime minister whose collection it houses. And did he collect! There are furnishings from France, paintings from Italy, toys from America, and more.

BEST OF ALL, in this museum are the outstanding jades, daggers, swords and swagger sticks, that used to belong to some of India's mightiest rulers, the priceless Oriental rugs, and jewel-like miniature paintings from various places in India.

Separated from Hyderabad only by the vast Hussainsager Lake is Secunderabad, a former military garrison. About five miles west of the city is the imposing and almost impenetrable Golconda Fort, which was taken only once, after a decade of fighting, by Aurangzeb in the 17th Century. From the neighboring diamond mines came such multi-carat sparklers as the Kohinoor and Orloff and also the gem which was to become the unlucky Hope Diamond.

The tombs of 16th and 17th Century rulers are near the fort in neat symmetrical gardens. Some of these have their own mosques and minarets.

After a day's sightseeing in Hyderabad and surrounding areas you can relax in a hotel, appropriately enough, with a princely past — the Ritz. A former palace of the second son of the Nizam, this hotel stands on a hill overlooking the city: the rates are not royal, however. For about $8.60 per day you can stay here with all your meals included.

Maybe A Mattress Is To Blame

Are you one of those people who never have a good night's sleep when you're staying at a hotel or motel?

If so, you have millions of fellow sufferers, according to Sally Ames, director of the Spring Air Sleep Institute, Chicago, who noted that the inability to sleep in unfamiliar surroundings is one of the most common sleep complaints.

"But if you're bothered by insomnia away from home, don't conclude that the ailment is all in your head; it could be in the bed," Miss Ames said.

REFERRING TO a recent survey, she reported that the average age of a motel mattress is 14 years, while hotel mattresses average 15 years old. In extreme cases, some 25-year-old mattresses were found.

"These average figures go far beyond the recommended nine years for mattresses in commercial use and may account for the sleeping problems suffered by guests," she said.

Of course, not all hotels or motels keep mattresses until they're ready to fall apart. Some replace mattresses regularly every seven or eight years, but these seem to be in the minority.

"TRAVELERS HAVE taken their lumps long enough, and now they're fully awake to the fact that sleeping accommodations on the road leave a lot to be desired," Miss Ames said.

But a change is in the making. Realizing the traveler's desire for better sleeping conditions, hotel and motel managers are gradually upgrading their bedding to larger sizes and better quality.

Supersize bedding, for instance, now accounts for two-thirds of all bedding sales to new hotels and motels. Larger mattresses are also specified by one-third of the older establishments when they replace old bedding.

"IN PLACE OF two standard twin-size beds in a double room," Miss Ames explained, "the hotel or motel will most likely install two extra-long double beds, giving each person a maximum of sleeping comfort." King-size and queen-size beds are also increasing in use.

When they replace mattresses, the managers will almost always buy a better quality product than they had originally. They also specify firm mattresses rather than "extra firm" or "soft."

The Spring Air authority noted that while a premium mattress made for household use can be guaranteed for 20 years, a hotel-motel mattress takes much more abuse and thus won't last as long.

"While keeping a hotel or motel mattress for 14 years may save money, it certainly won't make many satisfied customers," she said.

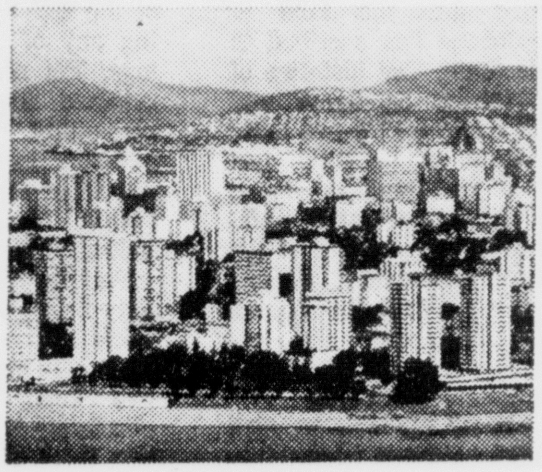
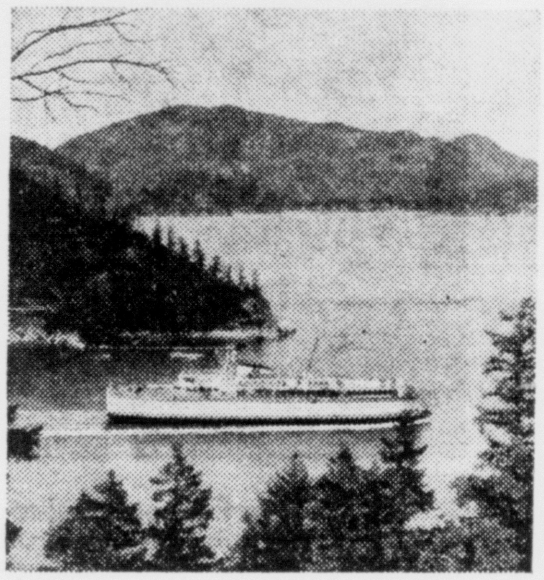
5 days in Vancouver

and its surrounding vacationland

1 Discover why Vancouver is called "one of the world's most beautiful cities." Spend the morning strolling 1000-acre Stanley Park with its cool forest trails, magnificent gardens, zoos, beaches and totem poles. At Brockton Point, savor the full sweep of Vancouver Harbour: soaring city skyline on one hand, towering mountains on the other . . . freighters, tugs and pleasure craft jouncing and gleaming in the breeze. You can lunch with a view of the ocean at a teahouse in the park — or choose one of the new downtown restaurants. Then glimpse more scenic beauty in Queen Elizabeth Park, or take the seaside drive around Point Grey, past stately mansions, luxuriant gardens and the University of British Columbia campus. After dark, ride a gondola car up Grouse Mountain — or head for a rooftop restaurant — for a dazzling view of city and harbour.



2 Drive north of the city across Lions Gate Bridge and travel the Upper Levels Highway to Horseshoe Bay. Here, board a modern car-ferry for a 50-minute cruise across spectacular, mountain-rimmed Howe Sound to Langdale on the Sunshine Coast. Sheltered coves and fishing villages adjoin the highway as you wend north to holiday centres like Sechelt and Pender Harbour. Great salmon fishing in these waters . . . dozens of uncrowded spots to picnic, swim and relax. If you can tear yourself away from this charming peninsula, you'll be rewarded by a return cruise of Howe Sound by twilight . . . dazzling shimmer on the open sea, framing wooded islands and catching seagulls as they soar.



3 Enjoy Vancouver's special points of interest. Take a trip to the Maritime Museum and see the historic St. Roche, first ship to travel the Northwest Passage both ways. Nearby, you can browse amid the relics in the new Centennial Museum, and take in one of several daily shows at the H. R. MacMillan Planetarium. After lunch, take time for sunning and swimming — Vancouver has roughly eleven miles of sandy beach, within easy reach of any part of the city. Other activities include golf on some of the world's most scenic courses, and salmon fishing virtually within sight of your hotel. For dinner, the only question is "What's your preference?" Vancouver's restaurants offer every type of dining — from the delights of Chinatown to British, German and Italian cuisine.

4 Travel east of the city for the pastoral beauty and historic sites of the Fraser Valley, an alluvial plain adjoining the Fraser River for nearly 100 miles. A 4-lane freeway leads through the Valley centre — watch for signs indicating Fort Langley and Cultus Lake Provincial Park. At Hope, the rugged Fraser Canyon begins. Drive north to Boston Bar and you can take an aerial tramway across the turbulent waters to North Bend. Returning, cross the Agassiz-Rosedale Bridge west of Hope, and visit famed Harrison Hot Springs. Following Highway 7 west, you'll pass Hatzic Lake and see the bell tower of Westminster Seminary above the city of Mission. Before returning to Vancouver, see the Japanese Friendship Garden in the "Royal City" of New Westminster.

The Valley's southwest corner includes the sandy beaches of Boundary Bay, White Rock and Crescent Beach. This area is best reached by Highway 499, and could easily occupy a day in itself.

5 Slow down and discover the pleasures of downtown Vancouver. You'll find fascinating shops brimming with British imports, antiques and curios, Eskimo carvings and other objects of Canadiana. Enjoy lunch in a charming continental restaurant on Robson Street. Visit the public Art Gallery and a few of the many private galleries. Then plan an evening of sparkling entertainment. Vancouver's night clubs feature top shows from across the continent . . . the Queen Elizabeth Theatre houses major musical and theatrical events, and the adjoining Playhouse has a resident company offering polished professional theatre throughout the year.

Vancouver has glitter and glamor to match its spectacular scenic beauty — for a free, full-color preview, mail the coupon.

The Preacher Fails As A Practitioner

THE DUKE OF PALERMO AND OTHER PLAYS by Edmund Wilson; Farrar, Straus and Giroux, 250 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Jerry Megahan.

When it comes to destroying literary reputations, nothing succeeds quite like a writer who has lost all sense of critical proportions.

And when the victim of his own logorrhea is Edmund Wilson, the great gray panjandrum of American literary criticism, the only decent feeling is one of I-wish-it-had-never-happened.

Wilson, unfortunately, like most great literary critics, has always been a much more gifted preacher than he ever was a practitioner. I suppose it is the difference between the ability to analyze and the genius to intuit.

Wilson's critical pieces probably will be studied as long as there is an English language; his own prose is almost unread within his own lifetime. The situation is not unjust.

"The Duke of Palermo" can best be described as a bastard cross between "The Male Animal," Elizabethan pastiche and very, very bad George Bernard Shaw. I personally doubt that any of the parents would care to recognize the offspring.

The second play, "Dr. McGrath," is embarassing esthetically, theologically and dramatically. However, if presented as a send-up of Arthur Miller it has certain possibilities.

"Osbert's Career," or "The Poet's Progress," was started in 1926 and finished in 1968. If anything in the book deserves the sanctity of hardcovers, this is it.

Osbert has the makings of a good second act but the fourth and final act is so much belaboring of a point which has been made earlier and more often by far better writers.

Wilson's weakness is to write lengthy speeches for characters who have very little to say. He tends to oversimplify his ideas for what he conceives of as a mass audience. It doesn't work and his major spokesmen sound like Hubert Humphrey on a prolonged bender.

The book concludes with an open letter to Mike Nichols which could only have been published by Wilson's worst enemy.

Farrar, Straus and Giroux are obviously bent on publishing everything up to and including Wilson's laundry lists. At $6.95, this is easily the most forgettable book of the season.

The Unhappy Plight Of Splendid People

THE INDESTRUCTIBLE IRISH by John Philip Cohane; Meredith Press, 250 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Short-time visitors to Ireland come away with pleasant memories of lush countryside, friendly people and a quiet serenity that can be found few other places on earth.

American writer John Philip Cohane who went to Ireland expecting to stay 10 days and remained 10 years says such impressions are superficial and misleading.

Underneath its charming exterior, he claims in his book, "The Indestructible Irish," Ireland is a sick land. Only the stubborn resilience of the mass of Irish people has enabled them to survive.

The malady gripping the island, he charges, is the result of partition, ugly religious rifts, shamefully neglectful government and one of the last remaining vistages of British imperialism.

He claims that in Northern Ireland, bereft of freedom and independence, an overlapping coalition of the Union Party and the Orange Order has conspired to also deprive the Catholic minority of its civil rights, largely through gerrymandering. With 36 per cent of the population, he notes, the Catholics hold less than 4 per cent of the state offices and jobs.

In the Republic of Ireland to the south, where he lives, Cohane finds conditions no more heartening.

There, he says, even with the separation, a Protestant Anglo-Irish "ascendancy" more committed to Great Britain than to Ireland remains top dogs socially and economically, working in a strange alliance with the Roman Catholic hierarchy and upper crust that has a vested interest in the status quo and utilizes its political influence accordingly.

The results, he adds, include a third-rate educational system, an abysmal standard of living, an absence of industry and shortage of employment, and a general air of depression and dispirit. Plus a continuation of the migratory movement that drains Ireland of its most promising young people.

The accomplishments of these Irish who have left their native sod for opportunities abroad are reviewed by Cohane as proof of what they might have contributed to their own country.

SCENES SUCH as this never fail to charm the visitor to Ireland, but, says John Philip Cohane, author of "The Indestructible Irish," they also betray the backwardness of the country and the low standard of living of its people.

"The Irish," he asserts, "should be doing far, far better than they are . . . Much of what is going on in Ireland today constitutes nothing more nor less than a national disgrace."

So brainwashed are the Irish, Cohane claims, that for the most part they are not even aware of the glorious past of their own people. Cohane reviews the golden age of Ireland when the Celts were the most active and influential of all western people, highly cultured, fiercely free, zealously Christian. He reviews, too, the subsequent heroic struggles of the later Irish to throw off foreign yokes, making the point that the principal leaders of those rebellions were more often Protestants than Catholics and contrasting the beliefs and actions of both groups today with what they were then.

Cohane, while distressed by present conditions, is confident that the indestructible Irish will not continue to countenance domination by either London or Rome indefinitely. He advises his readers against surprise if they read in their newspaper headlines some day that "all hell has broken out again in Ireland" as the long-suffering common folk resort to force to end partition and injustice.

"Unhappy is the man or nation whose destiny depends on the will of another," said the great patriot, Theobald Wolfe Tone, a Protestant, incidentally.

Cohane writes with genuine sympathy for the common people of Ireland and with real anger for their oppressors. In the clutch of such emotions, he sometimes overstates, oversimplifies and overlooks.

For instance, without excusing their tactics, it would seem that the Protestant majority in Ulster might be entitled to some misgivings about being incorporated into the kind of system Cohane has ascribed to the Free State. The histories of such countries as Spain and Portugal might well cause them some worry as to their own future as a minority in a Catholic dominated united country. Despite the prestige of the Protestant ascendancy, Cohane makes it clear that the Roman Catholic hierarchy is unquestionably the most influential body politically in Dublin.

The hatred for the English that colors so much Irish thinking also prevents Cohane from giving full credence to London's changes in thinking that have occurred since World War II, Anguilla notwithstanding.

Cohane is confident that the Irish can enjoy the full benefits of the 20th Century without losing any of their present blessings. Yet no other country has retained that enviable air of tranquility and peace after plunging into the hurry-up scramble for the dollar or the pound that comes with modernization.

Perhaps, however, Cohane may be right, and the Irish will work out a system by which they can enjoy the best of the two kinds of world. He is absolutely right in his contention that these fine and splendid people are deserving of no less.

Tim Jeal's 2nd Novel

SOMEWHERE BEYOND REPROACH by Tim Jeal; McGraw-Hill, 155 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

Jeal's second novel is a very precise, curiously hot and cold book, with all the corners tucked neatly away.

The theme, a man's obsessive love for a former sweetheart who has married his best friend, is handled dispassionately until the very end, and it is this quality of chilling detail along with the neatness in style that fails to put the spark of excitement in the book.

Not until the end, when Harry, the main character, realizes that his obsessive love is so far removed from what Dinah, the girl, may be or could be, does the novel catch fire, and by then, I think, it is far too late, even though this is a short book.

Young Jeal is an excellent craftsman who pays attention to detail and mood, but much of the book is doggedly introspective and slow. It takes an effort to stick with him, and the end result is not quite worth the effort.

A Time Capsule

HUMOR, WIT AND SATIRE OF THE SEVENTEENTH CENTURY, Dover Press, 454 pages, $2.75. Reviewed by Gary Tischler.

This is another in a series of handsome, off-the-beaten-track permanent paperbacks from Dover Press, and a delightful product it is.

This one originally was published in England in 1883. The collector was John Ashton. It's a marvelous thick array of broadside ballads, jests, light verse, riddles, epigrams, and libels covering a time span of about 60 years.

Like many collections, the book serves a time capsule duty, presenting a vivid picture of period mores and customs.

An appendix is provided along with melodies to some of the ballads and illustrations by the authors.

Long John Writes About His Supernatural Guests

THE PSYCHIC WORLD AROUND US by Long John Nebel with Sanford M. Teller; Hawthorn, 221 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Maxine Keown.

The supernatural has always held a fascination for radio personality John Nebel and such subjects have become something of a specialty on his all-night talk show.

In this book, with the help of Sanford Teller, public relations man and frequent panelist on his program, he recounts what he regards as the most interesting and most baffling of those cases.

The stories he retells are generally familiar ones, already well-publicized — the forecasts of oracle Jeane Dixon, the conversation of Bishop James Pike with his dead son, the alleged contact of Betty and Barney Hill by interplanetary visitors, Peter Hurkos, even the much rehashed Bridey Murphy. Less known mystics and assorted weirdos are also in the cast.

Nebel professes to be a skeptic, but his appraisals, especially his summarization of the Jeane Dixon record and his review of the Bridey Murphy case, would seem to indicate that skepticism is hardly a quality with which he is overly, or even sufficiently, endowed.

His stories make light, amusing reading, if generally a little shopworn by now. But his is not a book to be taken seriously.

How Much Can We Learn Of Urban Problems From Abroad?

By DON KEOWN

TWELVE CITIES by John Gunther; Harper & Row, 370 pages, $6.95.

THE ROVING WINO by Charles H. Gardner; Majestic Press, 134 pages, paperback, $2.75.

"Our cities are in trouble." So sounds the cry, and newspaper headlines and television news cameras confirm it.

Even to the halls of Congress, so often one of the last places to discern the great social truths, has come belated recognition that America's future will be determined not by anti-missile systems or lunar explorations, but by how effectively we confront our critical urban problems.

John Gunther, one of the outstanding journalists of the 20th Century, has gone abroad in quest of answers, studying some of the great cities of other lands for clues as to how they have avoided or fallen into difficulties.

"Twelve Cities" is in the pattern of his immensely successful "Inside" books, but this time he is examining cities, not nations, and he hops about three continents rather than concentrating on one.

Subject cities are London, Paris, Brussels, Rome, Hamburg, Vienna, Warsaw, Moscow, Jerusalem, Beirut, Amman and Tokyo. Each study is a mingling of amusing curiosity facts, at which Gunther is so adept, with more serious analysis of their administrative systems, their sociology and their economies.

In the end, Gunther gives these foreign cities generally better marks than he accords the metropolitan cities of his own land:

"Moscow, with its spotless streets, is far cleaner than New York: it is a great industrial city, but has no smog. Warsaw is a more harmonious community from several points of view than Los Angeles or Dallas. Tel Aviv, Berne and Bruges are better administered than most American cities in an analogous category, and Vienna has more amenities than Baltimore or St. Louis. The gross physical squalor, dilapidation, noise, and filth in the outskirts of several important American cities would not be tolerated in Stockholm, Ankara or even Madrid. . . Even Beirut could show Detroit or Philadelphia a thing or two, and Jerusalem, even if it is an Oriental city, is better run and less offensive to the eye and ear than Pittsburgh or Atlanta."

Yet Gunther's own survey, necessarily somewhat superficial because of the space restriction, makes it clear that the practices and theories of European, African and Asian cities have only limited application to our own. The troubles of U.S. cities, beyond the spiraling birth and growth rates, are usually peculiarly American — our racial discrimination and the resulting eruptions, our addiction to the automobile, our tolerance of the most abject poverty alongside extravagant affluence, our careless waste and pollution of resources, our political corruption on the local level, our propensity for violence, our strangulation of our urban centers with hodgepodge suburban nooses, our worship of all things bigger and taller and faster without regard to whether they are better, our placement of the commercial above the aesthetic.

London's "green belt" encircling its metropolitan environs to provide residents with a "fresh air" breathing band is, for instance, a splendid idea, but beyond the bounds of practicality now for almost every American city.

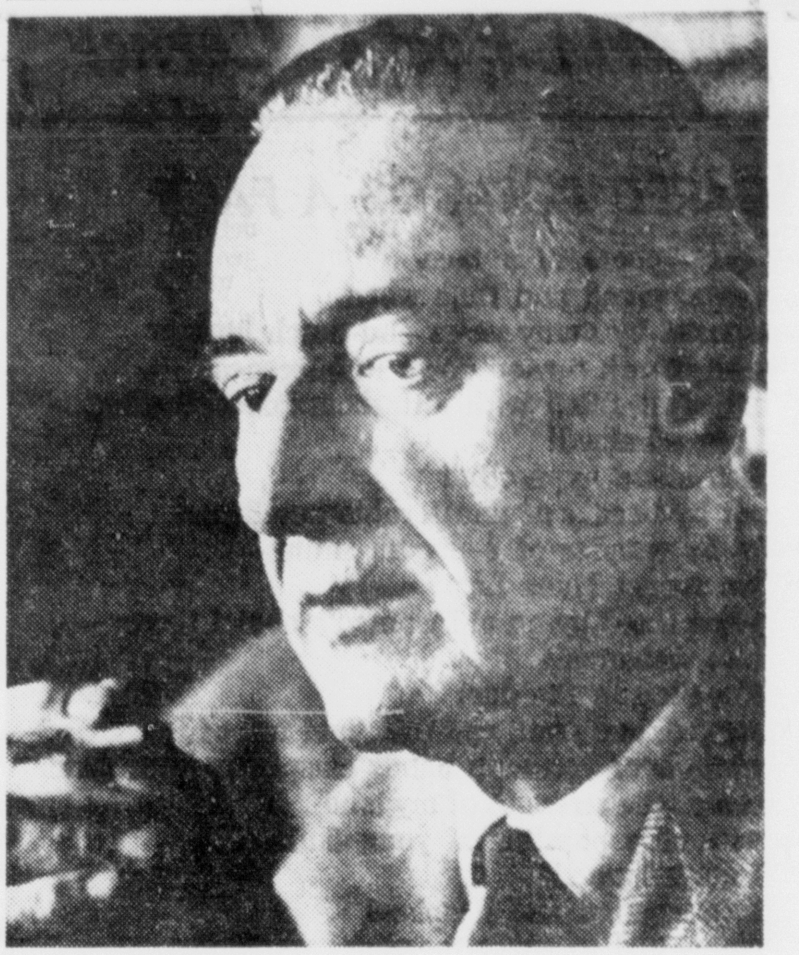
If Gunther succeeds in making a major point, it is his declaration that "good civic health obviously does not lie merely in such realms as the birth rate or the merciless impact of whirling rubber on asphalt and concrete. Public spirit, urban morals, count as well — perhaps more. Here, too, the Europeans are far ahead of us. . . Citizens are law-abiding to a degree, and they have pride in their civic environment. . . We, too, must learn to care for our cities, if only so that they will take better care of us."

Generally, however, Gunther has written a book that is more successful as entertainment (although somewhat less so than his earlier work) than as a sociological document.

One appreciates his observation that "London is like a person who has performed the extreme miracle of getting over old age" and agrees that "this stupendous capital is, in my mind, the greatest metropolis in the world." One differs when he regards with seeming approval Paris' decision to permit a limited construction of semi-skyscrapers, a development that cannot help but do injury to its marvelous civic beauty.

One enjoys the typical Gunther tidbits — Israeli melons are the most succulent in the world, at Amman's new Intercontinental Hotel you can have jasmine in your coffee, Tokyo is a city where dinner in a classic restaurant can easily cost more than $50 a person and where some nightclubs have a $27 cover charge and is the city where the use of expense accounts has reached its apogee, Moscow is a place of an almost eerie silence and where pets are newly popular, in Viennese cafes you are served two glasses of water, Wagner is never played in the magnificent new Warsaw opera house, etc.

But in the end the reader must acknowledge that while Gunther has written his usual amusing book, it is more a prod for action than a direction-giver when it comes to a clean-up of our own urban mess. Ours are American problems demanding American solutions. To date we have moved only sporadically and none too effectively in devising and implementing same. A more comprehensive and sustained approach must be initiated.



"WHAT I HAVE tried to do," writes John Gunther of "Twelve Cities," his newest book, "is to describe with some scope and detail what these cities are like — to give a picture, an estimate of their mood, color, texture, tempo, distinctions, problems, perturbations, implausibilities, as well as to deal with the structure of their politics and government."

CHARLES H. Gardner is a product of a broken and poverty-ridden New York slum home, a black man with only a limited formal education, and a chronic victim of the drink craving that has brought him into frequent confrontation with the law. He is also a man who says "I want to create" and who believes he has found his medium for expression.

As a drifter, Gardner tried his hands at painting, but found he lacked the needed training. His next attempt, at writing, was set back when St. Paul, Minn., police confiscated the manuscript of an unfinished novel. In anger, Gardner wrote two short poems of protest of that action. That work was praised by a prominent man who some time later befriended Gardner. He was thus inspired to take up poetry in earnest, and has been writing poems, in and out of jail, ever since.

Since 1964, he has made Sausalito his home base.

The first book publication of his work is "The Roving Wino," from Majestic Press of Woodland, Calif. Paul Mapes, whose photo of Gardner taken in the county jail in Woodland appears on the book's cover, has also written a foreword, describing the poet as "the hungriest man I ever knew. . . Charles H. Gardner is impossible. He is a heart attack happening before your eyes so you yell 'get this man to a hospital, can't you see he is bleeding. . . ' But that is not really what you mean. Charley knows this. And that is why he is a poet. It is the only way to fly."

The 178 poems in "The Roving Wino" (there is also one short story) are brief, pithy, often biographical, deeply emotional, sometimes crude, rather simplistic, frequently sad but not devoid of humor, and always honest. Readers will either like them totally or disdain them equally strongly. A compromise reaction is most unlikely.

Writes Gardner in "The Fruit Lover" after paying tribute to cherry, apple and orange trees: ". . . And grapes, you mean the most to me/ My only true survival/ With fifty cents I wait each day/ For your liquor store arrival."

But the grapes have a rival for Charley Gardner's affections in his poetry, and he says he has two other completed books scheduled for future publication.

SEBASTIAN KNEIPP was the originator of a system of cold water cures that aroused widespread interest in Europe earlier in this century, and which continues to claim its practitioners and proponents.

Jeanne Keller, a German-born American housewife, business woman and writer, is one such.

She has used Kneipp treatments and variations extensively in her own family, and her experiences have been recorded in a book, "Healing With Water," published by Parker Publishing Co. of West Nyack, N. Y.

The book describes the various baths, sprays, compresses, teas, etc., that Mrs. Keller has used among her own family members and friends with specific maladies, and claims startlingly successful results.

It is the kind of thing the medical profession for the most part regards with skepticism and even dismay — except for the "natural cure" element outside the ranks of the professional establishment and more numerous and more influential in Europe than in this country. One such, Dr. Sabine Koch, has contributed a foreword endorsing the Keller book, which sells for $6.95.

WHILE Charles Angoff, novelist, critic and teacher, has had some 500 poems published, "Memoranda for Tomorrow" represents the first collection of his work to appear in book form.

Angoff, whose verse had won the applause of fellow poets including George Abbe and Arthur Lerner, writes of love and hate, of people, of numbers, of metaphysics, of flowers, and of human attributes and aspirations. His economy of words is a distinctive quality as he rarely wastes a phrase.

Once associated with the old American Mercury during H. L. Mencken's editorship, he is now professor of English at Fairleigh Dickinson University and editor of the Literary Review. He is also vice president of the Poetry Society of America.

Thomas Yoseloff of New York and London is his publisher, and the book sells for $6.

Sleuths & Suspense

TALES OF UNEASE edited by John Burke; Doubleday, 229 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Shirley Graves.

A Crime Club Selection in the "something different" category, this is a chilling collection of short stories chosen, according to the editor, to make the reader uneasy — not terrified or stricken with horror, just uneasy.

The stories are the right length for the person who likes to read a short time before turning out the light at night. But then you may decide to leave the light on.

Or try one at a daytime coffee-break. You will enjoy each one more if you read only one or two at a sitting.

All kinds of stories are included among the 21 tales; some even have happy endings. The unease comes not from obvious danger but because something normal assumes a frightening new role and you are led to see the evil in an everyday object or situation.

My choice for the most unsettling is "Red Rubber Gloves" by Christine Brooke-Rose: a man confined to a wheelchair tells of watching, for over a year, the actions of a pair of red rubber gloves. Their movement is all he can see as he looks down into the kitchen window of the house opposite.

SCARED POEM OF A FACE

Scared-poem of a face
war ravaged and time worn
creased by many years and much hunger
with mouth turned down in bitterness
and eyes filled with unfathomable suffering,
I am ashamed!
Men stand hypnotized
not by beauty of unutterable loneliness
or by wonder of a mystic smile —
We forget Mona Lisa
when fixed by an old woman's abject terror —,
I am ashamed!
Kneeling in the dust
ragged, and frail, and thin, and full of fear
while over you with hands clasped in your hair stands the strength of my land
with rifle pointing at your skull,
I am ashamed!
Interrogated and despised
compelled to carry messages or bombs
Strong young men on either side
and you, grandmother, in the dust,
I am ashamed!
On the front page for all to see
I am confused as to the reason why
I am confused that war is fought this way
and I tremble lest I myself have caused that terror-ridden scared-poem of a face.
I am ashamed!

SAN QUENTIN — BOBBY GENE MILLER

LOST

Silence inside me running,
Lost among black weeds,
My senses no longer yearning,
My soul no longer free.

Colors, colors, more colors thickening,
Slashing across my mind,
Leaving me lifeless and senseless —
No eyesight for the blind.

Downward, slowly catching
Brief moments of lost pleasure
When life was good and love was gold
And happiness I could not measure.

Plants For Giving At Easter Time

Lily Leads The Parade But There Are Others

Marin's nurseries and florist shops are well stocked now with Easter plants, most of them greenhouse grown especially for the Lenten season.

The white Easter lily, of course, is the traditional symbol of the joy of one of Christiandom's most significant occasions.

Happily, the Easter lily thrives in Marin's growing conditions. Marinites can plant it with assurance, or present it in a container to their loved ones and friends as a remembrance of the season.

THERE ARE, however, other beautiful plants that make a Lenten greeting in keeping with the Easter spirit, especially when given "gussied-up" with decorative foil and bright bows.

Azaleas, for instance, are in the peak of their bloom right now and make wonderful gifts. They'll continue their spectacular flowering for some time after Easter Sunday.

Make certain that the recipient of your gift plant, be it a lily, an azalea, or what have you, understands that your present may be planted in the garden after Easter.

AZALEAS WILL continue to bloom indoors for some time, if kept moist (but not standing in water). Outdoors, they prefer shade.

Easter lilies, on the other hand, like a sunnier location.

Chrysanthemums can be seen in bloom at the nurseries 12 months of the year. While they are generally regarded as an autumnal plant, they will also provide warmth and color in the spring. Cut back after the blooms fade to about six inches in height and planted in part or full sun, they'll bloom again in the fall. Ample water, fertilizer as the plants show new growth and disbudding in the summertime are recommended steps.

THE AFRICAN violet is an old-fashioned Easter season favorite.

These come as everything from stately singles to frilly doubles, and in many lovely color hues. They make an especially thoughtful Easter gift for a shut-in friend. Placed in an east or north window, they will bloom on and on. But don't place them near a heater or an air cooler, and water only to maintain moisture.

The hydrangea is still another Easter season gift plant that, placed outdoors after the holiday, will provide beauty for years to come.

SOME OTHER possibilities: The orchids, and both the Cattleyas and the Cymbidiums can be found in spectacular bloom now; the dwarf citrus trees; the camellias, ideal for the shade garden; the Martha Washington pelargoniums, and the several handsome foliage plants that will fill-in a patio corner or enhance the indoor decor.

There is something particularly appropriate about the gift of a living plant in a season when we are celebrating re-newed life and when nature is stirring with reawakened vigor.

Resist Temptation To Cut Back Tops

When those bulbs you planted in the fall begin blooming, resist the temptation to cut the tops back as soon as they fade.

If you will just let the tops ripen off, the bulbs will bloom beautifully again next year. The secret is that the bulbs draw food from the tops as they fade.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

Here is the Marin gardener's checklist for the coming week:

✓Plant perennials such as delphinium, chrysanthemum, carnation, penstemon, gerbera and English daisy now.

✓Gladiolus benefit from a light feeding when their tops are about eight or 10 inches high.

✓Plant fuchsias now. And try some of the hanging basket types in overhead containers. The color effect is sensational.

✓Late March and early April is one of the most prolific blooming periods for the azalea. So shop now while you can select the exact colors you wish.

✓Feed established roses once a month, starting now and continuing into September. Newly planted roses, however, should not be fed until they start to grow.

Garden Page

BULBS THAT planted now will provide a spectacular garden show of color in the summer are in bountiful supply at the nurseries. One is the Picotee-type tuberous begonia, whose bloom is pictured at left. It is ideal for the shade area. Some other possibilities include the gladiolus, the cannas and the dahlias. Buy only top quality bulbs. Take note of the new varieties that have been introduced in recent years. And consult your nurseryman on depth of planting and other cultural problems. Two Easily-Grown Vegetables

No amount of money can buy vegetables that taste quite as good as those homegrown and fresh-picked.

And, of the many vegetables which can be grown easily, few reward you so abundantly for your efforts as tomatoes and peppers.

Now is a good time to set out transplants of these flavorful vegetables.

GIVE BOTH a warm sunny location. Waterwise, peppers want an occasional heavy irrigation, while tomatoes should receive at least one heavy watering a month for best results. Most home gardeners, in their enthusiasm, tend ot overwater. Summer temperatures and the soil's capacity to retain moisture will dictate the watering frequency.

In planting peppers, set them out in raised beds (double row) at about 10 to 12 inch intervals. Tomatoes are spaced according to variety, and whether they are allowed to run on the ground or are trained on stakes.

Nurserymen have the varieties suited for our climate and can provide planting and spacing recommendations.

WHERE GARDEN space is limited, training tomatoes on trellises is a space-saver. It is astonishing the quantity of fruit that can be produced in a relatively small area.

By setting-out vegetable transplants now, you can start harvesting and enjoying that home-grown taste at least a month sooner than if you started from seed. What greater enticement is there — other than how easy the plants are to grow?

Rescreening To Keep The Beasties Out

Handyman's Page

Although screens with aluminum frames are widely used nowadays, the wooden screen continues to stand between many of us and the billions of wee beasties that infest the night.

The screen is a fairly vulnerable article, constantly exposed to the weather and subject to many kinds of damage by children, dogs and pointed objects.

When a screen has developed a small hole, you can repair it with one of the screen patches available at a hardware store or lumber yard. But if you don't like the idea of a patch or if the screening is too far gone, you may want to do a rescreening job.

SCREEN CLOTH — or mesh, screening, whatever you like to call it — comes in many types, including galvanized iron, copper, aluminum, bronze, fiberglas and various kinds of plastic. Choose the same cloth for the repair as you have on the rest of your screens. If necessary, take a piece of the old screening to the store to obtain the proper match.

To remove the old mesh, use a putty knife or other flat tool to pry up the narrow molding that runs along the inside of the frame. If the molding is in good shape, it can be reused. When the molding is off, you will note that the mesh is held down by tacks or staples or by what appears to be twine laid in a narrow channel.

When you buy the screening, be sure it's wider than the inside of the frame, since you'll need a workable margin on all four sides. If cutting has to be done, use tin snips or an old pair of shears, the larger the better. The hardest part is to get the mesh on tight and flat.

HERE'S AN old-fashioned method that works:

Lay the frame on a flat and sturdy surface like a workbench or table. Place two boards about one inch thick under the ends of the frame. Use a pair of clamps to bend each side of the frame downward until it reaches the top of the flat surface. Attach the mesh. When the clamps are removed, the screening will automatically becomes taut as the frame springs back into place.

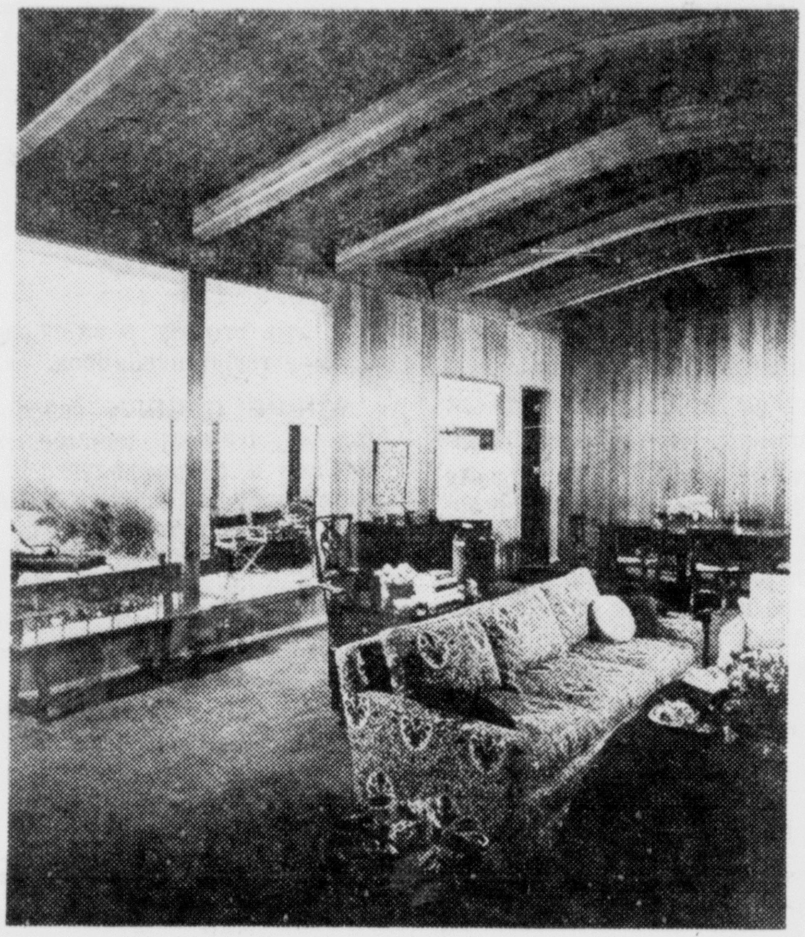
However, there are some mesh materials of the newer types, such as fiberglas or plastics, that should not be stretched tightly. Consult your dealer about this.

ONCE THE new mesh is in place, trim away ragged edges so that nothing will show outside the replaced molding. If you bought new molding or if the old molding needs a new finish, paint it before you put it in place. In that way, you avoid tedious efforts to paint the molding without running over onto the new mesh.

If the frames need repainting, use a small oval-shaped brush.

In painting the mesh, use an applicator — a piece of felt attached to a flat block of wood or metal. Thin the paint sufficiently to prevent clogging the mesh apertures. Keep a toothpick handy so that if any clogging occurs at one or more points, use it at once before the paint begins to harden.

THE CASE FOR REDWOOD CEILINGS



MASSIVE REDWOOD beams that are glue-laminated support this ceiling of mixed grain redwood roof decking. The scene is the large living room of a comfortable vacation house. (Photo by Morley Baer)

THE HIGH PEAKED ceiling here has been built from clear all-heart redwood. A free-standing fireplace wall and the chimneys paneled with redwood serve to separate the living room form the study.

THIS PYRAMID-SHAPED ceiling consists of finger-joined A-grade redwood, streaked with cream-colored sapwood patterns. Interior walls are paneled in clear all-heart redwood. The deck that overlooks San Francisco Bay is redwood as well. (Photo by Gerald Rafto)

ARTHUR BROWN — SHEET MUSIC, LIGHTLY GRILLED

By JOHN SUNIER

Some recent rock records, leading off with a wild and weird one:

"THE CRAZY WORLD OF ARTHUR BROWN" — Track S 8198:

Arthur Brown is a new English performer with an exceptional blues voice and delivery — swooping, screeching and fluttering through such fast numbers as "I Put a Spell on You," and James Brown's "Money," as well as his own originals. But his big claim to fame is his unbelievable appearance and the whole scene connected with his performances.

He dresses in wild capes, grotesque wigs, and in his big hit "Fire," a metal helmet which bursts into flames as the grand climax.

His biography furnished by the record company is no help in discovering the real Arthur Brown; it features such facts as: His father is a 243-year-old Druid, he has eyes "beyond human description," his favorite drink is blood, and when asked of his tastes in music — "I don't chew records, but I like sheet music lightly grilled."

The whole thing is wacky, absurd, and somewhat sinister, too. But the music is exciting and quite worth repeated listening.

THE DOORS — "WAITING FOR THE SUN" — Elektra EKS-74024:

One of the top rock groups in the world today, the Doors have developed a refined and unique music since their beginnings in Venice, Calif. Their latest is a beauty; some of the tracks such as "The Unknown Soldier" are already hits.

The lyrics of Jim Morrison are now on a level with Bob Dylan, and inside this album are printed the lyrics to "Celebration of the Lizard," a theater composition by the Doors which is not heard on the disc.

It is a gripping and successful poetic flight.

THE PENTANGLE — Reprise 6351; "SWEET CHILD" — The Pentangle — Reprise 6334:

These two albums (actually three discs, for the second release is a two-disc set) have made a place in contemporary music for yet another English group.

When it is learned that the Pentangle uses no electronic amplification whatever, it seems unusual that the new group has been so well received. Part of the reason is the innovative spirit of the quintet. They incorporate folk, blues, jazz, classical into a musical whole.

Each of the five individuals (including a fine gal vocalist, Jacqui McShee) has his own talents and occasionally show them off in solos.

The best track on the first album is "Pentangling," which swings strongly into the jazz groove. On the second album three Renaissance dances are presented on guitar and glockenspiel, some fine folk and popular ballads are sung by Jacqui, and two pieces by the great Charlie Mingus are featured. Some tasty blues are sung duet fashion, and the absence of the heavy electronic guitar undergirding is hardly missed.

These would be just what the doctor ordered for decibel-battered musical ears.

"COUNTRY JOE & THE FISH TOGETHER" — Vanguard VSD-79277:

This Berkeley-born group continues to concentrate on protest messages laced liberally with humor and to hold back on the revolutionary development of their music, which is fine with me. The Fish still swing, bounce and even ricky-tick once in a while. There are also some nice instrumental things, such as Bruce Barthol's "Cetacean."

"Rock and Soul Music" recreates a live appearance of a soul music singer with amazing excitement.

TRAFFIC — United Artists UAS 6676:

Following their big hit on "Mr. Fantasy," this English group should have many eager to hear more of their efforts herein. All their material is original and a nice balance and variety is achieved in mood and instrumental backing of the vocals. Chris Wood especially shines on many instruments, including flute, soprano sax, drums and sleigh bells. My pick track was "40,000 Headmen."

"RELEASE OF AN OATH" — The Electric Prunes — Reprise RS 6316:

Not long ago this Southern California group recorded a rock-pop setting of the mass composed and arranged by David Azelrod. Now here is the same idea, using this time the Kol Nidre ancient Hebrew prayer. Definitely not irreverent, this is a deeply-felt experiment in music and comes off well, though not as well as the previous attempt.

"ELEKTRIC LADYLAND" — The Jimi Hendrix Experience — Reprise 2RS 6307:

The latest Hendrix album, a two-discer, is a classic from start to finish.

First to make the blues psychedelic, Jimi Hendrix had to go to England in order to become a success in America. Local FM station KMPX helped launch his success in this country with their early airings of his English recordings. Now the wild guitarist is listed in serious music journal discographies of electronic music right alongside Stockhausen, Ussachevsky and Cage.

The title tune is good, "Voodoo Chile" a thriller, and Bob Dylan's "All Along the Watchtower" is a Top-40 hit already. Fantastic stereophonics — try it with headsets!

"LORD SITAR" — Capitol ST 2916:

This pop-rock album was produced in England and neither the sitarist nor the orchestra are credited anywhere on the LP. The plan is to mix the haunting sound of the ancient Indian stringed instrument popularized by Ravi Shankar and others with the sound of a swinging pop orchestra playing such hits as "Eleanor Rigby" and several originals.

The first side is in generally poor taste, stooping even to a Hollywoodish plastic version of the theme from Beethoven's "Ninth Symphony" on one track. However, the six tunes on the second side are very well done and fun listening. "Blue Jay Way" is most striking and exotic.
